(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

When from your front yard you look toward the faint cloud of stars that astronomers call NGC 6822 you are looking far into space. That is about the farthest spot in the universe of which the distance has been measured.

The light that strikes the eye looking at NGC 6822 through the telescope has been traveling toward us for 1,000,000 "light years." To learn what a 1,000,000 light years amount to in miles, find out how many seconds there are in 1,000,000 years. Then multiply the total by 186,000, the number of miles that light travels per second and you have it. Don't forget the leap years.

Scientists of Harvard observatory say that NGC 6822 is outside of the milky way in which case it is part of "another universe." The milky way in the universe is like a small cluster of frog's eggs floating in the Pacific ocean, only you would have to multiply the Pacific ocean a few quadrillions of times to get the right proportions and then it wouldn't be big enough, no matter what Einstein says about curved lines.

The dirigible Los Angeles, traveling at average high speed could take you to NGC 6822 in a little more than thirty-three million years. This is a bik universe and any human mind convinced that it can define, explain or conceive the power back of it, has considerable confidence in itself.

Just as the virtuous complain that women leave nothing to the imagination, they suddenly decide to cover up again. "Dress is to be more subtle this season than in other seasons."

That isn't saying much, for there is nothing subtle about a lady bare backed to her waist in the evening with a skirt above her knees in the daytime.

But fashion really means to reform for the moment. Arms that have been naked from the top of the shoulder down looking in some mottled cases like a butcher shop exhibit are now to be covered with "soft mysterious veiling," thanks for that, with or without the mystery and shawl of brilliant colors, worn to "reavel personality" will cover up almost everything.

Thus again we learn that it is always darkest before dawn. Women go just so far in one direction and then turn around and go the other way. That's their charm.

Japan's house of peers Monday passed a new land law forbidding ownership of Japanese land by citizens of countries that forbid land owning by Japanese. This means you and you must give up any idea of owning a lot in Tokio and trying out your scheme for an earthquake-proof bungalow.

No American will complain of the Japanese law. Asia for Asiatics, America for Americans and perfect good will between the two continents is what we favor and Japanese will please notice we don't think our national honor injured, merely because Japan wants Japanese land for Japanese people.

The University of Washington, which prepares young men of the northwest for their great opportunities, decides to develop poets with special lessons in the dramatic art department. First class poets are needed to describe the beauties of water, land and sky, around Seattle, but can you really make poets to order? And is not poetry a semi-extinct form of expression, invented as an aid to memory when men could not read or write.

Poets are born. Consider Keats, a young clerk from a chemist's shop. He sees in a friend's room for the first time in his life, the works of Homer, takes the Iliad with him, stays up all night and reads the volume through, then writes his poem.

On looking into Champman's Homer, read that, it could all go in one-half of this column, and ask yourself how anybody could be taught to write that last line:

"Silent on a peak in Darien."

You might as well try to teach a china hen to lay real eggs.

The United States is rubbing its eyes and waking up a little, orders 86 flying machines, made in the United States. For 10 machines by the Curtis company $250,000 will be paid and for 75 from the Douglas company, $853,000. That's a start and multiplied by a hundred, it would give the country a good beginning for an air fleet.

Fortunately Henry Ford and his son, Edsel B. Ford, are in the aircraft field. They will let us know what a flying machine ought to cost, and something about the theory that the "flying life" of an airplane engine is only about 100 hours.

The Fords will give you an engine that without expensive renewal of parts, will fly around the world 10 times. They don't believe in an en-

34 MINERS IMPRISONED BY BARRACKVILLE, W. VA., BLAST BELIEVED DEAD

HOPE REVIVED FOR ENTOMBED

AT THE MOUTH OF MINE NO. 41, BARRACKVILLE, W. Va., March 18.—Hopes were revived for the lives of the 34 men entombed since late last night by an explosion in the mine here of the Bethlehem Mines & Steel Corporation this afternoon when mine rescue officials joined in denying the false reports which were widely circulated here and sent out by newspaper correspondents that two of the men had been found dead near the foot of the mine shaft.

Rescue Workers, Burrowing Way Through Debris, Predict None of Entombed is Alive.

PLANT WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

Burst of Flame Follows Deafening Report as Tipple Crumbles and Mine is Darkened.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., March 18.—None of the 34 miners imprisoned by a blast in mine 41 of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation at Barrackville, near here, will be found alive, according to leaders in the rescue work today.

Burrowing their way through the debris and hampered by falls of rock and lack of ventilation, the rescue squad of 25 men will not reach the entombed miners until late today, those in charge said.

One of the most terrific in mining annals here, the explosion wrecked the plant, virtually demolished the camp store, shattered windows and doors throughout Barrackville and was felt plainly here.

Three Arrests Made.

First came a dull rumbling followed by a deafening report. Then the heavens took on a ghastly glow from a burst of flame mounting hundreds of feet in the air. The flame shortly was obscured by great clouds of dense black smoke.

The tipple was wrecked and the electric lighting system put completely out of commission leaving the mine in darkness.

In 1916 the same mine was wrecked by a gas explosion that killed 19 miners and a short time later two members of the Pittsburgh bureau of mines were killed by after damp while trying to penetrate the workings of the mine.

Although all officials here and at Barrackville discounted the reports that the explosion might have been caused by labor troubles, Sheriff J. C. Riggins, today arrested A. G. Kendall, Clarence Wetzell and M. D. Edmunds. The trio was held on "suspicious person" charges, and their actions will be investigated.

One of the men worked four hours in the mine yesterday and another had worked in it for a week recently.

COURT BILL UP TO DONAHEY AS SENATE ACTS

East Liverpool Measure is Passed by State Assembly.

EMMONS SPONSOR

House Adopts Plan to Purchase Guilford Dam Tract.

The fate of East Liverpool's proposed municipal court rests in the hands of Governor A. V. Donahey today, following approval of the measure voted by the state senate yesterday.

Another bill, affecting Columbiana county—a proposal for the establishment of a state park on the site of Guilford dam—was passed by the house. The measure was rushed to the senate where it will likely come up for a vote this week.

The bill, establishing a municipal court in East Liverpool beginning January 1, 1926, is practically the same measure approved in the house of representatives about three weeks ago. It provides for the election of a judge, whose salary shall not be less than $3,600, a clerk with a salary of not less than $1,800 and the appointment of a bailiff at a salary of $1,200. Of-

Exhume Body as Valley City Poison Plot Quiz Continues

MEDINA, O., Mar. 18—While Coroner Crum and his assistants were at the little Valley City cemetery today, exhuming the body of Mrs. Fred Glenke, Sr., victim of a "poison fiend," Prosecutor Joseph Seymour was gathering together the threads of evidence which, he believes, connects an as yet unnamed slayer with the death of Mrs. Glenke, her husband, Fred, and a sister of the later, Mrs. Rose Hazel, who died about two weeks previously to the death of Mrs. Glenke January 3.

When the body is exhumed, it will be brought to the morgue here, where a post-mortem examination will be made and an analysis conducted to determine beyond doubt that arsenic poison caused the death. It may also be determined to exhume the body of Mrs. Hazel, but Prosecutor Seymour has not reached a definite conclusion in this respect.

Meanwhile at Memorial hospital, Miss Marie Glenke was lying at the point of death and physicians were fearful of the outcome. It has been definitely decided that she and her brother are the victims of arsenic poisoning.

Waterhouse Suit Choice Morsel of Gossip for London

LONDON, March 18.—Gossip—replete London turned its attention today to the Waterhouse suit, where characters appearing to have stepped from a mid-victorian drawing room furnished testimony lurid enough for the jazz age.

Blushes spread over a court room hardened to blush provoking testimony at the reading of the death bed statement of the old butler, Mills, concerning the relations of the late Frank Waterhouse and Lady Wilson-Barker.

NEW HIGH PRICE IN HOG MARKET

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 18.—The hog market touched another new high for a three-year period with $14.30 as a new top, a five-cent advance over yesterday's close.

Uncle Sam Orders Probe Into Grain Market Gambling

WASHINGTON, March 18.—An immediate investigation of recent wide fluctuations in prices of wheat and other grains on the exchanges in the country was ordered today by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine.

The inquiry will be made by the department of Agriculture under authority of the act designed to prevent market gambling and manipulation or prices.

CHICAGO, March 18.—Grains today rebounded sensationally from yesterday's low point and within an hour wheat was selling four to ten cents a bushel higher than yesterday in the Chicago pits. Other grains were proportionately higher.

The rise was as rapid as the dizzy decline and it was accompanied by an equal amount of furious trading.

WAR MONUMENTS PLANNED FOR AMERICAN DEAD

Crosses Will be Placed Over Graves in France, Belgium.

STUDY MEMORIAL

Pershing Will go Abroad to Supervise Preparations.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Plans for the erection of war monuments to America's illustrous dead in France and Belgium and placing of crosses over the grave of every doughboy will be completed this summer. General John J. Pershing, chairman of the battle monuments commission will go to France to supervise the preparations.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, a member of the commission, will also visit France in the summer and is expected to confer there with General Pershing on the final details for the memorial plans which are under study by the commission.

General Pershing expects to sail for a "tourist's view" of the battlefields over which he led the American doughboys in the World war some time after he pays a short visit to his home in Lincoln, Neb., next week.

Monuments On Battlefields.

Plans already decided upon include the erection of a number of monuments to commemorate the major engagements in which the Americans participated, the placing of little white stone crosses over the grave of every doughboy, and the walling of American cemeteries. Definite location of the monuments has not yet been decided upon, and no agreement has been reached on the design of the crosses to be erected. Several designs are before the committee and which ever design is finally chosen will be uniform throughout American graves in France.

General Perishing was greatly fatigued by the extensive tour he made of South America and by the large scale in which entertainments in his honor were planned, but he is so anxious to go ahead with the battle monument work that he will spend a greater portion of this summer working on the final plans instead of taking a long rest. It is expected the work on the monuments, graves and cemeteries will take two years to complete. The first apportionments of the Congressional appropriation have already been made and work is to begin immediately after final decision has been made.

Defense in Teapot Dome Trial Will Call No Witnesses

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 18.—The defense in the Teapot Dome trial was expected to introduce today a deposition by Admiral J. K. Robinson, seeking to justify the lease.

Martin Littleton, chief of Harry Sinclair's counsel, announced no witnesses would be put on the stand by the defense and that its evidence would consist entirely of depositions to show the lease was necessary and advantageous to the government. Testimony concerning tracing of the $230,500 of Liberty bonds from the Continental Trading company, Ltd., to former Secretary Albert B. Fall, was left in the record over strenuous protest of the defense when the government rested its case Tuesday afternoon.

The Sinclair motion to strike out was overruled by Federal Judge Kennedy, who told defense counsel "if this evidence isn't connected or material, then it won't hurt you." This was the most important victory scored by the government.

Judge Kennedy declared the motion to strike out the bond testimony was in reality a motion for dismissal of the government's suit insofar as the conspiracy charge is involved.

WIDOW DIES AFTER SHE IS RUN DOWN BY AUTO; DOCTOR BLAMES SHOCK

Mrs. Katherine Troisieme, 66, is Victim of Accident While on Way Home From Theatre.

HEART WAS WEAK; NO BONES BROKEN

Charles Hartt Swerves Car in Attempt to Avert Crash as Woman Darts Across Street.

Mrs. Katherine Troisieme, 66, a widow, 419 West Fifth street, died at the city hospital shortly before midnight, as the result of injuries sustained at 9:30 last night when struck by an automobile, driven by Charles Hartt, 30, accountant, near the intersection of Fifth and Monroe streets.

Mrs. Troisieme who had attended a motion picture show, was returning to her home, when the accident occurred. Hartt, enroute to the hospital with Mrs. Jane Hanna, a nurse, who had been engaged to care for George Conkle, a patient, says he noticed the woman start to cross the street, almost in front of the B'Nai Israel Synagogue.

Car Hurtles Curb.

When about ten feet out from the curb, he claims, the woman stopped as if to wait until he passed. He asserts that he was traveling about 20 miles an hour when the woman, unexpectedly, darted across the street, directly in front of his car.

Hartt quickly applied his brakes and swerved his machine to the upper side of the street in an effort to avert the accident. The left headlight of the car struck the woman, knocking her to the street. The car hurtled the curb onto the sidewalk in front of the synagogue where it was brought to a stop.

Assisted by Thomas Cannon, West Sixth street, who was nearby at the time, Hartt carried the injured woman to the hospital, a short distance away. She was unconscious when picked up but soon regained consciousness.

Upon examination Dr. R. J. Marshall, who attended her, found no bones broken, although Mrs. Troisieme was bruised about the head.

Creditors Control Chicago, Milwaukee And St. Paul Road

NEW YORK, March 18.—Formal announcement of the decision of the directors of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad to effect a "readjustment of the financial structure of the railroad," found the various protective committees ready today to safeguard the interests of the different groups of security holders.

The appointment of three committees to represent the bondholders, the preferred stockholders and the common stockholders means in effect that the operation of the road passes into the hands of its creditors.

For the last three weeks it has been apparent, from the heavy liquidation of the stocks and junior bonds of the St. Paul road, that some sort of a financial readjustment of its affairs was contemplated by the management and the bankers for the system.

DONOVAN NAMED SARGENT'S AID

WASHINGTON, March 18.—President Coolidge today sent to the senate the nomination of William J. Donovan, of New York, to be assistant to the attorney general.

Donovan at present is an assistant attorney general, and in his new position will succeed to the vacancy created by the resignation of A. E. Seymour.

1,000 TOKIO HOMES BURNED

TOKIO, March 18.—Troops were ordered to tear down houses in the path of the flames as fire swept through the northern part of Tokio today, destroying 1,000 homes. A high wind sped the spread of the flames. Panicky householders, saving what goods they could carry, fled through the streets from the stricken section.

NET TIGHTENS IN GERM PLOT MURDER CASE

Indictments Against Suspects in McClintock Death Returned.

BAIL REFUSED

Chicago Prosecutor Predicts Sensational Criminal Trial.

By CARL W. HARRIS.

CHICAGO, Mar. 18—The formal indictments charging William D. Shepherd and "Dr." Charles C. Faiman with murder, in connection with the death of William Nelson McClintock, last blood heir to the McClintock fortune, were returned in criminal court here today.

More than three hours before the expiration of the truce, the state's attorney promised Shepherd's attorneys —indictment or freedom for their client by 2 p. m. today—had been fulfilled. The writ of habeas corpus which had been held temporarily in abeyance by Shepherd's counsel, automatically became a scrap of paper. The man whom it was to have freed from "unlawful custody" began life behind prison bars awaiting the promised legal sensation—the trial now expected to start within two months.

The indictments contains 21 counts in each of which both Shepherd and

Flat of Frank Mayo, Screen Star, Raided; Wife Leads Police

NEW YORK, Mar. 18—Two explanations were offered today for a raid on the flat of Frank Mayo, motion picture star, in which his wife, Dagmar Godowsky, led the raiders and found Miss Ann Luther with Mayo. Both Miss Godowsky and Miss Luther are screen actresses.

"It looks pretty funny to me," declared Miss Luther, a titian haired young woman who is separated from her husband, Ed. Gallagher, of the vaudeville team of Gallagher and Shean.

"Don't forget that Dagmar herself was the co-respondent in Frank Mayo's first divorce suit. I was in Frank's flat cheering the poor boy because he had a headache."

Mrs. Mayo said:

"Our knocks at the door were unanswered. There was nothing to do but batter it down. We did so. We found Frank dressed only in a bathrobe. Miss Luther was making frantic efforts to hook up her evening gown. In view of these circumstances I am going to sue for divorce."

FORMER NAVY CHIEF ASSERTS NATION NEEDS MORE AIRCRAFT

Josephus Daniels Points Out Importance of Development

OUTLINES VIEWS

Defends Senate in Rejecting Nomination of Warren.

"The value of the air service is unquestionable. The country today should be spending a lot of money for equipment and development of such service."

This is the opinion of Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, who last night lectured on "The Challenge of Peace."

Clearly indicating his stand in the recent governmental tangle which brought about comparisons between battleships and aircraft, and which resulted in the demotion of Brigadier-General Charles D. Mitchell, the former navy head declared.

"There is no question in my mind as to the future value of aircraft. We should not be sparing in our expenditures toward equipment to conquer the air. The foreign powers are doing it. We are progressing steadily and consistently along other lines of scientific endeavor and so we should turn our attention to the air."

Airplane in Mail Service.

He pointed out particularly the probable extensive use of the air mail transportation in the future.

Discussing President Coolidge's nomination of Charles B. Warren as attorney general which three times was rejected by the senate, Daniels who is also a former senator said: "The senate acted perfectly within its rights in rejecting the nomination of Warren. The senate must investigate, and act according to its own judgment and in an advisory capacity. According to its pledge, the senate could not consistently accept a nomination, even though the presidential Woodstock's appointment was blocked by Democrats in the last session and they announced they again would vigorously fight confirmation now.

END WAR, URGES EX-NAVY CHIEF

Josephus Daniels Makes Plea for Peace in Lecture.

"Unless we end war, war will end us."

This, in short, was the substance of the message delivered by Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, North Carolina, former secretary of the Navy, in his address last night in the high school auditorium to more than 500 persons.

Mr. Daniels spoke on the subject, "The Challenge of Peace." He was introduced by Frank L. Wells, who paid the war navy secretary glowing tribute. Seated on the stage were representative citizens of the city.

Mr. Daniels arrived here yesterday afternoon, coming from Ashtabula by trolley. Prior to dinner he enjoyed an auto ride through the rural districts north of the city as the guest of School Superintendent S. E. Daw and accompanied by Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor of the United Presbyterian church.

Strong indictments against wars and the makers of wars were drawn in his address.

The story of Lloyd George's "great mistake" and the manner in which the World war still has failed to accomplished its purpose—a war to do away with war—were recounted graphically by "the man who made the navy dry."

He told of the manner in which the youth of America gave up good years of their lives so that they might have a part in the war that was to end wars, how women of America gave their utmost; how immense amounts of money were poured into the conflict; all in a spirit of unselfishness and with one purpose. "If that spirit could be recalled for a campaign for peace," Daniels said, "what great things could be accomplished."

"The impact of the American forces against the advancing Boche 30 miles away from Paris, France's capital, and the American victories at Chateau Thierry, brought an end to the war fully a year ahead of the time even Foch and Haig thought it could possibly be ended," pointed out Daniels.

"As the Germans advanced on the French capital, and French officials were preparing to move the seat of government into the lower part of the state, there arose from the fields at Chateau Thierry the American doughboy sharpshooters and time and again the onrushing German lines were mowed down. Then the kaiser's retreat.

"This is how the American soldiers met the challenge of war.

"The signing of the Armistice was a great day for the fighters, nations, and mothers, in particular, whose boys were in the thick of the conflict. They thought that it was the signal of a great victory in the war against war.

"And then a short time later, I was surprised to pick up my paper and there to see a statement by Clemenceau, 'the Tiger of France,' in which he said 'we are entering the dangerous days.'

"I felt hard against the Tiger then. I thought that his was a discordant note in the hymn of rejoicing. But days and weeks and years have passed, and the dangerous days still are with us. The Tiger was wiser than I.

"Later came the peace conference. Here the representatives of all nations conferred, all seeking a common ground. President Wilson knew immediately that an estimate of France's damage would have to be made before the work of rehabilitation could be started. Accordingly, American financiers studied the situation and submitted their findings, in which they said that not less than ten billion dollars nor more than 15 billions must be paid by Germany. But Germany protests that France has always demanded too much.

"And then the tragedy of Paris occurred.

"Lloyd George, who had sought reelection as Britain's premier, had promised to hang the Kaiser and make Germany pay the cost of the war.

"When the "Big Four" went into conference, it suddenly developed that the immense amount of reparation demanded would place the payments in future years on Germany's still unborn and would not make for universal peace.

"Lloyd George went into the country to think, accompanied by Balfour and advisers, and finally came to a decision. He decided to put world peace ahead of national desire for money. But news of the decision leaked out; even reached London, and when Lloyd George returned to Paris, there newspaper headlines confronted him with the demand of the British, which was substantially, 'Live up to your promise or get out.'

"The peace proposals, as a result, hung fire for weeks and months, and still are unsettled. Lloyd George's mistake, the promise he could not fulfill, touched the whole world.

"But Lloyd George is a great man. He is one of the greatest men of the century. His leadership and enthusiasm were worth 100,000 fighting men.

"Continuing the thread of peace negotiations, a form of peace pact was signed in the Versailles Palace finally, which in form was a league of nations. President Wilson hurried back home and presented it to the Senate for ratification. As so far as I know it is still there.

"I believe that if America had entered the league, the present instability, drifting, and unsettled state of affairs would have been ended.

Harding took the presidential chair. He urged a world court. After his death, Calvin Coolidge, the vice president, continued the appeal for a great world tribunal, and only recently, Coolidge, president in his own right, again made an unanswerable argument for America's adoption of the world court plans.

"Although I am a Democrat, I would rather see a Republican in office working for peace, than a Democrat who would not work for peace. I can't see how a church man, after attending services and saying amen to the Biblical 'peace on earth, good will to all men,' can go out and be indifferent to world peace.

"What is America doing for peace? Nothing.

"As soon as the present state of exhaustion is passed in Europe, we have no assurance that there will not be another war.

"Armaments are not being reduced. Europe now has more men under arms than at any time before, save during the World war. Europe is spending money for war, and so are we. Unless we end war, war will end us."

CALL TESTIMONY IN KIRBY CASE

With the opening statements out of the way, introduction of testimony in the case of Josiah Kirby, founder and first president of the Cleveland Discount company, and Raymond L. Poland, its former treasurer, charged with issuing a false financial statement began with the opening of court today in Cleveland.

The testimony, largely technical in its nature, will be heard by a jury of six men and six women, with a seventh woman, sitting as an alternate juror.

The state will attempt to prove, according to David E. Green, special counsel, that Poland prepared the alleged false statement at the direction of Poland, and that while the figures shown in the report disclosed a surplus in excess of $1,300,000, there was an actual deficit of approximately $1,000,000.

COUNCIL HOLDS BRIEF SESSION

Discussion centered about the Wells avenue paving program and the proposed improvement of sewer conditions in Twentieth street occupied the attention of city council last night.

The solons held only a short session.

Clerk George Hardman was instructed to go to Lisbon as soon as possible to investigate former street assessment rates—those made prior to 1902. The findings will be reviewed in connection with Wells avenue assessments.

Several estimates on the cost of improving sewer conditions in Twentieth street, prepared by engineers, were submitted to the solons by Director A. P. Dennis.

The estimates revealed that the work could hardly be done for less then $4,000.

How to Solve Puzzle.

The best way to solve this cross-word puzzle is to run over the list of horizontal and vertical synonyms in search of evident or "easy" words. If horizontal, the word you are looking for must extend crosswise from the number to the first shaded stop on the right; if vertical, it must extend downward from the number to the first shaded stop below. When finished, the words should read equally well crosswise and downward.

Municipal Air Ports

The federal government has done admirable work in developing the air mail. Now cities and manufacturers are beginning to make real aviation progress, adapting their activities to those of the government.

A significant step in this direction has just been taken by Cleveland. It has acquired a municipal aviation field on the edge of the city, almost a square mile in extent, and expects soon to double that area. The government will start using the field immediately as an air mail station, on the busy New York-Chicago route. An important airplane manufacturer will move his plant alongside the new field. Other manufacturers are expected to do likewise, because of the exceptional advantages offered. The government may take one of its big air training schools there. A big airplane industry will probably grow up around that field, and in a few years it may become one of the great air ports of the world.

Meanwhile Henry Ford has started manufacturing airplanes in Detroit, developing a new type of plane and preparing for quantity production, using a training field of his own. Detroit has unusual landing facilities, though nothing yet equal to Cleveland's.

Kansas City is said to have been the real pioneer in the acquisition of a municipal landing field for airplanes, and expects naturally to become a leading continental air port.

This is a branch of enterprise sure to grow rapidly in importance from now on, and fortunate will be the cities establishing their fields and providing port and factory facilities early in the game.

Rooseveltian Adventure

Theodore and Kermit Roosevelt, true sons of Bwana Tumbo, are going on a sort of fairy hunting trip into interior Asia. They will follow part of the route of Marco Polo, the great Venetian traveler of the middle ages. It will take them through the Vale of Kashmir and on through jungle and foothills to the cloudland of the northern Himalaya slopes, toward China.

Their quest is for strange specimens of wild life. That is one of the few untraveled regions left for the exploration and conquest of modern man.

It will be a romantic trip, and a hard one, worthy of the Roosevelt name.

"Teddy," the hunter and naturalist, always had a strong hold on the hearts of his countrymen, and he may be remembered for his exploits in our own west and south, in East Africa and in the Amazon country, when his political record has grown dim. The elder Roosevelt would approve of this venture for his sons, and they fit into his hunting togs rather more easily than they fit into his political shoes.

Simple Wills

When Edward D. White, former chief justice of the supreme court, died a few years ago, his will was cited as an example of brevity and simplicity as well as legality. It avoided the involved terminology and complex division of the estate found in many wills.

Recently another example of a commendably brief will has been made public. A Californian has left a will disposing of $3,000,000 which he wrote on a bit of pasteboard the size of a postcard. He used about 100 words to divide his property among his nine heirs-at-law.

He set a good example in two respects: Preparing a will and making it simple and short. Too many persons postpone making wills because they imagine somehow it implies a morbid contemplation of early death. Some others make wills of such freakish content that they lose much of dignity and value.

It is good sense to make a will, and the person who has done so can then live to be 100 years old with a contented mind so far as the disposal of his property is concerned, particularly if the will is clearly and simply drawn.

The Aerie

For 50 years eaglets had been reared in a nest near Vermilion, Ohio. Last year a hunter killed Mr. Eagle. Mrs. Eagle soon thereafter went in search of another mate and brought him back to the old nest. A new family was well on the way when a gale swept the nest down. It was eight feet wide, 12 deep and weighed a ton. Two partly formed birds were found in the wreckage of broken shells. There were also bones of animals picked clean by young eaglets years and years ago.

Dr. F. H. Herrick, professor of biology at Western Reserve university, had made an observatory in a neighboring tree and had studied the birds closely for three years, making many photographs. This year he was prepared to take moving pictures. He hopes the pair will build a new aerie and raise a new brood not too far away.

This is the kind of study which means something. Putting forlorn specimens of the bird-o'-freedom in cages, making them do tricks entirely beneath their dignity, or leaving them in ill-kept zoos to be gazed upon in idle curiosity seems hardly worth its cost in money and human self-respect, not to mention any other considerations.

Roosevelt, on one of his tours, had a cage built for himself, from which he could safely observe big game and take pictures as well as shoot.

The killing of this great old eagle last fall was regarded as a calamity and a crime by all northern Ohio. That hunter will never shoot another eagle.

Gradually the human race does grow more human, after all.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, March 18.—A reluctant sun thinned some of the fog this morning. And so we fared forth for a walk to Trafalgar Square along the Strand before breakfast. The curbs were as usual lined with those trembling, shell shocked war victims—selling matches, toys and other trifling gimcracks.

And at Charing Cross were the same tight bonneted Coster women hawking Scotch heather "a tuppence a bunch, lydy." The sodden news venders with their billboards fore and aft emblazoned in stud type the early morning news: "Death Mystery at Pott Shrigley."

The pigeons about the square were waiting for the morning feeders and the beggars were drifting out to their stands. At Whitehall the guards in their six feet high fur caps with straps were exhanging posts. London is always the same. It never changes.

Haymarket offers a kaleidoscopic view of London in the morning. It is a sort of Forty-second street, New York, as a thoroughfare for workers. Bank clerks in lemon gloves and carrying canes. Old boys in silk hats headed for eye-openers. Prim typists. A sprinkling of monocled dandies.

We put in at Oddenino's for breakfast. And failed as usual to get ice water. There is an exasperating and flinty stubbornness about granting this request in London. Servants express the horror of being asked for a stein of carbolic acid.

The taxi is not so cheap as in Paris, but it is much cheaper than in New York and the cabs excel either city. We drove through Regent and Threadneedle streets and along the Thames embankment and then out through Hyde Park.

I have an impression that London is more poverty stricken than ever. The streets are filled with unemployed. Some of them carrying banners telling of their plight in a fashion that must embarrass the crown.

While waiting for my wife in front of Simpson's for lunch I had an adventure. On the channel boat I had given my ankle a slight wrench and to protect it leaned rather heavily on a walking stick. I suppose I remained too long in one spot for an English bobbie came up. "Move sprightly," he ordered. I told him sprightliness was not in my line and gave him what I considered a nasty look. He asked to see my "pipers"—meaning my passport. It was in my trunk and I had visions of a ride in the wagon where you look out the little barred window like a caged circus bear. He reflected awhile and walked away. I hope he catches his chinstrap in a meat hook or something.

Then, again, I went to a theater ticket agency for seats to a music hall matinee. "Two good seats," I said. "You mean stalls?" he corrected and so long as they want to call them that I let it pass. He studied his chart and gave me two tickets. "Very good stalls," he said, passing them over. I paid the tariff, but was determined to have the last word. "Thanks for the seats," I said, departing merrily. London appears to have a grouch.

This evening I walked down through Houndsditch and watched the queer old characters who collect about the pubs there—cabmen, charwomen and the Alfs and 'Arrys. In one pub I sat next to a scene shifter at the Drury Lane. He told me that London was not what it used to be. We need, he said, another "King H'edward!" I suggested that the Prince of Wales was evincing the same flair for popularity. "But," he said, "he goes hitting it off for H'america and being talked about." The night life of London is somewhat like that of New York—supper clubs where liquor is sold in violation of the law. There is nothing interesting or new about it. I have a feeling of regret that I left Paris. Perhaps it's the fog.

HASKIN'S LETTER

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A New Dawes Plan.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—No legislative performance has drawn more attention than the behavior of General Charles G. Dawes, new vice president of the United States, on the occasion of his induction into office in the senate chamber on March 4. Two schools of thought have sprung up regarding the occurrence, one which condemns his speech and his actions and the other which condemns the formality of the senate which, it was claimed, the vice president shattered.

The presiding officer of the senate did three things to which many people have objected and which many have applauded. First, in his inaugural address, he bitterly attacked the rules of the body to which he had just come as presiding officer. Second, he departed from the custom of one hundred and fifty years in swearing in new senators. Third, he did not return to the chamber after the inaugural address of President Coolidge, but repaired to the White House with the presidential party, where he lunched and then reviewed the parade.

It is a tradition of the senate that newcomers shall be modest in bearing and speech. The august body sets great store by its dignity; indeed calls itself the greatest deliberative body in the world, which it probably is. The rule or custom has relaxed to some extent, but in earlier days it was considered bad taste for a new senator to address the senate under one or perhaps two years' service.

The first conspicuous breach of this tenet of senatorial etiquette was on the occasion of the election of Senator La Follette. At the very outset of his service, the Wisconsin senator proceeded to address the senate, speaking vehemently and condemning some of the conservative measures of the Republican party. About half the members present rose and deliberately stalked from the chamber. The new senator was not abashed, however. He could not help but notice the action of the senate, intended as a rebuke for him, so, interrupting the course of his speech, he remarked: "The senators who now are walking out of this chamber before long will be walking out to stay." By this he meant that times were changing to such an extent that too conservative senators would not be re-elected to the body and, in this, time proved him to be partially correct.

It was the same feeling in modified form which caused senators to be incensed at the scolding they received from the new vice president on the occasion of his very first utterance in the historic chamber.

Old Custom Violated.

For a century and a half the same custom has been followed in swearing in new senators. Their names are called in groups of four and they come forward, escorted by their colleagues, already members. Four take the oath and sign the roll. Then four more are called. The vice president scarcely had begun the ceremony of swearing in when he became impatient. With characteristic vehemence he shouted to the clerk: "Call the names of all the senators who are to take the oath."

Two dozen new senators therefore were herded down into the narrow space before the rostrum and sworn in together, thus breaking the 150-year-old custom. Further, the vice president neglected to have them sign the roll. He then abruptly recessed the senate and the body proceeded to the stand where the president was to deliver his address.

To the surprise and dismay of the experienced senators, after the address had been delivered, the new vice president rode down the avenue to the White House, having called it a day, as far as the senate was concerned. After consultation among themselves, several of the older senators had Senator Watson take the chair and preside over the remainder of the day's proceedings. The next day it was necessary, with the vice president in the chair, to adopt a special resolution validating the proceedings had in the general's absence. It was explained that General Dawes had been misinformed about the procedure, but this did not appease the stickers for form.

Now there are many persons firmly of the opinion that to put so much stress on formalism is un-American and unnecessary. They greatly admired General Dawes for cutting the senatorial red tape, expediting business, scolding the senate because of its rules and otherwise ignoring tradition. It was just another chapter in the list of incidents which have made the general famous as a man of action and commonsense.

Rites and forms seem to have a fixed place, however. The ceremonies of the American congress do not compare with those of older countries, for instance, the British parliament. There the parliament is opened by the king in robes. The lords, the commons and the functionaires enter with the utmost pomp and circumstance.

Address From the Throne.

The king delivers the address from the throne, making certain traditional statements to the lords and others to the commons; still others to both. Laws are suggested. It is a fixed form for the commons immediately after to propose measures seemingly in defiance of the king. This merely is a form followed to emphasize the independence of the parliament. Yet the form has been followed for centuries and doubtless will continue for generations.

A ceremony of special interest recently took place in the house of lords when former Prime Minister Asquith was raised to the peerage as Earl of Oxford and Asquith. It was in almost all respects the same as it was a thousand years ago, being based largely on the old Norman ceremony of robing a noble. The official papers were inscribed, not in English, but in Norman French and Latin—as they have been on such occasions for centuries. Black Rod, a herald, led the procession, followed by Garter, king-at-arms, the chief of the college of heralds. The lord great chamberlain followed in the robes of a marques. Then followed the new peer between his sponsors, Lord Balfour and Lord Beauchamp. All were in gorgeous robes. The letters patent were read and Lord Oxford declared to be an earl "by the king's sign manual."

Incidentally, it is interesting to note that the British parliament has five former prime ministers as members—three in the lords and two in the commons. The Earle of Oxford and of Balfour and of Roseberry are in the lords, while David Lloyd George and Ramsay McDonald sit in the commons. This is comparable to having five former presidents of the United States sitting in congress. But one president has ever returned to congress. John Quincy Adams, after quitting the White House, was elected to the house of representatives.

The reasons for ceremonies are deep seated. They are intended to put all persons on notice that an important public event is occurring. Inaugurations and coronations are staged elaborately for the same reason. In the past there have been occasions when men have usurped realms by secretly getting possession of the reins of power and when assemblies have met clandestinely and overthrown established orders. When new officials are inducted into office and legislative assemblies meet under circumstances of ritual and ostentation there is no doubt possible about what it all means.

This is the real reason for the objection which was raised to the informal conduct of Vice President Dawes.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By CARL L. TURNER.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 18.—School children in Indiana will stand by President Coolidge—even to the extent of going without their lunch, if necessary.

Notwithstanding the natural appatite for food enjoyed by every healthy youngster—and Indiana youngsters are healthy—500 school children at Noblesville, Ind., voted to dispense with the noon lunch to hear the president's inaugural message over radio.

When Mrs. C. S. Meloy, principal, installed the radio receiving set, it did not occur to her that the ceremonies in Washington were to take place between 12 and 1 p. m., Central standard time. Not desiring to impose a hardship on her pupils, the principal put to a vote the matter of remaining in class to hear the speech.

The vote was unanimous.

While taxpayers may hold a grievance against the state senate for going on "strike" recently, with the legislative hamper overflowing, each member of the senate has a life-long friend in every Hoosier hound.

Friendship of the dogs was made steadfast when the senate passed a bill prohibiting the cutting of dogs' tails and the clipping of their ears.

However, the edict of the senate may result in the American Kennel club barring Indiana dogs from shows sponsored by that organization, it was reported.

Mrs. J. H. Donahue, vice president of the State Federation of Humane societies, said the matter of urging the kennel club to alter its rules to permit unclipped dogs to compete, is under consideration.

"If the American Kennel club would rule against such practice it would be effective throughout the country," the humane society officials declared. "But for one state to adopt such a rule would result in owners taking their dogs outside Indiana to have them clipped.

"Four years ago the kennel club ruled against clipping the ears of English bulldogs. As breeders want to compete in the club's shows, all would respect a ruling against cutting dogs' tails."

Indianapolis "flappers" and co-eds from Butler university would brush the dust from old Diogenes' famed lamp and go in quest of a "gentleman."

The girls say they care not who his haberdasher might be, but the winner of the "gentleman's" toga must prove his claim first and last by offering his seat in a crowded street car to some member of their sex, even though she be not beautiful nor shrinking under the weight of years.

Butler girls, aroused to indignation at the modern youth's willingness to sit complacently in a crowded car while his schoolgirl associates scramble for the dangling straps, appealed to local newspapers to aid in the unique search.

One Butler girl thought she had found the "gentleman" when a young man leaped to his feet, with all the gallantry of ancient knighthood, to tender her a seat. But later she learned that he was not an Indianapolis youth, and the quest was resumed.

GOVERNOR MAY VETO GAS TAX

Passage of Brown Bill is Expected Late Today.

COLUMBUS, Mar. 18—Passage of the hard fought Brown gasoline tax bill is expected to be completed by the legislature today, when the house is scheduled to concur in the compromise on the measure recommended by the joint conference committee. The measure has passed the senate. The bill levies a two-cent tax on gasoline, cuts auto tag fees to $4, $5 and $10 and will raise $10,000,000.

Governor Donahey's attitude on the bill is expected to determine whether the new gasoline tax will become a reality at once, or whether supporters will be forced to pass it over an executive veto and then face a test in a referendum at the polls. The governor's attitude on the measure is unknown.

When the bill was first presented he told legislative leaders he favored the measure if all the proceeds could be turned into the state highway fund and the state could take over all road maintenance. This radical change in the state policy was not agreeable to legislative leaders. It was reported today the governor might sign the measure because of the 50 per cent. cut in auto tag fees, but general opinion among legislators indicated they believed the governor would again wield his veto axe when the measure reached him.

Other Measures Pending

The Buchanan-Bible bill will get its third airing before a legislative committee tonight, when the senate schools committee is scheduled to consider the measure. The same line up of supporters and opponents of the bill are scheduled to attend.

Fate of the measure is believed problematical. Supporters probably will be able to force a report by the committee recommending passage. If so there are sufficient votes on the floor to pass the bill, which already had passed the house.

Other measures scheduled for second reading and reference in the senate after passage by the house include:

By Representative Liles, Huron, regulating the kind and weight of vehicles permitted to travel over inter-county and main market roads; by Sullivan, Union, providing for reimbursement of county and independent fair organizations for money spent in junior club work; by Hays, Belmont, permitting admission of children under 12 to the state tuberculosis sanitarium, Mt. Vernon; by Wise, Summit, providing for policing of state parks and resorts, and eliminating provisions which would have permitted card deputies.

Among other measures scheduled for second reading and reference in the senate is the bill of Senator Cummins, Lorain, providing for a police court for Ashland.

If Food Causes Stomach Trouble

If Bloating, Gassiness, Heartburn, Sour Stomach or Such Distresses Follow Meals be Sure to Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A good appetite for the savory dishes, come what may, or as they say "from soup to nuts," is one of life's chief enjoyments. Then, on the other hand, stomach distress afterward is one of life's chief disappointments. To enjoy eating and feel perfectly safe one should follow meals with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They aid digestion, they stop sour fermentation, they take up the sour risings and gassiness, they sweeten the stomach by giving it the alkaline effect and they also stimulate secretions in the stomach and intestines.

Thus, whether you eat pork and beans, sausage and buckwheat cakes, mince pie and cheese, or the foods that most people complain of making the stomach uneasy and sour, you experience that happy state of enjoyable, solid comfort.

Get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at the drug store. Then eat heartily of all the good things of the table. It is surely the best road to continued good health.

Mussolini, as was surmised, is suffering from ulcers in the duodenum, the short intestine, into which the stomach opens. That can be cured if the walls of the intestines have not been eaten through. Ten days' fasting and a good course of saline cathartics will discourage and clear out the alambia bacilli. A half-pint of sour milk, soured with the Metchnikoff bacillus, plus careful living, will do the work and keep things right.

The hemorrhages in Mussolini's case are the dangerous sign. A disease like his killed Napoleon at St. Helena. But in Napoleon's case depression and despair did half the work. Mussolini has many interesting things to live for, and probably will live.

Fahnen are charged with murdering one William Nelson McClintock.

CHICAGO, Mar. 18—Through the alchemy of legal procedure, true bills, voted by the Cook county grand jury charging William Darling Shepherd and "Dr." Charles C. Faiman with murder in connection with the death of William Nelson McClintock, last blood heir to the McClintock millions, were to become formal indictments today.

This was the plan of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. Automatically Shepherd and Faiman become legal prisoners, which hitherto they have not been, and automatically Shepherd's writ of habeas corpus becomes useless, for Crowe has declared he will oppose all efforts to admit the prisoners to bail.

The State's next step will be preparation for what Crowe predicts will be one of the most sensational criminal trials in recent history—A trial which he believes will eclipse the battle for the lives of Nathan L. Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, slayers of Robert Franks.

Discover New Evidence.

Excepting for the action of the grand jury in voting true bills late yesterday, the most important development in the case in the last few hours was admittedly the discovery of evidence tending to corroborate the confession of Dr. Faiman that he supplied Shepherd with death-dealing typhoid bacilli from cultures at his National University of Science.

This partial corroboration came from Robert White, a former aid of Faiman's at his university. White was located early today and brought to the state's attorney's office. He singled Shepherd out from several other men and positively identified him as the man who, on one occasion at least, had visited Faiman's school.

"He appeared so interested," White said, "that I took him on a little tour of inspection. After a time he left, saying he would be back later."

And to this accusation, Shepherd shot out his only term of denial—"liar."

Witness Tells Story.

White, in consequence of the importance of his testimony, will be held under guard by State's Attorney Crowe.

Before he was confronted with Shepherd he was closely questioned by the assistant prosecutors. He said he was 28 years old and that he lived at 6046 University avenue. He declared that he had seen a student at the Faiman institution and that he worked for Faiman in part payment of his tuition fees.

"I remember a man who visited the school in October of 1923," he told his questioneers. "I was the only person in the office, others having gone to lunch. This man I speak of came in and asked to see the registrar. I told him the registrar was out but that he could see President Faiman if he would wait. He did so, and during the time that passed he asked many questions about the school and its laboratory equipment."

Letter is Found.

In addition to the identification and corroboration of White's statements, there was further substantiation of Faiman's confession in the form of a letter to Dwight G. Wallace, 22 West Monroe street, an architect.

This letter made an appointment between Faiman and Wallace at which plans for a new college and medical school were discussed. Marginal notes indicated that Faiman expected to invest approximately $150,000 and that capital of $100,000 was needed. According to the Faiman confession, he was to receive $100,000 from Shepherd when the latter received the $1,000,000 McClintock estate in return for "help" in eliminating Billy.

An attempt to gather up the loose reins of the case and bring out corroborative evidence will be started today immediately after the formal indictments are returned. It is not expected the case will go to trial for at least two months.

First Niles Riot Trial Ends; Greco Is Found Guilty

WARREN, O., Mar. 18—Peter Greco, first of the more than 100 indicted for offenses growing out of the Klan and anti-Klan rioting at Niles November 1, today was found guilty of carrying concealed deadly weapons. The jury deliberated 32 minutes, the first ballot standing 11 to 1 for conviction.

The defense immediately filed a motion for a new trial, and Judge J. S. Thomas reserved sentence.

Under Ohio laws, Greco, alleged to have been a leader in the Knights of the Flaming Circle, anti-Klan organization, may be sentenced to not less than one year or more than three years in the Ohio penitentiary, and fined $500.

Louis Corro, another alleged member of the anti-Klan organization, was immediately ordered into the box and his trial started.

A bitter attack upon Mayor Harvey Kistler, of Niles, featured the closing address of O. E. Diser, chief defense counsel. Diser declared that Kistler was "responsible for the rioting," and asserted that during the rioting the mayor was not at his post of duty but was "at Klan field swearing in special policemen."

"The mayor," he added, "along with several other Trumbull county officials, and not this defendant, should be the ones before you in this court."

Attorney General, On Way to Capital, Faces Many Problems

WASHINGTON, Mar. 18—When John Garibaldi Sargent, the new attorney-general, steps into the department of justice tomorrow, he will confront an array of complex issues and problems such as few of his predecessors have faced at the outset of their administrations.

The new attorney-general is described by his few intimates in Washington as a rugged country lawyer with a record of "quiet industry." His assistants at the department admitted today that the mountainous stack of work at the department would require all his ruggedness and yankee ingenuity.

The attorney-general was due to arrive in Washington this afternoon for his first conference with Mr. Coolidge. He was to go direct to the White House, where he will be a guest for several days.

Daniels does not believe the country is in a terrible condition. Admitting that the tendency is to blame the current administration always for economic ills, he pointed out that every citizen should help to make the country what he wants it to be.

The beauty of Ohio valley scenery was not overlooked by the former navy head during his brief visit here. His comments, especially during a motor trip last evening through the countryside north of Wellsville, were frequent.

Court Bill

fices of five justices of the peace in Liverpool township would automatically be abolished with the establishment of the court.

Despite the fact that Governor Donahey last Saturday, vetoed the Ashtabula municipal court measure, friends of the bill hope that he will sign the East Liverpool proposal. Governor Donahey, it is said, is opposed to the establishment of municipal courts because of the lack of a uniform system governing their operation.

The governor has 10 days in which to sign or veto the measure. Should he fail to act within that time, it becomes a law without his signature.

The Guilford park bill provides for the purchase of approximately 500 acres of land in the vicinity of the old Guildford dam, about six miles north of Lisbon, for a state park. The bill carries with it an appropriation of $32,000 for the land and also an appropriation of $15,300 with which to close up the opening in the canal embankment, which was made when the canal was drained many years ago.

Governor Donahey has pledged his support of the bill and will sign it, according to members of the Columbiana County Fish and Game Protective association, sponsors of the measure.

Sentence is Suspended.

A suspended sentence of $100 and costs and 10 days in jail was meted out yesterday by Justice P. V. Mackall, to J. Russell on a charge of contributing toward the delinquency of his minor children.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Mar. 18—With the uncertainty over the St. Paul railroad reorganization removed and a considerable volume of short lines to be covered, the market appeared ready for a rally today and prices of industrial and railroad stocks displayed a firm tone in the early trading.

First prices for many of the market leaders like American Can, Allis Chalmers in the industrials, Willys Overland preferred in the Motors and Union Pacific and Norfolk and Western in the rails, were up to 1 3/4 points in the initial sales.

The financial district received with complacency the formal announcement of the decsion of the St. Paul railroad directors to readjust the financial structure of the road, the anthat has been hanging over the markets for about two months. The junior bonds fared worse in the selling than the stocks, the 1925 maturities of the bonds losing about 4 points additional while the common and preferred stocks actually gained fractionally in the early trading.

Confidence also returned to the main list of railroad stocks which were in retreat in the first two sessions of the week. Union Pacific, Rock Island, Norfolk and Western, Atchison and other leaders in the railroad list were in good demand at a point or more higher.

Under the leadership of the Pan-Americans, oil stocks made a much better showing than during yesterday' break.

The Motor stocks recovered, with Hudson and Willys Overland preferred in the lead and Studebaker and General Motors advancing in good form. The so-called Durant stocks, Cast Iron Pipe, Independent Oil and Gas, American Safety Razor and Universal Pipe sold up from 2 to 10 points. Copper and Sugar stocks were dull. Equipment stocks strong.

Call money renewed at 3½ per cent.

Will Punish Parents Who Neglect Children In Mountain State

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March.—The sharp teeth of the law are going to sink deeply into the pocketbook of parents responsible for the delinquency of their children.

And these teeth are sufficiently sharp to amputate cleanly $500 from the bankroll of a parent adjudged guilty.

Judge Morgan Owen has become indignant over the many cases of child delinquency caused by parents and has started a campaign to bring it to an end.

"In 99 cases out of each hundred coming before me the fault of the child rests entirely with the parents," he declared.

American locomotives are being installed on the Central Railway of Rio de Janeiro.

YOUR HEALTH

Erysipelas Is Not Catching But Needs Quick Relief

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DR COPELAND

THERE are a lot of mean diseases. No matter what you have you wish you had something else. When you get erysipelas, you certainly are sorry it isn't almost any other ailment.

The most common form of this disease attacks the face and head. It used to be regarded as a "catching disease." It is known now to be due to infection with a particular germ. If you can escape the germ you won't get erysipelas.

Like most of the so-called infectious diseases the attacks begins with a chill and vomiting. Then the fever comes on, increasing quickly to 103 to 104 and even 105 degrees.

A red spot appears somewhere on the skin. This patch surrounds the place where the infecting germ entered, or it may come at some place where the skin and mucous membrane join. One common place is at the corner of the mouth. Another is the corner of the eye.

No matter where it begins the patch of redness quickly spreads. The remarkable thing is that the signs of the spot are always hard and raised up above the level of the adjoining and as yet uninvolved skin. There is a sharp border line.

The swelling is very great and very hard. The face and head appear terribly swollen. The eyes may be closed in consequence.

The surface may be shiny red and smooth or there may be blisters on the skin. The surface is painful to the touch. On pressure there may be pitting of the surface and slow return of the skin on release of the pressure.

In a few days the redness and swelling begin to decrease and gradually fade away. There will be scaling of the surface and gradual return to normal appearance.

There are many applications for relief of the local symptoms. Ichthyol either in a watery solution or an ointment is a common remedy. The water solution is usually 20-50 per cent the ointment 20-40 per cent. It is painted on the affected surface.

For the intense itching so common to erysipelas hyposulphite of soda may be used. One tablespoonful of the hyposulphite to one ounce of water is the proportion. This may be applied on gauze, being sure always to keep the dressings well saturated.

In every case of erysipelas the general health must be built up. Fresh air and sunshine in the sickroom will do much to help the patient to complete recovery.

guard against any panic or disorder.

The rescue work was gotten well in hand by Chief Lambie, and efforts to reach the imprisoned miners were proceeding smoothly and with all possible rapidity.

The shaft is 303 feet deep and the workings cover many miles under the hills.

The mine has been working on an open shop basis since last October.

Throughout the night while rescue efforts were being made, scores of women and children crowded around the mouth of the mine awaiting word from the entombed miners. State police and county officers endeavored fruitlessly to force the hysterical women back.

"There'll be another explosion," the officers yelled.

IF KIDNEYS BOTHER TRY DOSE OF SALTS

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with litha, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Joseph Kinney, operating a fleet of transfer trucks out of Pittsburgh, and distributing merchandise to a syndicate of chain stores in this county, had two trucks picked up on the Cox highway shortly after midnight by Deputy Sheriff Henry Burbon, and Kinney, who was following the trucks in an automobile, was fined $100 and costs for the overweight on each truck in a Lisbon court Wednesday morning.

Four Damage Suits Filed Here; Total of $40,000 Sought

Four actions, wherein a total of $40,000 damages has been asked, have been filed in common pleas court, three suits being filed by the law firm of Metzgar & McCarty, of Salem, where $20,000 is the amount of damages sought, and another cause was filed by Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, wherein $20,000 damages is sought.

Katie Katz, of Wellsville, boarded a car of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company in the Diamond, East Liverpool, at 4 o'clock the afternoon of September 25, last year, to go to Wellsville, the petition against the traction company reads. At Lisbon and Second street, Wellsville, as she was alighting from the car, the car started suddenly and she was thrown violently to the street, injuring her, she declares, in such a manner that she was not able to leave her home until March 12.

Michael Media, through his counsel, Metzgar & McCarty, of Salem, has sued the city of Salem for $10,000 damages and $100 medical bill. Media claims he was injured by slipping on the ice on the sidewalk at North Howard and Roosevelt avenue, Salem, at 10 o'clock the night of January 10, 1925. The ice was caused by water, he alleges, dripping from an awning extending out over the sidewalk from the Tomlinson grocery. Media says he fractured the bones of his right arm, that he spent $100 in medical fees, and that the city showed negligence in permitting the awning to be in the position it was.

J. Brooke Allen and Ruth E. Allen, through the same counsel, have sued the city of Salem for $5,000 damages. The action is another of the "sewer suits," as these actions have been classified. Allen owns a farm in section 26, Perry township, and the petition claims that the Salem sewer has damaged his property.

A similar action and also for $5,000 damages has been filed by the same counsel in behalf of Norman Butler, who owns a farm in section 7, Green township, Mahoning county.

Two Cars Wrecked.

A touring car driven by O. H. Kerr of Youngstown was wrecked and knocked over in the field near East Palestine on the Cox highway shortly after midnight and a car driven by Elmer Hall, also of Youngstown was also wrecked at the same point as a result of a collision between the two cars.

Kerr was taken before Justice of the Peace O. H. Butts at East Palestine and charged with driving a car while intoxicated. He entered a plea of not guilty and posted bond for a future hearing.

To File Tax Returns.

Oil and gas companies operating in this county will file their county tax returns as soon as they receive their March "run" tickets. These reports will be filed early in April, according to Deputy County Auditor Randall Hamilton.

Listing day for the return of personal taxes has been set for Monday, April 13.

Reports from incorporated companies have about all been filed.

License Record Broken.

More than 2,800 dog licenses have been issued in this county so far this year, the record being far ahead of that for the corresponding period during 1924. Fear of having charges filed against them for non-payment of the dog license tax is said to be the reason why the demand for the tags is so heavy at this time.

Marriage Licenses.

Marriage license has been granted Eunice A. Dorff and Americus Graham. Mr. Graham is a farmer and resides in West Virginia, while his bride has been employed as a pottery worker in East Liverpool.

A marriage license has been issued to Harry Jackson and Ella Bailey, of East Liverpool. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bailey.

POEMS THAT LIVE

Recessional.

God of our fathers, known of old,—
Lord of our far-flung battle line,—
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine,—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies,
The captains and the kings depart:
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

Far-called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headland sinks the fire.
Lo! all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Ninevah and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, sapre us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

If drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not thee in awe
Such boasting as the Gentiles use
Or lesser breeds without the law,—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on thy people, Lord!

CAPTAIN BLOOD

by RAFAEL SABATINI

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitagraph picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, is sent to the Barbadoes as a slave under orders of King James. There at the behest of Arabella Bishop, niece of the military commander, Colonel Bishop buys him. A Spanish galleon, under Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez, captures the city. Blood saves Mary Traill and Arabella. He leads his fellow rebels-convict on board the Cinco Llagas and captures the ship and Don Diego. Don Diego betrays him and navigates the ship to Hispaniola, where his brother's ship is in port. Captain Blood binds Don Diego to the mouth of a cannon and offers the Don's son, Esteban, the alternative of seeing his father die, or to tell his uncle that all is well on board the Cinco Llagas. The boy accepts and they visit the galleon, where the youth makes peace with his uncle. They return to the Cinco Llagas and young Esteban learns that Blood had tricked him; his father was dead when the body was bound to the cannon. Blood sails for Tortuga, the rendezvous of buccaneers on the Spanish Main.

CHAPTER XIII

TORTUGA

At daybreak Don Esteban and his followers were put off in a boat. Two days later, the Cinco Llagas sailed into the rock-bound bay of Cayona, which nature seemed to have designed for the stronghold of those who had appropriated it.

It was Blood's original intention to make his way to France or Holland. But in the long weeks of waiting at Tortuga for a ship to convey him to one or the other of these countries, his resources dwindled, and finally vanished. Also, there was a good deal to oppress Peter Blood. There was the thought of Arabella Bishop. He was maddened by the tormenting lure of the unattainable. He desired Arabella, yet knew her beyond his reach irrevocably and for all time. He was, when all is said, an escaped slave, an outlaw in his own land and a homeless outcast in any other. There remained the sea, which is free to all, and particularly alluring to those who feel themselves at war with humanity. And temptations proceeded not only from adventurous buccaneering acquaintances in the taverns of that evil haven of Tortuga, but even from M. d'Ogeron, the governor of the island, who levied as his harbor dues a percentage of one-tenth of all spoils brought into the bay, and who profited further by commissions upon money which he was desired to convert into bills of exchange upon France.

Moreover, to a man, those who had escaped with Peter Blood from the Barbados plantations, and who, consequently, like himself, knew not wither to turn, were all resolved upon joining the great Brotherhood of the Coast, as those rovers called themselves. And they united theirs to the other voices that were persuading Blood, demanding that he should continue now in the leadership which he had enjoyed since they had left Barbados, and swearing to follow him loyally whithersoever he should lead them.

If he resisted so long, it was the thought of Arabella Bishop that restrained him. And so, although he might entertain no delusive hope of ever winning her for his own, of ever seeing her again, yet the memory of her was to abide in his soul as a bitter-sweet, purifying influence.

The resolve being taken, he went actively to work. Ogeron, most accommodating of governors, advanced him money for the proper equipment of his ship, the Cinco Llagas, which he renamed the Arabella. To the score of followers he already possessed he added three-score more, picking his men with caution and discrimination (and he was an exceptional judge of men) from amongst the adventurers of Tortuga. With them all he entered into the articles usual among the Brethren of the Coast, under which each man was to be paid by a share in the prizes captured.

Towards the end of December, when the hurricane season had blown itself out, he put to sea in his well-found, well-manned ship, and before he returned in the following May from a protracted and adventurous cruise the fame of Captain Peter Blood had run like ripples before the breeze across the face of the Caribbean Sea.

One day, as he sat with Hagthorpe and Wolverstone over a pipe and a bottle of rum in the stifling reek of tar and stale tobacco of a waterside tavern, he was accosted by a splendid ruffian in a gold laced coat of dark blue satin, with a crimson sash, a foot wide, about the waist.

"C'est vous qu'on appelle Le Sang?" the fellow hailed him.

"My name," he said, "is Peter Blood. The Spaniards know me by Don Pedro Sangre, and a Frenchman may call me Le Sang if he pleases."

"Good! "My name," he informed the three men, two of whom at least were eyeing him askance, "it is Levasseur. You may have heard of me."

They had, indeed. He commanded a privateer of twenty guns that had dropped anchor in the bay a week ago, manned by a crew mainly composed of French boucan-hunters from Northern Hispaniola, men who had good cause to hate the Spaniard with an intensity exceeding that of the English. Levasseur had brought them back to Tortuga from an indifferently successful cruise. A roaring, quarrelsome, hard-drinking, hard-gaming scoundrel, his reputation as a buccaneer stood high among the wild Brethren of the Coast.

It was current gossip that even Mademoiselle d'Ogeron, the governor's daughter, had been caught in the snare of his wild attractiveness, and that Levasseur had gone the length of audacity of asking her hand in marriage of her father. M. d'Ogeron had shown him the door.

This was the man who now thrust himself upon Captain Blood with a proposal of association, offering him not only his sword, but his ship and the men who sailed in her.

Because he disliked the man, Captain Blood would not commit himself at once. But, because he liked the proposal, he consented to consider it. Being afterwards pressed by both Hagthorpe and Wolverstone, who did not share his own personal dislike of the Frenchman, the end of the matter was that within a week articles were drawn up between Levasseur and Blood, and signed by them, and, as was usual, by the chosen representatives of their followers. These articles contained the common provisions that, should the two vessels separate, a strict account must afterwards be rendered of all prizes severally taken, whilst the vessel taking a prize should retain three-fifths of its value, surrendering two fifths to its associate.

That night Levasseur slept on board his ship, which, with characteristic flamboyance, he had named La Foudre, and there on the following day he received a visit from Captain Blood, whom he greeted half mockingly as his admiral. Levasseur entertained his admiral to dinner, and jointly they drank success to the expedition, so copiously on the part of Levasseur that when the time came to separate he was as nearly drunk as it seemed possible for him to be and yet retain his understanding. Captain Blood was a little heavy hearted. I have said that he was a judge of men, and his judgment of Levasseur filled him with misgivings, which were growing heavier, in a measure, as the hour of departure approached.

CHAPTER XIV

LEVASSEUR'S HEROICS

It would be somewhere about ten o'clock on the following morning, a full hour before the time appointed for sailing, when a canoe brought up alongside La Foudre and a half-caste Indian stepped out of her and went up the ladder. He was the bearer of a folded scrap of paper for Captain Levasseur. Its contents may be roughly translated thus:

"My well-beloved: I am in the Dutch brig Jongvrouw, which is about to sail. Resolved to separate us forever, my cruel father is sending me to Europe in my brother's charge. I implore you, come to my rescue. Deliver me, my well-beloved hero! Your desolated Madelon, who loves you."

The well-beloved hero was moved to the soul of him by that passionate appeal. His scowling glance swept the bay for the Dutch brig, which he knew had been due to sail for Amsterdam with a cargo of hides and tobacco. He roared out the question in his mind.

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, does the work without blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

DESPAIRED OF EVER SEEING A WELL DAY AGAIN

Young Woman Suffered With Catarrh. Had to Go to a Hospital for Treatment

World's Tonic Brings Great Relief in Few Weeks.

"When they took me to a hospital I despaired of ever seeing a well day again. For a long time I had suffered from catarrh of the stomach and head and fell off from 137 to 105 pounds. I was so weak that I could not dress myself let alone do anything about the house. I just ached all over. My stomach was so weak and my digestion so poor I had to live on the lightest of food.

"I suffered all the time with my head and nose stopped up, had dizzy spells and felt so run down I did not care whether I lived or died. Even my eyes pained me and the pains would extend to the back of my head. I often had choking sensations in my throat and smothering spells. I could not sleep enough to do any good owing to being choked up with so much mucus, and was so nervous that the slightest noise would cause a nervous chill.

"In this condition I went to the hospital. After a long rest and treatment daily for catarrh, I was barely able to get back home. One day a neighbor called and begged me to try World's Tonic. After talking it over that night with the family, they decided that I should start the use of World's Tonic the following day. They purchased three bottles and by the time I had finished the second one I was up and around the house and began to regain my strength. I have used five bottles and I think that my health is as good as in my girlhood days.

"One of my friends called recently and remarked what a wonderful change in a few weeks. I have no signs of catarrh now, my color is good, I can eat anything I want to in the way of solid foods and vegetables and everything tastes so good. Those nervous spells have entirely left me and the mucus has quit coming in my head and throat so now at night I sleep as sound as a baby. I was on the brink of despair and almost a physical wreck from this catarrh but am now a new woman with new hopes, new life and energy, and I owe it all to World's Tonic."

This is the remarkable story told in a recent letter to the World's Medicine Company office. Many women in East Liverpool and vicinity are having the same experience as Mrs. Sullivan, Richmond, Ind., and just dragging themselves about the house suffering with the worst form of catarrh. All they need is World's Tonic, which will give them quick and permanent relief.

Style Exposition

The Week of Weeks for the Feminine World is Here! What Shall We Wear? Here's the Answer Sent from Fashion Centers.

"Those were the good old days," sounds doubtful at times. You'd have to forget the spring clothes to really mean it. That is, if you're feminine. Who'd want a big "crinoline" when they can look girlish and slim in a tube-line cocoa crepe, for instance that swirls out surprisingly in godets? Who'd want a tight-fitting jacket when they can wrap a black ottoman coat about them—one with a fluffy fox band at the bottom,—or trip jauntily out in a "Prince-of-Wales" coat and a felt hat with a creased crown? And think of the gay chiffon scarfs—the flowers worn on everything this year—the trim little shoes with pert ties. Anyway—Spring, 1925, is here! And it's going to be thrilling. If you're going to be a colorful part of it—drop in this week, and begin planning your wardrobe.

NEW SPRING COATS AND DRESSES

13 to 19 Years — For Juniors and Misses — 13 to 19 Years

DRESSES Cunningly Modeled of Flat Crepes, Flannels, New Prints, for Sport and Street Wear. Priced $15.00 to $45.00.

COATS of Polaires, Velours, Silks, Flannels, the Popular Spring Styles in New Colors, $15 and up. (Second Floor)

The Coats

They've marched in with four new ideas, if you please. You hardly know which to choose. First, there's the jaunty "Prince-of-Wales" for the business woman and college girl. It's double breasted with trim little mannish lapels and patch pockets. Second, there's the ottoman silk coat—this is the "dressy" one. Ottoman is a heavy ribbed silk. Fur trims several of the models. Third, there's the model with the front rippling and flaring from the waist, often banded with fur. And fourth, there's the tube-line model that puffs out at the bottom into a lovely band of fur.

Priced at $25 to $100

The Ensembles

"Off again, on again." That's the fate of these ensembles. They're so smart when worn—and they're so adaptable to many occasions—afternoon teas, street wear, traveling, luncheons. Then there are hosts of variations. Slim coats of charmeen have frocks of bright silks, or of matching silks. In either case the same silk lines the coat. Then stunning kasha models use lustrous satins for the frock and trimming on the coat. Bands of contrasting color put on with rich embroidery, bands of fur or collars, enrich all of the models. Both light and dark colors are correct.

Priced at $19 to $98

The Frocks

The kind—and wise—designers have at last considered the active American woman. The frocks are still tube-like, but they have ingenious little line—but they have ingenious little tricks of giving fullness at the bottom. They use godets, swirling, circular flares, and the sport models use "kick pleats"—they're large box-pleats used usually in front. You can hardly picture how young—how alluring every single model is! Fine pin tucks, cream Venice lace, fine pleats, and big bright French flowers perched on the shoulders are the favored trimmings. Printed silks, kasha, and flat crepe are most used.

Priced at $10 to $95

Smart Hats

Wouldn't you like to buy your hat on Fifth Avenue? Well the trip isn't a bit necessary. Our buyer has just returned with stunning hats. You'll love the fit of the snug, soft felt hats with their modish little peaks, or creases in the crown, lending the modish exaggerate dheight. And you'll want to "pose" in stunning picture hats of purple milan, or of cocoa straw and maline, the famous American represented—Courier, Tenne, Meadowbrook.

You'll find all colors, all styles, all prices.

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Cornmeal Pancakes—One cup cornmeal scalded with one cup boiling water, let cool. One cup white flour, two eggs, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar, enough sweet milk to make batter. A good syrup to serve with these pancakes is made of one cup brown sugar to two-thirds cup granulated sugar and one-half cup water. Cook until it begins to thread.

Creole Chicken—Cut chicken in pieces for serving, sprinkle with salt and pepper melt half a cup of butter, add one medium sized onion finely chopped and saute chicken in this until golden brown. Remove chicken. Add four tablespoons of flour, two cups of chicken stock, two cups of tomato stew, one red pepper chopped fine, one-half cup of celery and salt and pepper to taste. Replace chicken in sauce and simmer until tender. Pour all into a dish and garnish with cooked macaroni and parsley.

Chile Con Carne—Cut two young chickens in serving pieces. Season with salt and pepper and saute in butter. Remove seeds and veins from eight red peppers and cook in boiling water until soft, mash and rub through a seive. Or use canned pimentos in place of red peppers. Add one finely chopped onion, two cloves and garlic chopped, one teaspoon of salt, the chicken, cover with boiling water and cook until tender.

Orange Pie—One fourth cup butter, three-fourths cup sugar, juice of one orange and half the grated rind, juice of one-half lemon, three egg yolks, one egg white, one tablespoon cornstarch, one cup boiling water. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, the orange and lemon, cornstarch, the beaten yolks of the eggs and the white of one egg, boiling water. Bake in one crust. When partly cooled cover with the meringue made of the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs to which six tablespoons of powdered sugar have been added gradually. Brown in a slow oven, 300 degrees Fahrenheit.

Baked Ham With Spinach—Clean and pick over spinach carefully and rinse well in four changes of cold water. Drain off all the water except that which clings to the leaves, place in a roasting pan. Cut it a little to make less bulky, and place on top of the spinach a slice of ham about two inches thick. Bake in medium oven for two hours. Baked potatoes are nice with this dish as they can be placed in the oven about 45 minutes before the ham and spinach are done.

Stuffed Peppers—Clean and boil pepers for 10 minutes. Remove from water and stuff with a mixture of cooked rice, tomatoes and a little onion. Put a slice of bacon across the top of each pepper, which gives it a good flavor, and bake in oven for 45 minutes.

Cabbage Salad—One pint shredded cabage, two dozen marsh-mallows (cut in pieces,) four slices of pineapple, three-quarters cup pecan nuts.

Dressing: One egg (well beaten,) one teaspoon flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, one-quarter cup vinegar, one-half cup sweet milk.

After removing the above from the fire, add butter size of an egg and, one teaspoon of sugar. Just before serving add one gill of whipped cream to this dressing, and mix the cabbage, marshmallow, pineapple and nuts with it. This is delicious. Serves four or five.

Date Whip—Dissolve a package of flavored gelatin in a pint of boiling water and when slightly thick beat to the consistency of whipped cream. Add one cup of date pulp and beat in mold. This is good with or without whipped cream.

SUGGESTIONS.

A hot water bottle should be filled about three-quarters full, never to capacity, when used for warming a bed. When used to relieve pain, one-half full is plenty, as it will then give a soothing effect without proving too heavy for comfort.

Don't hang starched clothes in a strong wind as the wind will blow out the starch.

Use the egg slicer to slice boiled beets. The slices will be more uniform and the task will be shorter.

IDEAS FOR THE NEEDLE-WOMAN.

A pretty way of joining bands of net in a boudoir cap is to use a half-inch width of satin and sew it vertically like little bars between. Another flattering fashion is to make the cap of net or lace and border it with flower petals of silk about the size of a half dollar, so that the color frames the face.

A sofa pillow that is both practical and attractive is made as follows: A round pillow about twice the depth or thickness of the usual one is banded around the middle with a width of material. Then the top and the bottom of the pillow are covered to match, but finished with a shirred frill where the middle strip joins them. The material used may be a soft gay and mulberry or blue patterned terry cloth.

A little vinegar in the rinse water with faded colored clothes will help to revive the colors.

Brown shoes that are too light in color may be darkened by rubbing with a solution of milk and ammonia. Then polish with a soft, dry cloth.

Salt mixed with bicarbonate of soda will remove all stains on china cups caused by tea and coffee.

In repairing baskets or pots of basketry paint used for indoor work is best. Two coats and sometimes also a coat of shellac are used.

Saucepans, baking tins and other cooking utensils should be filled with clean water as soon as their contents have been removed. This little precaution saves many minutes of the housewife's time when she comes to clean them.

Two thousand more vessels entered Rotterdam last year than in 1923.

STUDY PROBLEM

No Part of Car Given Less Attention Than Tag.

WASHINGTON, March — No part of the motor car is given less attention or more abuse than the license plate, its location and its illumination.

This statement is from Ray M. Hudson, chief of the Simplified Practice Bureau of the Department of Commerce, following an intensive study of license plates and their importance as a safety factor.

With a view toward improvement of conditions, the findings of the department have been submitted to all motor vehicle administrators, police chiefs, traffic and other authorities, as well as motor clubs, automobile manufacturers and organizations interested in highway safety. The report points out the need of standards for plate punching, mountings, size of plates, size of numerals, standards for material, standard codes of numbering, location on the motor car, illumination and co-ordination of color selection.

Standard Plates.

"The usefulness of the standard license plate in traffic control and regulation can be greatly enhanced by study and the co-operative action of all concerned," Hudson said. "It is obvious that as the importance of the license number is accentuated or emphasized, it will have a definite effect on many would-be reckless drivers. When it becomes easier to get the number, and there is less possibility of error, many a chance-taker will drive more sanely."

Standardization of license plates helps the car builder to provide a standard location for them, standard method of mounting and a standard method of adequately illuminating them, according to Hudson. It was pointed out that the traffic officer is aided in his work, making his inspection easier, more accurate and positive.

"The motorist gains to the extent to which such uniformity makes motoring safer for him," Hudson continued. "For the pedestrian it means he can make surer mental note of the reckless driver who almost 'got him.' Increasing the emphasis on easy identification of offenders would make it possible for the careful motorist to adopt the etiquette of the sea—where captains do not hesitate to report to the proper authorities those who wilfully or otherwise violate the rules.

Size of Plates.

"License plates, it was pointed out, range in dimensions from eight to 20 inches long and from four to six inches wide, with punchings which in but two-thirds of the states fit the slots provided. They offer no uniformity in the size of number, the spacing of digits nor the position and location of state initials, nor of the year of issue."

As to color co-ordination, it was advocated that combinations must be chosen with regard to those of neighboring states. Hudson said that if the color combinations continue to play such an important part in car identification, traffic officers must have eye tests for color values.

"War-time experience in camouflage demonstrated that visibility of certain colors is so uncertain as to bar them for choice for tags," he continued. "Scientific selection methods and assignment of color distribution to the various states in a manner calculated to keep like or similar combinations relatively far apart would make the plate a more significant means of identification than it is today."

ROGERS WINNER AT FOLLANSBEE

Elected Mayor Over Dr. O. J. Stevenson in Close Figlt.

Thomas H. Rogers was elected mayor of Follansbee yesterday over Dr. O. J. Stevenson in one of the most hotly contested elections in the history of the city. A total of 1246 votes were cast, the largest ever recorded in a municipal election. Rogers was elected by a vote of 767 to 479, and carried every candidate on the ticket with him. Te victorious ticket was backed by the anti-klan forces while the opposition had the support of the klan.

R. L. Ramsey was re-elected city attorney, no opposition, with a vote of 1097. R. L. Bollinger was returned victor over O. G. Bryte, Jr., 683 to 508. Chief of Police Lee Chambers was returned to office for the third time when he triumphed over Elmer Bell with a vote of 739 to 507. The race for city collector and treasurer resulted in a defeat for the only woman candidate on the ticket. Mrs. Elsie Lewis was defeated for the post by Delmar Jenkins, for six years, city clerk, by a vote of 787 to 437.

Thomas Reese was elected councilman for the first city ward over Ellison Waugh, 116 to 62. Edward J. Nolte was defeated in the race for councilman from the Second ward. The vote was overwhelming in favor of Charles H. Manion, 298 to 75. Jack Mathieson was elected from the Third ward over Robert Cash, 393 to 274.

When the result became known the victors staged a large celebration during which a huge cross was burned on a hilltop overlooking the town. At a given signal bombs and rockets were exploded from all quarters on the hillside and a long street parade with a band at its head, filed through the streets of the downtown section. No untoward incidents were reported to the police.

What is said to be the first chapter of the Knights of the Flaming Circle to be established in West Virginia was formed in the course of the election jollification. A delegation of the organization from Steubenville, came to Follansbee for the initiation of members and the installation of the local charter. Leaders say that 600 men were taken into the organization.

MARSH TO PRESIDE IN UPPER HOUSE

Senator Harvey Marsh was elected president pro tem of the state senate today by a vote of 15 to 14 following party lines and the puzzle which has kept the upper branch of the legislature unsettled since the beginning of the second session last week was brought to an end. Senator R. F. Kidd was the Democratic nominee in the election held after the Senate had voted 15 to 8 to amend its rules pro tem.

When the rules committee proposal to amend Senate rules and provide for election of a president pro tem came up for consideration, Senator Johnson, Democrat, asked whether a majority or a two-thirds vote was necessary to change the rule, and Acting President Marsh ruled that only a majority vote was necessary.

The vote on the rule was then taken, six of the Democratic senators remaining silent in their seats when their names were called, thus showing a record vote of 15 to 8 in favor of the new rule, replacing one that provided for designation by the president of a presiding officer to act in his place for not more than three days.

Permanent roads are a good investment —not an expense

Why America Must Have More Paved Highways

Almost every section of the United States is confronted by a traffic problem.

Month by month this problem is becoming more and more serious.

Hundred of cars pass a given point every hour on many of our state and county roads. Down-town city streets are jammed with traffic.

Think, too, how narrow many of our roads are, and how comparatively few paved highways there are in proportion to the steadily increasing number of cars.

If the motor vehicle is to continue giving the economic service of which it is capable, we must have more Concrete highways and widen those near large centers of population.

Every citizen should discuss highway needs of his community with his local authorities.

Your highway officials will do their part if given your support.

Why postpone meeting this pressing need?

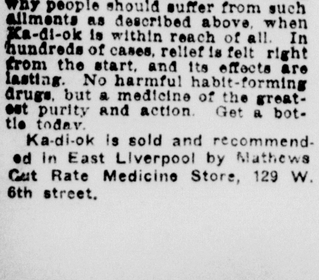
LIKENS HERSELF AS BACK FROM THE DEAD

Remarkable Recovery of Elm Grove, W. Va., Housewife, Almost Paralyzed From Kidney-Bladder Troubles; Thanks Ka-di-ok.



MRS. FRANCIS COOK,
Elm Grove, W. Va.

"I am like one back from the dead," was the statement made by Mrs. Farncis Cook, of Elm Grove, W. Va., to the Ka-di-ok representative, when asked as to her experience with Ka-di-ok.

Mrs. Cook suffered terribly from kidney and bladder trouble. She could not arise in bed without assistance, and only with great pain. She had doctored and tried almost everything brought to her attention, without securing relief. She saw Ka-di-ok advertised and highly recommended, and after taking four bottles made the above statement, adding that she received relief from the first dose of Ka-di-ok; that she was like the one read about in the Bible, "Ka-di-ok said to me take up thy bed and walk, and I did."

Her misery and pains have left her, she is no longer troubled with nervousness and headaches, is gaining some weight, eats and sleeps well, and gets up in the mornings full of strength and energy for the entire day. She says she is really glad to tell folks about Ka-di-ok, and what it did for her.

There is no reason in the world why people should suffer from such ailments as described above, when Ka-di-ok is within reach of all. In hundreds of cases, relief is felt right from the start, and its effects are lasting. No harmful habit-forming drugs, but a medicine of the greatest purity and action. Get a bottle today.

Ka-di-ok is sold and recommended in East Liverpool by Mathews Cut Rate Medicine Store, 129 W. 6th street.

Q. Are the round-the-world flyers married? F. H.

A. None of the round-the-world flyers is married. Lieut. Henry Ogden is on leave at his home in Mississippi and Lieut. Leigh Wade is lecturing under War department orders.

Q. Was the purchasing power of the farmers' dollar as great in 1924 as in 1920? W. H. S.

A. In 1924, it was but 83 cents, while in 1920, it was 85 cents. In 1921, it was 69 cents; 1922, 74 cents; and 1923 79 cents.

Q. Please throw some light on this. I have a radio and when my neighbor two miles distant talks to anyone over the telephone we can hear him over our radio. R. A. D.

A. The Loomis Radio College says that telephone wires appear to be acting as "aerials" in many locations. Frequently when we take up our telephone to communicate with some one over the line, we can hear the code being transmitted from Arlington, and sometimes broadcast music. Evidently the length and position of the wire is such that it responds to the audio frequency of the waves. In your case, the process seems to be reversed. Radio is all so new that there is room for plenty of research to be done, and no doubt several important discoveries concerning such things will be made during the next few years.

Q. Are Persian cats more delicate than ordinary cats? R. B.

A. A veterinarian says that mongrels are perhaps the healthiest cats. Persian cats are considered the healthiest breed of large cats, but careful attention must be given to their feeding and management.

Q. Is talc a sure sign that mineral ore is near? W. H. D.

A. This talc is not true commercial talc; it is a sort of residue or deposit that forms in metal mines in the course of time as the result of erosion. It is a fine silt. It is not an absolute indication of the presence of mineral in commercial deposits although miners generally like to find it as it is usually associated with metals. There is no definite rule as to how far ore is found after this deposit.

Q. What is the population of Florida? W. P. D.

A. The 1920 census gives 968,470. It is claimed that the population is increasing in leaps and bounds.

Q. What is a tyrannosaurus? R. C. E.

A. It is an extinct tyrant lizard which, when erect, stood 18 feet high. It was one of the most formidable of all the huge dinosaurs whose remains are found in the Cretaceous rocks of the western United States.

Q. What is meant by a kilocycle? J. W. R.

A. It means 1,000 cycles a second.

Q. Did the Chippewa Indians of Minnesota get a payment from the Government this winter? F. J. D. M.

A. They received $50 per capita.

Q. What is "fool's gold?" F. D. M.

A. The material commonly called "fool's gold" is iron pyrite, a combination of sulphur and iron in almost equal parts, which is used in making sulphuric acid. Iron pyrite can be distinguished from gold by the odor of sulphur which it gives off upon application of heat.

Q. In 1625, were the servants of the Virginia planters black or white? R. K.

A. White servitude was common at that time, and there were in Virginia 464 white servants and only 22 negroes. From about 1680 the black slave population increased rapidly. By 1750, half the population of this State were slaves.

Q. Is there any way to make common cabinet glue ispervious to water? A. C. B.

A. In order to render glue insoluble in water, even hot water, it is only necessary, when dissolving the glue for use, to add a little potassium bichromate to the water and to expose the glued part to the light. The proportion of potassium bichromate will vary with circumstances, but for most purposes about 1-50 of the amount of glue used will suffice.

PLAYLOTS CUT TOLL OF DEATH TO CHILDREN

Bureau Declares Movement Reduces Street Accidents.

SUBMITS REPORTS

Fewer Casualties When Children are Kept Off Highways.

NEW YORK—The toll of deaths and injuries to children in street accidents is reduced by playgrounds in many cities, according to the annual report of the Playground and Recreation association of America, which has just been made public.

In Duluth the Safety committee of the Chamber of Commerce placed markers at points on a map of the city where accidents had occurred. The committee was struck by the appearance of several practically spotless areas. Shortly afterward the chairman of the committee was passing a playground, and he stopped to watch the children at play. An idea came to him. He called the committee together, and they marked playground locations on the map. All the spotless areas proved to be territory immediately surrounding the playgrounds.

Albion, Michigan, in reviewing its work for the previous Summer season, when four playgrounds were conducted afternoons and evenings for eight weeks, reported only one serious injury to a child on the city streets.

In Massachusetts October has for several years been the most dangerous month in motor-vehicle accidents to children, due in agreat measure, according to Lewis E. McBrayne, General Manager of the Massachusetts Safety Council, to the fact that Summer playgrounds have been closed, and children have no place to play except on the streets.

There were no drowning accidents to children in Nashua, N. H., in the Winter of 1924, a record never before equaled in that community. This was attributed to the provision of safe skating areas by the Recreation commission. The skating rinks were lighted until 10 p. m. every night.

The National Safety council and Secretary Herbert Hoover's committee on Safety have presented the cooperation of the Playground and Recreation association of America in promoting the safety movement. The Automobile Chamber of Commerce of America recommends playgrounds as safety zones, according to the association. In its campaign for health and good citizenship through play, the Playground and Recreation association has been working for nineteen years. During this period the number of cities having public recreation grounds has increased from forty-one to more than 680. Last year the association's field workers gave service to more than 300 cities, it reports. The Correspondence bureau answered 19,000 requests for information and help Visitors from China, Japan, England, Russia, Canada and Mexico called at the New York headquarters for advice and information on recreational matters. The organization has a special bureau on vacations for employes, a bureau of community music, educational dramatics, publications and personel. Sixteen thousand members belong to the association.

VERSE AND WORSE

Victory

Bein' great, I reckon, lad, ain't nothin' much but jest
Facin' things with jest th' will t' do yer level best;
Mebby losin' sometimes, but when licked t' beat th' band,
Risin' up an' grinnin' an' jest holdin' out yer hand
To th' guy that trimmed yuh; fer t' lose an honest fight
Ain't no black disgrace, lad, if yuh take yer lickin' right.

Bein' strong, accordin' t' th' way I dope it out,
Ain't jest always winnin' in th' battle er th' bout;
But it's grinnin' sometimes when yer cryin' hard inside.
No one ever lost his strength until his courage died.
Strength is liftin' up yer face an' smilin' at th' sun
When yuh know down in yer heart yer jest as good as done.

Runnin' best ain't winnin' most, it's jest t' grimly run
Knowin' yuh'll be last t' finish when th' race is done.
What's the odds, if all th' field is far ahead o' you;
Trailin' with a winnin' heart's a mighty task t' do—
Bigger far than winnin', An yuh'll be a hero, lad,
Though th' whole world licks yuh—if yuh gave th' best yuh had.

OHIO— Famous for Its Colleges

ONE cannot travel far in Ohio without glimpsing a college. In fact an English writer was not far from right when in speaking of the Buckeye State, he said, "It's impossible to get out of ear shot of a college yell."

In Ohio's 37 institutions of higher education there are more than 30,000 students. These schools range from little colleges to great universities and afford the young people of the state the opportunity of obtaining a thorough education without leaving its borders.

The ever increasing number of students in Buckeye colleges gives evidence that not only is our population growing but that our standards of living are rising. In keeping pace with this growth and advancement The Ohio Bell Telephone Company will spend $71,000,000 in the next five years in extensions and betterment of service to meet the growing demand.

American League Winners Have Yanks to Beat, Says Mack

RUNYON SAYS

By DAMON RUNYON.
Copyright, 1925, International Feature Service, Inc.

JACK DEMPSEY thinks Tom Gibbons can whip Harry Wills. Jack Kearns thinks Wills can beat Gibbons. Kearns argues that Wills is too big and strong for Gibbons.

These opinions developed the other evening during a discussion of the probability of a match between "The Brown Panther of New Orleans" and the man from St. Paul.

"Gibbons is a good boxer, and at his best against big men," Dempsey said to this writer. "He will get in close to Wills and cut him down with body punches. I wouldn't be surprised if Gibbons knocked Wills out."

But Jack Kearns said, laconically:

"It will be another case of a good big man against a good little man, that's all."

Mickey Walker, welterweight champion of the world says Dempsey is the best second he ever had in his corner. Dempsey was Walker's chief second against Bert Colima, the Mexican.

"He is amazingly cool," Walker told the writer. "I looked at him a number of times while I was fighting and he never moved a muscle. But his eyes were a study. They were savage looking, as if he were fighting himself.

"Between the rounds he only said to me, 'you're doing O. K. Keep hitting him in the Darby Kelly.'"

For the information of the unsophisticated reader the writer will explain that "Darby Kelly" is Australian slang.

Dempsey and other coast boxers use this Australian lingo a great deal in their conversation. The key to the jargon is in rhyme. That is to say, the slang term rhymes with the word it covers, as for instance:

Darby Kelly, that's the belly.

The writer the other day heard a young man say to another:

"I'm going to have a bowl of chalk with the pot and pan."

What do you suppose he meant?

Let us see—

Bowl of chalk, that's a talk.

Pot and pan, that's a man.

Thus he meant he was going to have a talk with the man.

You say there's no sense to it. There's not much sense to any slang, until it is a matter of common usage.

Much of the Australian slang is frequently heard, and generally understood by those who understand ANY slang whatever, such as "twist and twirl" meaning girl, "storm and strife," meaning wife.

Here are a few other bits of the Australian afgot not as well known:

Joe Goss, that's the boss.
Cat and mouse, that's a house.
Mumbley pegs, that's the legs.
Lean and fat, that's your hat.
Jim Skinner, that's your dinner.
Joe Blake, that's a steak.
Fields of wheat, that's a street.
Shovel and broom, that's a room.
Simple Simon, that's a diamond.

After all it's a long way around to express a word.

You might not believe it possible but the heavyweight champion of the world appeared in a ring without even being introduced to the crowd.

That was the night he seconded Walker. No one paid any attention to him in the hubbub over the fighters. Bobby Barrett, of Philadelphia, Jimmy Duffy, of Oakland, otherwise Hymie Gold, and Dode Bercot, of Portland, all welterweights, were presented. Dempsey was scarcely noticed.

He has become almost commonplace in Los Angeles. The pugilistic public

BETHANY, W. Va., March 18.—The Bethany athletic board has authorized the purchase of gold emblems for all senior lettermen. This is in keeping with an established custom at the Bison school. Each year the members of the senior class who have been awarded varsity letters in any major sport during their undergraduate life at Bethany are presented with gold emblems of that sport. The following athletes will get the emblem: Football—Shoemake, Townsend, Gehring, LaPorte, Mackey, Roark, MacWherter, Hess, Manager Elliott.

Basketball—Shoemake, Roark, Manager LaPorte.

Baseball—Elliott, Roark, Gehring, LaPorte, Manager Hall.

Columbiana Loses Entire Court Squad

Coach Chas. McKain Not Certain of Returning.

COLUMBIANA, March 18.—Columbiana high school basketball hopes for the 1925-26 season will be dealt a crushing blow with the graduation this spring of the entire five first string players and practically all of the reserve men. Burkle, Crumbacher, Metz, and Brown, who started practically every game this year, are all seniors, as are Louthan, Ferrall, Nichols and Bell, substitutes. The only material left includes Dowd, Barr and Sitler.

Columbiana high made a determined bid for county laurels this season, but fell short, although the school put up a great fight all along the line.

Coach Charles McKain has been tendered several offers for next year, and as a result his return to Columbiana is considered uncertain.

The north countians rang the curtain down on their basketball activities Saturday night at Salem, losing two games to the Quakers who cinched the county title.

Columbiana won 16 out of 23 games, the hardest and longest schedule attempted by the school. They did not lose a game on their home court.

Meet in Inaugural Tilt Tomorrow Afternoon, Pairings Announced by Director Boone.

Central school basketball teams will have the honor of cracking the ice in the city grade school court tournament which opens tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the high school gymnasium.

At the drawings yesterday afternoon in the office of Athletic Director O. V. Boone, the two fives of the Fourth street school drew the opening numbers and will go to the mat in the inaugural battle.

Two games are on the board for Thursday afternoon. Following the Central clash, Washington and Neville will tangle.

Teams of the lower bracket mix in the evening at 7 o'clock, with Sixth street and Lincoln opening hostilities. Then Maplewood and Pleasant Heights will take up the battle.

McKinley drew a bye in the upper bracket and Garfield was similarly situated in the lower.

On Friday afternoon the winner of the Washington-Neville battle will meet McKinley, and the victor in the Maplewood-Heights tilt will take on Garfield.

The results will leave four teams in the running, two in the upper and two in the lower bracket.

The winner in the Washington-Neville-McKinley trio will play the winner of the Central A-B game on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. And the winner in the Maplewood-Heights-Garfield three will take on the victorious team in the Sixth street-Lincoln meeting in the second game Saturday afternoon. At the conclusion of these games, two teams will remain, and they will clash in the final on Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

All games will be of six minute quarters and alternating halves. Harry Davies will referee the tournament.

Jersey City Bowler Individual Leader

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 18.—Harry Mahlenbroch of Jersey City was on top of a large field today in the individual event at the American Bowling congress under way here. He went into the lead last night by rolling 202, 256 and 245 for a total of 703 in the three sets he bowled.

To accomplish the task of overcoming the lead of Dominick Devito, the Chicago ace, who was on top with 702 pins the Jersey man had to strike out from the sixth frame in his last game, a feat he duly accomplished.

The other leaders still held their positions, not a single competitor breaking into the panel in two men events. Some good tallies were recorded nevertheless. An outstanding feature was the performance of Bernard Cole, a 19 year old Lakewood, Ohio boy. He shot 605 in the five-man event, 235 in his singles games and 635 in his doubles, his total for the all-events being 1847 which put him in a triple tie for third place in the all events division.

Potters Will Clash With Crockery City

Only one engagement is scheduled in the "Y" industrial indoor baseball league tonight.

The Potters are carded to clash with the Crockery City team.

Say Hoyt Plans to Be an Undertaker

ST. PETERSBURG, March 18—Although the gentleman in question has neither seen fit to deny nor affirm the tidings, a report that Waite Hoyt, Yankee pitcher, is studying to be an undertaker has gained considerable credence here. It is said that the blond young man spent the off season working as an apprentice to a Brooklyn embalmer and when his baseball days are over plans to branch out for himself as a licensed director of ceremonies for deceased citizens.

Incidentally, the chances are more than good that Hoyt will get much experience in his adopted profession as embalmer of deceased ball games this Summer.

Last Night's Fights

At Cleveland—Al Corbett won decision from Benny Gershe, twelve rounds. Al Zeimer, Cleveland, and Eddie O'Dowd, Columbus, Ohio, drew eight rounds. Tommy Hughes, Detroit, won from Lew Perfett, New York, eight rounds. Morris McMullen, Cleveland, won from Ernie Miller, Akron, six rounds.

AT DAYTON, Ohio—Frankie Bob, Dayton, won wide decision over Red McDonald, Toledo, ten rounds; (featherweights.)

Joe Delaney, Dayton, won technical knockout over Joe O'Malley, Columbus, fifth round of a scheduled ten rounder.

O'Malley broke his hand in the fifth round. Delaney had all the five rounds when O'Malley was forced to quit.

AT NEW YORK—Ed. Keely, Bridgeport, Conn., won decision over Gordon Munce, New York, ten rounds. Ed. Garvey, South Bend, Ind., knocked out Frank Cese, third round.

Mountaineer Tennis Men to Name Leader

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Mar. 18.—Candidates for the West Virginia University varsity tennis squad will hold a meeting at Commencement hall tomorrow afternoon at five o'clock. Athletic department officials hope to have the racqueters start work next week and at tomorrow's meeting definite arrangements for the beginning of practice sessions will be made and a captain elected.

So far Director of Athletics H. A. Stansbury has been unable to secure a coach for the Mountaineer net squad. Captain Harlan L. Mumma, U. S. Army, who tutored the teams from 1920 to 1923, inclusive, is now stationed at Panama and Bill Steele one of the former West Point star's proteges, who took over the coaching reigns last spring, has graduated and is not located here at this time.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Toledoan Gets Chance.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., March 18.—Joe Giard, up from Toledo, will get his big opportunity tomorrow when the St. Louis Browns meet the Dodgers in the second exhibition encounter. Bob Lamotte, infielder, was on the casualty list with a touch of ptomaine poisoning today.

Rickey Watches Hurlers.

STOCKTON, Cal., March 18.—Frankhouse, Rhem, Hallahan, Paulson, Clough and Shields, of the hurling roster, occupied the attention today of Manager Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Sox Meet Shreveport.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 18.—The White Sox will take up with Shreveport again today. Manager Collins is much pleased with the form displayed by Red Faber, Robertson and Blankenship, all of whom have shown exceptional form in training.

Only Two Troubles.

AVALON, Cal., March 18.—Manager Killefer has two troubles today. One is the need of another twirler who could "bear down." The other is the need of some free style batters who could "bust" fences." With these Killefer said he would find the road to Pennantville an easy one.

Giants Blank Macks.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 18.—John McGraw couldn't help but show his appreciation today for another spring victory chalked up by his players. They defeated Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, five to nothing. Nehf, McQuillan and Barnes pitched for the Giants, while Rommel and Groves were on the mound for the Athletics. McGraw's men play Connie Mack's club at Fort Myers Thursday.

Corbett Wins From Gershe

CLEVELAND, March 18.—Benny Gershe, looking back to last night when he experienced his first setback in seventeen efforts, doubtless reflects that St. Patrick's Day is not the proper time to mixup with an Irishman. Whether it was the holiday, or what not, Corbett easily defeated the honors, having the best of the twelve rounds practically all the way. Only in the second did Gershe land a solid blow, and then he sent Corbett to his knees with a blow to the midriff upon which Corbett claimed a foul. Referee Hinkel disallowed the claim, however, and the fight went on, Corbett becoming better with every succeeding round.

Both men were under the required featherweight limit. Corbett weighed in at 125¾ pounds, and Gershe at 125.

Athletics' Leader Places 1925 Hopes In Young Shortstop

Intimates Success or Failure Rests With Galloway; "If he Delivers, we Ought to Land in Third at Least," Opines Connie.

By Davis J. Walsh.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 18.—Show Connie Elongated Mack a shortstop who can roam beyond the confines of a thumb tack and he will show you a ball club that will run one-two-three in the American league race this season. That, at least, was the purport of a few well chosen remarks from Cornelius today. He intimated rather strongly that success or failure for the Philadelphia Athletics of 1925 rested almost entirely with Clarence Galloway, regarded by some as the cream of American league shortstops two years ago.

Last season the cream turned a bit sour. The young man, in fact, fared so badly that many critics were pleased to look upon his earlier showing as a mere gesture with neither permanence nor definite meaning. Cornelius, of course, hopes for the best.

"Galloway looks good this spring," Mack declared today. "And I have come to regard this showing last year as one of those things that happen to all ball players. If he comes through I don't see how they can keep us out of third place at the very least. That is making what amounts to a prediction, and, as a rule, I avoid doing this. However, I'll say this much: The team that wins the pennant will have to beat the Yankees."

Perhaps Conie believes he has the club in question. He certainly thinks he has something highly gratifying. He usually has a harried look in his bleak, grey eye. Today he was as genial as a Rotarian on a vacation. He firly beamed on one and all and those close to the ball club allege that his glee is occasioned by the fact that he looks for Robert "Lefty" Groves, his new $100,000 pitcher, to add at least twenty victories to the total compiled by a staff that already was rated within the bounds of adequacy. Cornelius, to cover the purchase, has given Jack Dunn, of Baltimore, enough to keep the ball club meeting payments for the next fifteen years. If this bit of luxury should prove a flop, Cornelius will have plenty of time in which to thoroughly gnash the insicors. He, however, expects to masticate in moderation and grow old gracefully.

"Groves is one of the greatest lefthanders I have loked at in years," he said.

"He has terrific speed and what is unusual in a lefthander, great control. He will give me my first good pitching staff since the days of Bender, Plank and Coombs. The rest of the staff will be Rommel, Harris, Heimach, Grey, Meeker, Baumgartner and one or two others.

"Outside of Rommell my pitchers lacked steadiness in other years. I think experience has taught them to overcome this drawback."

Further reason for the Mackian air of satisfaction is said to emanate from the fact that he was tendered the free and highly beneficial air to Ira Thomas, Danny Murphy and Harry Davis, his old board of strategy and has replied by appointing his son, Earl, as field captain. This is an innovation if nothing else. It furnished the first example in major league history of a non-playing field captain.

Jimmie Dykos has been given the regular position at third base for the first time in several years. He should make good. If he doesn't Sam Hallo will be ready to step in.

On the other side of Galloway will be Max Bishop, with Joe Hauser playing first base. Bob Hipps of Furman university, who may or may not escape the nickname of "Snakes," also is making gestures around first base, but "Bing" Miller is slated as Hauser's understudy, if any. Bing is the regular right fielder. The other two outfielders will be Simmons and Will Lamar with Frank Welch in reserve. Bill Bagwell, up again from Galveston, and Walter French, former West Point football player, are around and about, but going nowhere.

Sportsmen to Hold Meet

Members of the East Liverpool branch of the Columbiana County Fish and Game Protective association will hold their regular session tomorrow evening in the Fowler building.

Reports on membership and other business affairs of the organization will be up for consideration.

J. C. Miller, member of the local branch and secretary of the county organization, last night received from Representative Ralph W. Emmons a telegram which stated that the Guilford park bill had been approved by the house and has gone to the senate where it will be taken in charge by Senator Carpenter.

Having installed 700 twenty-ton freight cars, the Great Western Railway of England is trying, by offering reduced car-lot rates, to arouse interest of shippers in the use of what is to them unusually large carriers.

A new success added to ten years of succeeding

Already it seems destined to be the most sought after Chandler in ten years of Chandler history.

It is the only closed car that combines at touring car price the luxury of Fisher body craftsmanship and the impressive Chandler performance.

It is the only Coach that offers the Pikes Peak Motor and the Traffic Transmission.

The durability of the Chandler chassis was proved at Culver City, Cal., February 4th, when a roadster covered one thousand miles in 689 minutes, an average of 86.96 miles per hour—the fastest 1000 miles ever made on wheels.

Chandler success is the just reward of ten years of sound method; ten years which today find Chandler selling the best car of its history, amply financed, strongly entrenched with a growing dealer organization, and basing growth on conservative policies that give due regard to new economic conditions prevailing in the industry.

Lutherans Defeat M. E.

Playing a brand of basketball that was too fast for their opponents, the Lutheran passers of the Sunday school circuit swamped the First Methodist Episcopal five last night on the high school court by the count of 50 to 17.

Only in the first quarter did the Methodists develop competent resistance. In this period they held their foes to a score of 9 to 6. The Lutherans opened their big guns in the second period and when the smoke had cleared away the count was 25 to 9. They scored 11 more points in the third period while the Methodists made two. The Lutherans sent in their reserves in the fourth quarter and they outscored the opposition. G. Woessner, Kimes, Schneidmiller and Kibble were the Lutheran luminaries. Karns, Nease and Wolfe were the best performers for the losers.

The Methodist Juniors easily won from the Lutheran Juniors in the preliminary, 46 to 11. The lineups:

Dempsey is commencing to scent the resin dust again, no doubt of that.

He is in his gymnasium daily, looking after all the details, watching the different boxers without interest. He practically managed Walker for the Colima fight. This is twice he has acted as a second.

He went to San Diego to be behind Joe Benjamin. It was on that trip he got married. He has worked out in his gymnasium at least once, boxing with Tod Morgan, a classy young featherweight of the west coast.

Remember the writer's prediction, that Dempsey will fight again.

He is suffering just now from a curious psychology. He THINKS for the moment that he is never to fight again. For a time he got entirely away from the game, from its environments, its associations.

He didn't remain away long. Now he is back in the very thick of it. The thud of boxing gloves is constantly in his ears. He is again discussing other fighters, as he discussed Wills and Gibbons with the writer.

It may be months yet, but Dempsey will be back for more. THEY ALWAYS COME BACK FOR MORE.

One Long Journey.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

When from your front yard you look toward the faint cloud of stars that astronomers call NGC 6822 you are looking far into space. That is about the farthest spot in the universe of which the distance has been measured.

The light that strikes the eye looking at NGC 6822 through the telescope has been traveling toward us for 1,000,000 "light years." To learn what a 1,000,000 light years amount to in miles, find out how many seconds there are in 1,000,000 years. Then multiply the total by 186,000, the number of miles that light travels per second and you have it. Don't forget the leap years.

Scientists of Harvard observatory say that NGC 6822 is outside of the milky way in which case it is part of "another universe." The milky way in the universe is like a small cluster of frog's eggs floating in the Pacific ocean. only you would have to multiply the Pacific ocean a few quadrillions of times to get the right proportions and then it wouldn't be big enough, no matter what Einstein says about curved lines.

The dirigible Los Angeles, traveling at average high speed could take you to NGC 6822 in a little more than thirty-three million years. This is a bik universe and any human mind convinced that it can define, explain or conceive the power back of it, has considerable confidence in itself.

Just as the virtuous complain that women leave nothing to the imagination, they suddenly decide to cover up again. "Dress is to be more subtle this season than in other seasons."

That isn't saying much, for there is nothing subtle about a lady bare backed to her waist in the evening with a skirt above her knees in the daytime.

But fashion really means to reform for the moment. Arms that have been naked from the top of the shoulder down looking in some mottled cases like a butcher shop exhibit are now to be covered with "soft mysterious veiling," thanks for that, with or without the mystery and shawl of brilliant colors, worn to "reavel personality" will cover up almost everything.

Thus again we learn that it is always darkest before dawn. Women go just so far in one direction and then turn around and go the other way. That's their charm.

Japan's house of peers Monday passed a new land law forbidding ownership of Japanese land by citizens of countries that forbid land owning by Japanese. This means you and you must give up any idea of owning a lot in Tokio and trying out your scheme for an earthquake-proof bungalow.

No American will complain of the Japanese law. Asia for Asiatics, America for Americans and perfect good will between the two continents is what we favor and Japanese will please notice we don't think our national honor injured, merely because Japan wants Japanese land for Japanese people.

The University of Washington, which prepares young men of the northwest for their great opportunities, deides to develop poets with special lessons in the dramatic art department. First class poets are needed to describe the beauties of water, land and sky, around Seattle, but can you really make poets to order? And is not poetry a semi-extinct form of expression, invented as an aid to memory when men could not read or write.

Poets are born. Consider Keats, a young clerk from a chemist's shop. He sees in a friend's room for the first time in his life, the works of Homer, takes the Iliad with him, stays up all night and reads the volume through, then writes his poem.

On looking into Champman's Homer, read that, it could all go in one-half of this column, and ask yourself how anybody could be taught to write that last line:

"Silent on a peak in Darien."

You might as well try to teach a china hen to lay real eggs.

The United States is rubbing its eyes and waking up a little, orders 86 flying machines, made in the United States. For 10 machines by the Curtis company $250,000 will be paid and fro 75 from the Douglas company, $883,000. That's a start and multiplied by a hundred, it would give the country a good beginning for an air fleet.

Fortunately Henry Ford and his son, Edsel B. Ford, are in the aircraft field. They will let us know what a flying machine ought to cost, and something about the theory that the "flying life" of an airplane engine is only about 100 hours.

The Fords will give you an engine that without expensive renewal of parts, will fly around the world 10 times. They don't believe in an en-

34 MINERS IMPRISONED BY BARRACKVILLE, W. VA., BLAST BELIEVED DEAD

HOPE REVIVED FOR ENTOMBED

AT THE MOUTH OF MINE NO. 41, BARRACKVILLE, W. Va., March 18.—Hopes were revived for the lives of the 34 men entombed since late last night by an explosion in the mine here of the Bethlehem Mines & Steel Corporation this afternoon when mine rescue officials joined in denying the false reports which were widely circulated here and sent out by newspaper correspondents that two of the men had been found dead near the foot of the mine shaft.

Rescue Workers, Burrowing Way Through Debris, Predict None of Entombed is Alive.

PLANT WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

Burst of Flame Follows Deafening Report as Tipple Crumbles and Mine is Darkened.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., March 18.—None of the 34 miners imprisoned by a blast in mine 41 of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation at Barrackville, near here, will be found alive, according to leaders in the rescue work today.

Burrowing their way through the debris and hampered by falls of rock and lack of ventilation, the rescue squad of 25 men will not reach the entombed miners until late today, those in charge said.

One of the most terrific in mining annals here, the explosion wrecked the plant, virtually demolished the camp store, shattered windows and doors throughout Barrackville and was felt plainly here.

Three Arrests Made.

First came a dull rumbling followed by a deafening report. Then the heavens took on a ghastly glow from a burst of flame mounting hundreds of feet in the air. The flame shortly was obscured by great clouds of dense black smoke.

The tipple was wrecked and the electric lighting system put completely out of commission leaving the mine in darkness.

In 1916 the same mine was wrecked by a gas explosion that killed 19 miners and a short time later two members of the Pittsburgh bureau of mines were killed by after damp while trying to penetrate the workings of the mine.

Although all officials here and at Barrackville discounted the reports that the explosion might have been caused by labor troubles, Sheriff J. C. Riggins, today arrested A. G. Kendall, Clarence Wetzell and M. D. Edmunds. The trio was held on "suspicious person" charges, and their actions will be investigated.

One of the men worked four hours in the mine yesterday and another had worked in it for a week recently.

COURT BILL UP TO DONAHEY AS SENATE ACTS

House Adopts Plan to Purchase Guilford Dam Tract.

The fate of East Liverpool's proposed municipal court rests in the hands of Governor A. V. Donahey today, following approval of the measure voted by the state senate yesterday.

Another bill, affecting Columbiana county—a proposal for the establishment of a state park on the site of Guilford dam—was passed by the house. The measure was rushed to the senate where it will likely come up for a vote this week.

The bill, establishing a municipal court in East Liverpool beginning January 1, 1926, is practically the same measure approved in the house of representatives about three weeks ago. It provides for the election of a judge, whose salary shall not be less than $3,600, a clerk with a salary of not less than $1,800 and the appointment of a bailiff at a salary of $1,200. Of-

Exhume Body as Valley City Poison Plot Quiz Continues

MEDINA, O., Mar. 18—While Coroner Crum and his assistants were at the little Valley City cemetery today, exhuming the body of Mrs. Fred Gienke, Sr., victim of a "poison fiend," Prosecutor Joseph Seymour was gathering together the threads of evidence which, he believes, connects an as yet unnamed slayer with the death of Mrs. Gienke, her husband, Fred, and a sister of the later, Mrs. Rose Hazel, who died about two weeks previously to the death of Mrs. Gienke January 3.

When the body is exhumed, it will be brought to the morgue here, where a post-mortem examination will be made and an analysis conducted to determine beyond doubt that arsenic poison caused the death. It may also be determined to exhume the body of Mrs. Hazel, but Prosecutor Seymour has not reached a definite conclusion in this respect.

Meanwhile at Memorial hospital, Miss Marie Glenke was lying at the point of death and physicians were fearful of the outcome. It has been definitely decided that she and her brother are the victims of arsenic poisoning.

Waterhouse Suit Choice Morsel of Gossip for London

LONDON, March 18.—Gossip—replete London turned its attention today to the Waterhouse suit, where characters appearing to have stepped from a mid-victorian drawing room furnished testimony lurid enough for the jazz age.

Blushes spread over a court room hardened to blush provoking testimony at the reading of the death bed statement of the old butler, Mills, concerning the relations of the late Frank Waterhouse and Lady Wilson-Barker.

NEW HIGH PRICE IN HOG MARKET

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 18.—The hog market touched another new high for a three-year period with $14.30 as a new top, a five-cent advance over yesterday's close.

Uncle Sam Orders Probe Into Grain Market Gambling

WASHINGTON, March 18.—An immediate investigation of recent wide fluctuations in prices of wheat and other grains on the exchanges in the country was ordered today by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine.

The inquiry will be made by the department of Agriculture under authority of the act designed to prevent market gambling and manipulation or prices.

CHICAGO, March 18.—Grains today rebounded sensationally from yesterday's low point and within an hour wheat was selling four to ten cents a bushel higher than yesterday in the Chicago pits. Other grains were proportionately higher.

The rise was as rapid as the dizzy decline and it was accompanied by an equal amount of furious trading.

WAR MONUMENTS PLANNED FOR AMERICAN DEAD

Crosses Will be Placed Over Graves in France, Belgium.

STUDY MEMORIAL

Pershing Will go Abroad to Supervise Preparations.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Plans for the erection of war monuments to America's illustrous dead in France and Belgium and placing of crosses over the grave of every doughboy will be completed this summer. General John J. Pershing, chairman of the battle monuments commission will go to France to supervise the preparations.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, a member of the commission, will also visit France in the summer and is expacted to confer there with General Pershing on the final details for the memorial plans which are under study by the commission.

General Pershing expects to sail for a "tourist's view" of the battlefields over which he led the American doughboys in the World war some time after he pays a short visit to his home in Lincoln, Neb., next week.

Monuments On Battlefields.

Plans already decided upon include the erection of a number of monuments to commemorate the major engagements in which the Americans participated, the placing of little white stone crosses over the grave of every doughboy, and the walling of American cemeteries. Definite location of the monuments has not yet been decided upon, and no agreement has been reached on the design of the crosses to be erected. Several designs are before the committee and which ever design is finally chosen will be uniform throughout American graves in France.

General Perishing was greatly fatigued by the extensive tour he made of South America and by the large scale in which entertainments in his honor were planned, but he is so anxious to go ahead with the battle monument work that he will spend a greater portion of this summer working on the final plans instead of taking a long rest. It is expected the work on the monuments, graves and cemeteries will take two years to complete. The first apportionments of the Congressional appropriation have already been made and work is to begin immediately after final decision has been made.

Defense in Teapot Dome Trial Will Call No Witnesses

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 18.—The defense in the Teapot Dome trial was expected to introduce today a deposition by Admiral J. K. Robinson, seeking to justify the lease.

Martin Littleton, chief of Harry Sinclair's counsel, announced no witnesses would be put on the stand by the defense and that its evidence would consist entirely of depositions to show the lease was necessary and advantageous to the government. Testimony concerning tracing of the $230,500 of Liberty bonds from the Continental Trading company, Ltd., to former Secretary Albert B. Fall, was left in the record over strenuous protest of the defense when the government rested its case Tuesday afternoon.

The Sinclair motion to strike out was overruled by Federal Judge Kennedy, who told defense counsel "if this evidence isn't connected or material, then it won't hurt you." This was the most important victory scored by the government.

Judge Kennedy declared the motion to strike out the bond testimony was in reality a motion for dismissal of the government's suit insofar as the conspiracy charge is involved.

WIDOW DIES AFTER SHE IS RUN DOWN BY AUTO; DOCTOR BLAMES SHOCK

Mrs. Katherine Troisieme, 66, is Victim of Accident While on Way Home From Theatre.

Charles Hartt Swerves Car in Attempt to Avert Crash as Woman Darts Across Street.

Mrs. Katherine Troisieme, 66, a widow, 419 West Fifth street, died at the city hospital shortly before midnight, as the result of injuries sustained at 9:30 last night when struck by an automobile, driven by Charles Hartt, 30, accountant, near the intersection of Fifth and Monroe streets.

Mrs. Troisieme who had attended a motion picture show, was returning to her home, when the accident occurred. Hartt, enroute to the hospital with Mrs. Jane Hanna, a nurse, who had been engaged to care for George Conkle, a patient, says he noticed the woman start to cross the street, almost in front of the B'Nai Israel Synagogue.

Car Hurtles Curb.

When about ten feet out from the curb, he claims, the woman stopped as if to wait until he passed. He asserts that he was traveling about 20 miles an hour when the woman, unexpectedly, darted across the street, directly in front of his car.

Hartt quickly applied his brakes and swerved his machine to the upper side of the street in an effort to avert the accident. The left headlight of the car struck the woman, knocking her to the street. The car hurtled the curb onto the sidewalk in front of the synagogue where it was brought to a stop.

Assisted by Thomas Cannon, West Sixth street, who was nearby at the time, Hartt carried the injured woman to the hospital, a short distance away. She was unconscious when picked up but soon regained consciousness.

Upon examination Dr. R. J. Marshall, who attended her, found no bones broken, although Mrs. Troisieme was bruised about the head.

Creditors Control Chicago, Milwaukee And St. Paul Road

NEW YORK, March 18.—Formal announcement of the decision of the directors of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad to effect a "readjustment of the financial structure of the railroad," found the various protective committees ready today to safeguard the interests of the different groups of security holders.

The appointment of three committees to represent the bondholders, the preferred stockholders and the common stockholders means in effect that the operation of the road passes into the hands of its creditors.

For the last three weeks it has been apparent, from the heavy liquidation of the stocks and junior bonds of the St. Paul road, that some sort of a financial readjustment of its affairs was contemplated by the management and the bankers for the system.

DONOVAN NAMED SARGENT'S AID

WASHINGTON, March 18.—President Coolidge today sent to the senate the nomination of William J. Donovan, of New York, to be assistant to the attorney general.

Donovan at present is an assistant attorney general, and in his new position will succeed to the vacancy created by the resignation of A. E. Seymour.

1,000 TOKIO HOMES BURNED

TOKIO, March 18.—Troops were ordered to tear down houses in the path of the flames as fire swept through the northern part of Tokio today, destroying 1,000 homes. A high wind sped the spread of the flames. Panicky householders, saving what goods they could carry, fled through the streets from the stricken section.

NET TIGHTENS IN GERM PLOT MURDER CASE

Indictments Against Suspects in McClintock Death Returned.

BAIL REFUSED

Chicago Prosecutor Predicts Sensational Criminal Trial.

By CARL W. HARRIS.

CHICAGO, Mar. 18—The formal indictments charging William D. Shepherd and "Dr." Charles C. Faiman with murder, in connection with the death of William Nelson McClintock, last blood heir to the McClintock fortune, were returned in criminal court here today.

More than three hours before the expiration of the truce, the state's attorney promised Shepherd's attorneys—indictment or freedom for their client by 2 p. m. today—had been fulfilled. The writ of habeas corpus which had been held temporarily in abeyance by Shepherd's counsel, automatically became a scrap of paper. The man whom it was to have freed from "unlawful custody" began life behind prison bars awaiting the promised legal sensation—the trial now expected to start within two months.

The indictments contains 21 counts in each of which both Shepherd and

Flat of Frank Mayo, Screen Star, Raided; Wife Leads Police

NEW YORK, Mar. 18—Two explanations were offered today for a raid on the flat of Frank Mayo, motion picture star, in which his wife, Dagmar Godowsky, led the raiders and found Miss Ann Luther with Mayo. Both Miss Godowsky and Miss Luther are screen actresses.

"It looks pretty funny to me," declared Miss Luther, a titian-haired young woman who is separated from her husband, Ed. Gallagher, of the vaudeville team of Gallagher and Shean.

"Don't forget that Dagmar herself was the co-respondent in Frank Mayo's first divorce suit. I was in Frank's flat cheering the poor boy because he had a headache."

Mrs. Mayo said:

"Our knocks at the door were unanswered. There was nothing to do but batter it down. We did so. We found Frank dressed only in a bathrobe. Miss Luther was making frantic efforts to hook up her evening gown. In view of these circumstances I am going to sue for divorce."

FORMER NAVY CHIEF ASSERTS NATION NEEDS MORE AIRCRAFT

OUTLINES VIEWS

Defends Senate in Rejecting Nomination of Warren.

"The value of the air service is unquestionable. The country today should be spending a lot of money for equipment and development of such service."

This is the opinion of Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, who last night lectured on "The Challenge of Peace."

Clearly indicating his stand in the recent governmental tangle which brought about comparisons between battleships and aircraft, and which resulted in the demotion of Brigadier-General Charles D. Mitchell, the former navy head declared.

"There is no question in my mind as to the future value of aircraft. We should not be sparing in our expenditures toward equipment to conquer the air. The foreign powers are doing it. We are progressing steadily and consistently along other lines of scientific endeavor and so we should turn our attention to the air."

Airplane in Mail Service.

He pointed out particularly the probable extensive use of the air mail transportation in the future.

Discussing President Coolidge's nomination of Charles B. Warren as attorney general which three times was rejected by the senate, Daniels who is also a former senator said: "The senate acted perfectly within its rights in rejecting the nomination of Warren. The senate must investigate, and act according to its own judgment and in an advisory capacity. According to its pledge, the senate could not consistently accept a nomination, even though the presidential Patterson Foundry Co. Employes Enjoy Program.

Employes of The Patterson Foundry & Machine company, members of their families, numbering approximately 200, attended the first annual indoor picnic, held in the Patterson auditorium, Sixth and Walnut streets, last evening.

The hall was attractively decorated in keeping with St. Patrick's Day. Several out-of-town guests were in attendance among them being E. J. Wellington, Chicago, mid-western representative for the company.

A musical program was given during the forepart of the evening, with John Scott in charge. This was followed by a three-course luncheon and a program of dancing.

The program included an address by R. L. Cawood, president of the company; selections by the Gibson Mandolin club; vocal solos by Miss Ruth Bailey, Clem Dawson, and Virgil Cochran; whistling solo by Clarence Cartwright; classical dancing by Julius Craig and Miss Mary McKinnon and selections by the Radio entertainers, a quartet.

Southern Democrats Protest Nomination Of New York Man

WASHINGTON, March 18.—A storm of protest arose among southern Democrats when President Coolidge today re-submitted to the senate the nomination of Thomas F. Woodlock, of New York, as a member of the Interstate Commerce commission.

Woodstock's appointment was blocked by Democrats in the last session and they announced they again would vigorously fight confirmation now.

400 PERSONS ATTEND MEMBERSHIP REUNION AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Exercises by Children, Musical Numbers by Choir and Vocal Solos Feature Program.

Almost 400 persons, men, women and children, attended the membership reunion at the First Presbyterian church Tuesday evening.

Greeted by members of the Presbyterian Men, under whose auspices the affair was held, strangers were presented to those whom they had not previously known, while the casual acquaintanceships of others were similarly deepened.

The program included songs and exercises by the Sunday school children who were in charge of their superintendent, Miss Lydia Farrar, several musical numbers by the church choir, directed by William MacDonald, and solos by Mrs. Joseph C. Thompson and Oliver Johnston.

Mrs. Edward Lee, of the Second Presbyterian church, contributed several readings.

In attendance was Peter Schreiber, a former member and official of the church, who recently was transferred from Toledo to Canton by the Anti-Saloon league of Ohio, with which organization he is connected. He made an address in which he told of his memories of the congregation during his life in East Liverpool.

Others who spoke glowingly of their relations with the church, past and present, were Prof. F. P. Geiger, superintendent of the East Liverpool schools; Attorney Ben Bennett, O. C. Delaney, Willard Morris, T. V. Milligan, Harvey McHenry and the pastor, Dr. Donald MacLeod.

COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY AND GUESTS INSPECT FOOD PRODUCTS PLANT HERE

Turkey Dinner Follows Afternoon Meeting at Which Dr. Litchfield, Pittsburgh, is Speaker.

Approximately 40 members of the Columbiana County Medical society and their guests from Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Niles and Warren, attended the monthly meeting held at the plant of the Crockery City Ice & Products Company, West Eighth street, yesterday afternoon.

Prior to their session, the medics inspected the plant and witnessed the sanitary methods used in handling milk, ice cream and other food products. The inspection trip was in charge of A. E. Webber, manager of the plant.

Dr. Lawrence Litchfield, Pittsburgh physician, spoke on the subject, "Approved Values of Endocrine Therapy" and "Gastric Symptoms and Their Significance." He was introduced by Dr. M. D. McCutcheon, president of the association.

At 5:15 o'clock, Mr. Webber entertained the physicians at a turkey dinner, served by Caterer Daily Larkins. The tables, beautifully decorated with flowers, were arranged in the milk and ice cream manufacturing department.

Following the dinner Dr. J. M. King, of Wellsville, offered a motion expressing the society's thanks to Mr. Webber for the manner in which they had been entertained. The motion was adopted unanimously.

Members from East Liverpool, Wellsville, Lisbon, Salem, East Palestine, Columbiana and Leetonia attended the meeting.

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

When from your front yard you look toward the faint cloud of stars that astronomers call NGC 6822 you are looking far into space. That is about the farthest spot in the universe of which the distance has been measured.

The light that strikes the eye looking at NGC 6822 through the telescope has been traveling toward us for 1,000,000 "light years." To learn what a 1,000,000 light years amount to in miles, find out how many seconds there are in 1,000,000 years. Then multiply the total by 186,000, the number of miles that light travels per second and you have it. Don't forget the leap years.

Scientists of Harvard observatory say that NGC 6822 is outside of the milky way in which case it is part of "another universe." The milky way in the universe is like a small cluster of frog's eggs floating in the Pacific ocean, only you would have to multiply the Pacific ocean a few quadrillions of times to get the right proportions and then it wouldn't be big enough, no matter what Einstein says about curved lines.

The dirigible Los Angeles, traveling at average high speed could take you to NGC 6822 in a little more than thirty-three million years. This is a bik universe and any human mind convinced that it can define, explain or conceive the power back of it, has considerable confidence in itself.

Just as the virtuous complain that women leave nothing to the imagination, they suddenly decide to cover up again. "Dress is to be more subtle this season than in other seasons."

That isn't saying much, for there is nothing subtle about a lady bare backed to her waist in the evening with a skirt above her knees in the daytime.

But fashion really means to reform for the moment. Arms that have been naked from the top of the shoulder down looking in some mottled cases like a butcher shop exhibit are now to be covered with "soft mysterious veiling," thanks for that, with or without the mystery and shawl of brilliant colors, worn to "reavel personality" will cover up almost everything.

Thus again we learn that it is always darkest before dawn. Women go just so far in one direction and then turn around and go the other way. That's their charm.

Japan's house of peers Monday passed a new land law forbidding ownership of Japanese land by citizens of countries that forbid land owning by Japanese. This means you and you must give up any idea of owning a lot in Tokio and trying out your scheme for an earthquake-proof bungalow.

No American will complain of the Japanese law. Asia for Asiatics, America for Americans and perfect good will between the two continents is what we favor and Japanese will please notice we don't think our national honor injured, merely because Japan wants Japanese land for Japanese people.

The University of Washington, which prepares young men of the northwest for their great opportunities, decides to develop poets with special lessons in the dramatic art department. First class poets are needed to describe the beauties of water, land and sky, around Seattle, but can you really make poets to order? And is not poetry a semi-extinct form of expression, invented as an aid to memory when men could not read or write.

Poets are born. Consider Keats, a young clerk from a chemist's shop. He sees in a friend's room for the first time in his life, the works of Homer, takes the Iliad with him, stays up all night and reads the volume through, then writes his poem.

On looking into Champman's Homer, read that, it could all go in one-half of this column, and ask yourself how anybody could be taught to write that last line:

"Silent on a peak in Darien."

You might as well try to teach a china hen to lay real eggs.

The United States is rubbing its eyes and waking up a little, orders 86 flying machines, made in the United States. For 10 machines by the Curtis company $250,000 will be paid and for 75 from the Douglas company, $883,000. That's a start and multiplied by a hundred, it would give the country a good beginning for an air fleet.

Fortunately Henry Ford and his son, Edsel B. Ford, are in the aircraft field. They will let us know what a flying machine ought to cost, and something about the theory that the "flying life" of an airplane engine is only about 100 hours.

The Fords will give you an engine that without expensive renewal of parts, will fly around the world 10 times. They don't believe in an en-

HOPE REVIVED FOR ENTOMBED

AT THE MOUTH OF MINE NO. 41, BARRACKVILLE, W. Va., March 18.—Hopes were revived for the lives of the 34 men entombed since late last night by an explosion in the mine here of the Bethlehem Mines & Steel Corporation this afternoon when mine rescue officials joined in denying the false reports which were widely circulated here and sent out by newspaper correspondents that two of the men had been found dead near the foot of the mine shaft.

Rescue Workers, Burrowing Way Through Debris, Predict None of Entombed is Alive.

PLANT WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

Burst of Flame Follows Deafening Report as Tipple Crumbles and Mine is Darkened.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., March 18.—None of the 34 miners imprisoned by a blast in mine 41 of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation at Barrackville, near here, will be found alive, according to leaders in the rescue work today.

Burrowing their way through the debris and hampered by falls of rock and lack of ventilation, the rescue squad of 25 men will not reach the entombed miners until late today, those in charge said.

One of the most terrific in mining annals here, the explosion wrecked the plant, virtually demolished the camp store, shattered windows and doors throughout Barrackville and was felt plainly here.

Three Arrests Made.

First came a dull rumbling followed by a deafening report. Then the heavens took on a ghastly glow from a burst of flame mounting hundreds of feet in the air. The flame shortly was obscured by great clouds of dense black smoke.

The tipple was wrecked and the electric lighting system put completely out of commission leaving the mine in darkness.

In 1916 the same mine was wrecked by a gas explosion that killed 19 miners and a short time later two members of the Pittsburgh bureau of mines were killed by after damp while trying to penetrate the workings of the mine.

Although all officials here and at Barrackville discounted the reports that the explosion might have been caused by labor troubles, Sheriff J. C. Riggins, today arrested A. G. Kendall, Clarence Wetzell and M. D. Edmunds. The trio was held on "suspicious person" charges, and their actions will be investigated.

One of the men worked four hours in the mine yesterday and another had worked in it for a week recently.

COURT BILL UP TO DONAHEY AS SENATE ACTS

East Liverpool Measure is Passed by State Assembly.

House Adopts Plan to Purchase Guilford Dam Tract.

The fate of East Liverpool's proposed municipal court rests in the hands of Governor A. V. Donahey today, following approval of the measure voted by the state senate yesterday.

Another bill, affecting Columbiana county—a proposal for the establishment of a state park on the site of Guilford dam—was passed by the house. The measure was rushed to the senate where it will likely come up for a vote this week.

The bill, establishing a municipal court in East Liverpool beginning January 1, 1926, is practically the same measure approved in the house of representatives about three weeks ago. It provides for the election of a judge, whose salary shall not be less than $3,600, a clerk with a salary of not less than $1,800 and the appointment of a bailiff at a salary of $1,200. Of-

Exhume Body as Valley City Poison Plot Quiz Continues

MEDINA, O., Mar. 18—While Coroner Crum and his assistants were at the little Valley City cemetery today, exhuming the body of Mrs. Fred Glenke, Sr., victim of a "poison fiend," Prosecutor Joseph Seymour was gathering together the threads of evidence which, he believes, connects an as yet unnamed slayer with the death of Mrs. Glenke, her husband, Fred, and a sister of the later, Mrs. Rose Hazel, who died about two weeks previously to the death of Mrs. Glenke January 3.

When the body is exhumed, it will be brought to the morgue here, where a post-mortem examination will be made and an analysis conducted to determine beyond doubt that arsenic poison caused the death. It may also be determined to exhume the body of Mrs. Hazel, but Prosecutor Seymour has not reached a definite conclusion in this respect.

Meanwhile at Memorial hospital, Miss Marie Glenke was lying at the point of death and physicians were fearful of the outcome. It has been definitely decided that she and her brother are the victims of arsenic poisoning.

Waterhouse Suit Choice Morsel of Gossip for London

LONDON, March 18.—Gossip—replete London turned its attention today to the Waterhouse suit, where characters appearing to have stepped from a mid-victorian drawing room furnished testimony lurid enough for the jazz age.

Blushes spread over a court room hardened to blush provoking testimony at the reading of the death bed statement of the old butler, Mills, concerning the relations of the late Frank Waterhouse and Lady Wilson-Barker.

NEW HIGH PRICE IN HOG MARKET

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 18.—The hog market touched another new high for a three-year period with $14.30 as a new top, a five-cent advance over yesterday's close.

Uncle Sam Orders Probe Into Grain Market Gambling

WASHINGTON, March 18.—An immediate investigation of recent wide fluctuations in prices of wheat and other grains on the exchanges in the country was ordered today by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine.

The inquiry will be made by the department of Agriculture under authority of the act designed to prevent market gambling and manipulation or prices.

CHICAGO, March 18.—Grains today rebounded sensationally from yesterday's low point and within an hour wheat was selling four to ten cents a bushel higher than yesterday in the Chicago pits. Other grains were proportionately higher.

The rise was as rapid as the dizzy decline and it was accompanied by an equal amount of furious trading.

WAR MONUMENTS PLANNED FOR AMERICAN DEAD

Crosses Will be Placed Over Graves in France, Belgium.

STUDY MEMORIAL

Pershing Will go Abroad to Supervise Preparations.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Plans for the erection of war monuments to America's illustrous dead in France and Belgium and placing of crosses over the grave of every doughboy will be completed this summer, General John J. Pershing, chairman of the battle monuments commission will go to France to supervise the preparations.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, a member of the commission, will also visit France in the summer and is expected to confer there with General Pershing on the final details for the memorial plans which are under study by the commission.

General Pershing expects to sail for a "tourist's view" of the battlefields over which he led the American doughboys in the World war some time after he pays a short visit to his home in Lincoln, Neb., next week.

Monuments On Battlefields.

Plans already decided upon include the erection of a number of monuments to commemorate the major engagements in which the Americans participated, the placing of little white stone crosses over the grave of every doughboy, and the walling of American cemeteries. Definite location of the monuments has not yet been decided upon, and no agreement has been reached on the design of the crosses to be erected. Several designs are before the committee and which ever design is finally chosen will be uniform throughout American graves in France.

General Perishing was greatly fatigued by the extensive tour he made of South America and by the large scale in which entertainments in his honor were planned, but he is so anxious to go ahead with the battle monument work that he will spend a greater portion of this summer working on the final plans instead of taking a long rest. It is expected the work on the monuments, graves and cemeteries will take two years to complete. The first apportionments of the Congressional appropriation have already been made and work is to begin immediately after final decision has been made.

Defense in Teapot Dome Trial Will Call No Witnesses

CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 18.—The defense in the Teapot Dome trial was expected to introduce today a deposition by Admiral J. K. Robinson, seeking to justify the lease.

Martin Littleton, chief of Harry Sinclair's counsel, announced no witnesses would be put on the stand by the defense and that its evidence would consist entirely of depositions to show the lease was necessary and advantageous to the government. Testimony concerning tracing of the $230,500 of Liberty bonds from the Continental Trading company, Ltd., to former Secretary Albert B. Fall, was left in the record over strenuous protest of the defense when the government rested its case Tuesday afternoon.

The Sinclair motion to strike out was overruled by Federal Judge Kennedy, who told defense counsel "if this evidence isn't connected or material, then it won't hurt you." This was the most important victory scored by the government.

Judge Kennedy declared the motion to strike out the bond testimony was in reality a motion for dismissal of the government's suit insofar as the conspiracy charge is involved.

WIDOW DIES AFTER SHE IS RUN DOWN BY AUTO; DOCTOR BLAMES SHOCK

Mrs. Katherine Troisieme, 66, is Victim of Accident While on Way Home From Theatre.

Charles Hartt Swerves Car in Attempt to Avert Crash as Woman Darts Across Street.

Mrs. Katherine Troisieme, 66, a widow, 419 West Fifth street, died at the city hospital shortly before midnight, as the result of injuries sustained at 9:30 last night when struck by an automobile, driven by Charles Hartt, 30, accountant, near the intersection of Fifth and Monroe streets.

Mrs. Troisieme who had attended a motion picture show, was returning to her home, when the accident occurred. Hartt, enroute to the hospital with Mrs. Jane Hanna, a nurse, who had been engaged to care for George Conkle, a patient, says he noticed the woman start to cross the street, almost in front of the B'Nai Israel Synagogue.

Car Hurtles Curb.

When about ten feet out from the curb, he claims, the woman stopped as if to wait until he passed. He asserts that he was traveling about 20 miles an hour when the woman, unexpectedly, darted across the street, directly in front of his car.

Hartt quickly applied his brakes and swerved his machine to the upper side of the street in an effort to avert the accident. The left headlight of the car struck the woman, knocking her to the street. The car hurtled the curb onto the sidewalk in front of the synagogue where it was brought to a stop.

Assisted by Thomas Cannon, West Sixth street, who was nearby at the time, Hartt carried the injured woman to the hospital, a short distance away. She was unconscious when picked up but soon regained consciousness.

Upon examination Dr. R. J. Marshall, who attended her, found no bones broken, although Mrs. Troisieme was bruised about the head.

Creditors Control Chicago, Milwaukee And St. Paul Road

NEW YORK, March 18.—Formal announcement of the decision of the directors of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad to effect a "readjustment of the financial structure of the railroad," found the various protective committees ready today to safeguard the interests of the different groups of security holders.

The appointment of three committees to represent the bondholders, the preferred stockholders and the common stockholders means in effect that the operation of the road passes into the hands of its creditors.

For the last three weeks it has been apparent, from the heavy liquidation of the stocks and junior bonds of the St. Paul road, that some sort of a financial readjustment of its affairs was contemplated by the management and the bankers for the system.

Donovan at present is an assistant attorney general, and in his new position will succeed to the vacancy created by the resignation of A. E. Seymour.

NET TIGHTENS IN GERM PLOT MURDER CASE

Indictments Against Suspects in McClintock Death Returned.

BAIL REFUSED

Chicago Prosecutor Predicts Sensational Criminal Trial.

By CARL W. HARRIS.

CHICAGO, Mar. 18—The formal indictments charging William D. Shepherd and "Dr." Charles C. Faiman with murder, in connection with the death of William Nelson McClintock, last blood heir to the McClintock fortune, were returned in criminal court here today.

More than three hours before the expiration of the truce, the state's attorney promised Shepherd's attorneys—indictment or freedom for their client by 2 p. m. today—had been fulfilled. The writ of habeas corpus which had been held temporarily in abeyance by Shepherd's counsel, automatically became a scrap of paper. The man whom it was to have freed from "unlawful custody" began life behind prison bars awaiting the promised legal sensation—the trial now expected to start within two months.

The indictments contains 21 counts in each of which both Shepherd and

Flat of Frank Mayo, Screen Star, Raided; Wife Leads Police

NEW YORK, Mar. 18—Two explanations were offered today for a raid on the flat of Frank Mayo, motion picture star, in which his wife, Dagmar Godowsky, led the raiders and found Miss Ann Luther with Mayo. Both Miss Godowsky and Miss Luther are screen actresses.

"It looks pretty funny to me," declared Miss Luther, a titian-haired young woman who is separated from her husband, Ed. Gallagher, of the vaudeville team of Gallagher and Shean.

"Don't forget that Dagmar herself was the co-respondent in Frank Mayo's first divorce suit. I was in Frank's flat cheering the poor boy because he had a headache."

Mrs. Mayo said:

"Our knocks at the door were unanswered. There was nothing to do but batter it down. We did so. We found Frank dressed only in a bathrobe. Miss Luther was making frantic efforts to hook up her evening gown. In view of these circumstances I am going to sue for divorce."

Josephus Daniels Points Out Importance of Development

OUTLINES VIEWS

Defends Senate in Rejecting Nomination of Warren.

"The value of the air service is unquestionable. The country today should be spending a lot of money for equipment and development of such service."

This is the opinion of Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, who last night lectured on "The Challenge of Peace."

Clearly indicating his stand in the recent governmental tangle which brought about comparisons between battleships and aircraft, and which resulted in the demotion of Brigadier-General Charles D. Mitchell, the former navy head declared.

"There is no question in my mind as to the future value of aircraft. We should not be sparing in our expenditures toward equipment to conquer the air. The foreign powers are doing it. We are progressing steadily and consistently along other lines of scientific endeavor and so we should turn our attention to the air."

Airplane in Mail Service.

He pointed out particularly the probable extensive use of the air mail transportation in the future.

Discussing President Coolidge's nomination of Charles B. Warren as attorney general which three times was rejected by the senate, Daniels who is also a former senator said: "The senate acted perfectly within its rights in rejecting the nomination of Warren. The senate must investigate, and act according to its own judgment and in an advisory capacity. According to its pledge, the senate could not consistently accept a nomination, even though the presidential

END WAR, URGES EX-NAVY CHIEF

Josephus Daniels Makes Plea for Peace in Lecture.

"Unless we end war, war will end us."

This, in short, was the substance of the message delivered by Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, North Carolina, former secretary of the Navy, in his address last night in the high school auditorium to more than 500 persons.

Mr. Daniels spoke on the subject, "The Challenge of Peace." He was introduced by Frank L. Wells, who paid the war navy secretary glowing tribute. Seated on the stage were representative citizens of the city.

Mr. Daniels arrived here yesterday afternoon, coming from Ashtabula by trolley. Prior to dinner he enjoyed an auto ride through the rural districts north of the city as the guest of School Superintendent S. E. Daw and accompanied by Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor of the United Presbyterian church.

Strong indictments against wars and the makers of wars were drawn in his address.

The story of Lloyd George's "great mistake" and the manner in which the World war still has failed to accomplished its purpose—a war to do away with war—were recounted graphically by "the man who made the navy dry."

He told of the manner in which the youth of America gave up good years of their lives so that they might have a part in the war that was to end wars, how women of America gave their utmost; how immense amounts of money were poured into the conflict; all in a spirit of unselfishness and with one purpose. "If that spirit could be recalled for a campaign for peace," Daniels said, "what great things could be accomplished."

"The impact of the American forces against the advancing Boche 30 miles away from Paris, France's capital, and the American victories at Chateau Thierry, brought an end to the war fully a year ahead of the time even Foch and Haig thought it could possibly be ended," pointed out Daniels.

"As the Germans advanced on the French capital, and French officials were preparing to move the seat of government into the lower part of the state, there arose from the fields at Chateau Thierry the American doughboy sharpshooters and time and again the onrushing German lines were mowed down. Then the kaiser's retreat.

"This is how the American soldiers met the challenge of war.

"The signing of the Armistice was a great day for the fighters, nations, and mothers, in particular, whose boys were in the thick of the conflict. They thought that it was the signal of a great victory in the war against war.

"And then a short time later, I was surprised to pick up my paper and there to see a statement by Clemenceau, 'the Tiger of France,' in which he said 'we are entering the dangerous days.'

"I felt hard against the Tiger then. I thought that his was a discordant note in the hymn of rejoicing. But days and weeks and years have passed, and the dangerous days still are with us. The Tiger was wiser than I.

"Later came the peace conference. Here the representatives of all nations conferred, all seeking a common ground. President Wilson knew immediately that an estimate of France's damage would have to be made before the work of rehabilitation could be started. Accordingly, American financiers studied the situation and submitted their findings, in which they said that not less than ten billion dollars nor more than 15 billions must be paid by Germany. But Germany protests that France has always demanded too much.

"And then the tragedy of Paris occurred.

"Lloyd George, who had sought reelection as Britain's premier, had promised to hang the Kaiser and make Germany pay the cost of the war.

"When the 'Big Four' went into conference, it suddenly developed that the immense amount of reparation demanded would place the payments in future years on Germany's still unborn and would not make for universal peace.

"Lloyd George went into the country to think, accompanied by Balfour and advisers, and finally came to a decision. He decided to put world peace ahead of national desire for money. But news of the decision leaked out; even reached London, and when Lloyd George returned to Paris, there newspaper headlines confronted him with the demand of the British, which was substantially, 'Live up to your promise or get out.'

"The peace proposals, as a result, hung fire for weeks and months, and still are unsettled. Lloyd George's mistake, the promise he could not fulfill, touched the whole world.

"But Lloyd George is a great man. He is one of the greatest men of the century. His leadership and enthusiasm were worth 100,000 fighting men.

"Continuing the thread of peace negotiations, a form of peace pact was signed in the Versailles Palace finally, which in form was a league of nations. President Wilson hurried back home and presented it to the Senate for ratification. As so far as I know it is still there.

"I believe that if America had entered the league, the present instability, drifting, and unsettled state of affairs would have been ended.

Harding took the presidential chair. He urged a world court. After his death, Calvin Coolidge, the vice president, continued the appeal for a great world tribunal, and only recently, Coolidge, president in his own right, again made an unanswerable argument for America's adoption of the world court plans.

"Although I am a Democrat, I would rather see a Republican in office working for peace, than a Democrat who would not work for peace. I can't see how a church man, after attending services and saying amen to the Biblical 'peace on earth, good will to all men,' can go out and be indifferent to world peace.

"What is America doing for peace? Nothing.

"As soon as the present state of exhaustion is passed in Europe, we have no assurance that there will not be another war.

"Armaments are not being reduced. Europe now has more men under arms than at any time before, save during the World war. Europe is spending money for war, and so are we. Unless we end war, war will end us."

CALL TESTIMONY IN KIRBY CASE

With the opening statements out of the way, introduction of testimony in the case of Josiah Kirby, founder and first president of the Cleveland Discount company, and Raymond L. Poland, its former treasurer, charged with issuing a false financial statement began with the opening of court today in Cleveland.

The testimony, largely technical in its nature, will be heard by a jury of six men and six women, with a seventh woman, sitting as an alternate juror.

The state will attempt to prove, according to David E. Green, special counsel, that Poland prepared the alleged false statement at the direction of Poland, and that while the figures shown in the report disclosed a surplus in excess of $1,300,000, there was an actual deficit of approximately $1,000,000.

COUNCIL HOLDS BRIEF SESSION

Discussion centered about the Wells avenue paving program and the proposed improvement of sewer conditions in Twentieth street occupied the attention of city council last night.

The solons held only a short session.

Clerk George Hardman was instructed to go to Lisbon as soon as possible to investigate former street assessment rates—those made prior to 1902. The findings will be reviewed in connection with Wells avenue assessments.

Several estimates on the cost of improving sewer conditions in Twentieth street, prepared by engineers, were submitted to the solons by Director A. P. Dennis.

The estimates revealed that the work could hardly be done for less then $4,000.

END WAR, URGES EX-NAVY CHIEF

Josephus Daniels Makes Plea for Peace in Lecture.

"Unless we end war, war will end us."

This, in short, was the substance of the message delivered by Josephus Daniels, of Raleigh, North Carolina, former secretary of the Navy, in his address last night in the high school auditorium to more than 500 persons.

Mr. Daniels spoke on the subject, "The Challenge of Peace." He was introduced by Frank L. Wells, who paid the war navy secretary glowing tribute. Seated on the stage were representative citizens of the city.

Mr. Daniels arrived here yesterday afternoon, coming from Ashtabula by trolley. Prior to dinner he enjoyed an auto ride through the rural districts north of the city as the guest of School Superintendent S. E. Daw and accompanied by Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor of the United Presbyterian church.

Strong indictments against wars and the makers of wars were drawn in his address.

The story of Lloyd George's "great mistake" and the manner in which the World war still has failed to accomplished its purpose—a war to do away with war—were recounted graphically by "the man who made the navy dry."

He told of the manner in which the youth of America gave up good years of their lives so that they might have a part in the war that was to end wars, how women of America gave their utmost; how immense amounts of money were poured into the conflict; all in a spirit of unselfishness and with one purpose. "If that spirit could be recalled for a campaign for peace," Daniels said, "what great things could be accomplished."

"The impact of the American forces against the advancing Boche 30 miles away from Paris, France's capital, and the American victories at Chateau Thierry, brought an end to the war fully a year ahead of the time even Foch and Haig thought it could possibly be ended," pointed out Daniels.

"As the Germans advanced on the French capital, and French officials were preparing to move the seat of government into the lower part of the state, there arose from the fields at Chateau Thierry the American doughboy sharpshooters and time and again the onrushing German lines were mowed down. Then the kaiser's retreat.

"This is how the American soldiers met the challenge of war.

"The signing of the Armistice was a great day for the fighters, nations, and mothers, in particular, whose boys were in the thick of the conflict. They thought that it was the signal of a great victory in the war against war.

"And then a short time later, I was surprised to pick up my paper and there to see a statement by Clemenceau, 'the Tiger of France,' in which he said 'we are entering the dangerous days.'

"I felt hard against the Tiger then. I thought that his was a discordant note in the hymn of rejoicing. But days and weeks and years have passed, and the dangerous days still are with us. The Tiger was wiser than I.

"Later came the peace conference. Here the representatives of all nations conferred, all seeking a common ground. President Wilson knew immediately that an estimate of France's damage would have to be made before the work of rehabilitation could be started. Accordingly, American financiers studied the situation and submitted their findings, in which they said that not less than ten billion dollars nor more than 15 billions must be paid by Germany. But Germany protests that France has always demanded too much.

"And then the tragedy of Paris occurred.

"Lloyd George, who had sought reelection as Britain's premier, had promised to hang the Kaiser and make Germany pay the cost of the war.

"When the "Big Four" went into conference, it suddenly developed that the immense amount of reparation demanded would place the payments in future years on Germany's still unborn and would not make for universal peace.

"Lloyd George went into the country to think, accompanied by Balfour and advisers, and finally came to a decision. He decided to put world peace ahead of national desire for money. But news of the decision leaked out; even reached London, and when Lloyd George returned to Paris, there newspaper headlines confronted him with the demand of the British, which was substantially, 'Live up to your promise or get out.'

"The peace proposals, as a result, hung fire for weeks and months, and still are unsettled. Lloyd George's mistake, the promise he could not fulfill, touched the whole world.

"But Lloyd George is a great man. He is one of the greatest men of the century. His leadership and enthusiasm were worth 100,000 fighting men.

"Continuing the thread of peace negotiations, a form of peace pact was signed in the Versailles Palace finally, which in form was a league of nations. President Wilson hurried back home and presented it to the Senate for ratification. An so far as I know it is still there.

"I believe that if America had entered the league, the present instability, drifting, and unsettled state of affairs would have been ended.

Harding took the presidential chair. He urged a world court. After his death, Calvin Coolidge, the vice president, continued the appeal for a great world tribunal, and only recently, Coolidge, president in his own right, again made an unanswerable argument for America's adoption of the world court plans.

"Although I am a Democrat, I would rather see a Republican in office working for peace, than a Democrat who would not work for peace. I can't see how a church man, after attending services and saying amen to the Biblical 'peace on earth, good will to all men,' can go out and be indifferent to world peace.

"What is America doing for peace? Nothing.

"As soon as the present state of exhaustion is passed in Europe, we have no assurance that there will not be another war.

"Armaments are not being reduced. Europe now has more men under arms than at any time before, save during the World war. Europe is spending money for war, and so are we. Unless we end war, war will end us."

CALL TESTIMONY IN KIRBY CASE

With the opening statements out of the way, introduction of testimony in the case of Josiah Kirby, founder and first president of the Cleveland Discount company, and Raymond L. Poland, its former treasurer, charged with issuing a false financial statement began with the opening of court today in Cleveland.

The testimony, largely technical in its nature, will be heard by a jury of six men and six women, with a seventh woman, sitting as an alternate juror.

The state will attempt to prove, according to David E. Green, special counsel, that Poland prepared the alleged false statement at the direction of Poland, and that while the figures shown in the report disclosed a surplus in excess of $1,300,000, there was an actual deficit of approximately $1,000,000.

COUNCIL HOLDS BRIEF SESSION

Discussion centered about the Wells avenue paving program and the proposed improvement of sewer conditions in Twentieth street occupied the attention of city council last night.

The solons held only a short session.

Clerk George Hardman was instructed to go to Lisbon as soon as possible to investigate former street assessment rates—those made prior to 1902. The findings will be reviewed in connection with Wells avenue assessments.

Several estimates on the cost of improving sewer conditions in Twentieth street, prepared by engineers, were submitted to the solons by Director A. P. Dennis.

The estimates revealed that the work could hardly be done for less then $4,000.

How to Solve Puzzle.

The best way to solve this cross-word puzzle is to run over the list of horizontal and vertical synonyms in search of evident or "easy" words. If horizontal, the word you are looking for must extend crosswise from the number to the first shaded stop on the right; if vertical, it must extend downward from the number to the first shaded stop below. When finished, the words should read equally well crosswise and downward.

Municipal Air Ports

The federal government has done admirable work in developing the air mail. Now cities and manufacturers are beginning to make real aviation progress, adapting their activities to those of the government.

A significant step in this direction has just been taken by Cleveland. It has acquired a municipal aviation field on the edge of the city, almost a square mile in extent, and expects soon to double that area. The government will start using the field immediately as an air mail station, on the busy New York-Chicago route. An important airplane manufacturer will move his plant alongside the new field. Other manufacturers are expected to do likewise, because of the exceptional advantages offered. The government may take one of its big air training schools there. A big airplane industry will probably grow up around that field, and in a few years it may become one of the great air ports of the world.

Meanwhile Henry Ford has started manufacturing airplanes in Detroit, developing a new type of plane and preparing for quantity production, using a training field of his own. Detroit has unusual landing facilities, though nothing yet equal to Cleveland's.

Kansas City is said to have been the real pioneer in the acquisition of a municipal landing field for airplanes, and expects naturally to become a leading continental air port.

This is a branch of enterprise sure to grow rapidly in importance from now on, and fortunate will be the cities establishing their fields and providing port and factory facilities early in the game.

Roosevelt Adventure

Theodore and Kermit Roosevelt, true sons of Bwana Tumbo, are going on a sort of fairy hunting trip into interior Asia. They will follow part of the route of Marco Polo, the great Venetian traveler of the middle ages. It will take them through the Vale of Kashmir and on through jungle and foothills to the cloudland of the northern Himalaya slopes, toward China.

Their quest is for strange specimens of wild life. That is one of the few untraveled regions left for the exploration and conquest of modern man.

It will be a romantic trip, and a hard one, worthy of the Roosevelt name.

"Teddy," the hunter and naturalist, always had a strong hold on the hearts of his countrymen, and he may be remembered for his exploits in our own west and south, in East Africa and in the Amazon country, when his political record has grown dim. The elder Roosevelt would approve of this venture for his sons, and they fit into his hunting togs rather more easily than they fit into his political shoes.

Simple Wills

When Edward D. White, former chief justice of the supreme court, died a few years ago, his will was cited as an example of brevity and simplicity as well as legality. It avoided the involved terminology and complex division of the estate found in many wills.

Recently another example of a commendably brief will has been made public. A Californian has left a will disposing of $3,000,000 which he wrote on a bit of pasteboard the size of a postcard. He used about 100 words to divide his property among his nine heirs-at-law.

He set a good example in two respects: Preparing a will and making it simple and short. Too many persons postpone making wills because they imagine somehow it implies a morbid contemplation of early death. Some others make wills of such freakish content that they lose much of dignity and value.

It is good sense to make a will, and the person who has done so can then live to be 100 years old with a contented mind so far as the disposal of his property is concerned, particularly if the will is clearly and simply drawn.

The Aerie

For 50 years eaglets had been reared in a nest near Vermilion, Ohio. Last year a hunter killed Mr. Eagle. Mrs. Eagle soon thereafter went in search of another mate and brought him back to the old nest. A new family was well on the way when a gale swept the nest down. It was eight feet wide, 12 deep and weighed a ton. Two partly formed birds were found in the wreckage of broken shells. There were also bones of animals picked clean by young eaglets years and years ago.

Dr. F. H. Herrick, professor of biology at Western Reserve university, had made an observatory in a neighboring tree and had studied the birds closely for three years, making many photographs. This year he was prepared to take moving pictures. He hopes the pair will build a new aerie and raise a new brood not too far away.

This is the kind of study which means something. Putting forlorn specimens of the bird-o'-freedom in cages, making them do tricks entirely beneath their dignity, or leaving them in ill-kept zoos to be gazed upon in idle curiosity seems hardly worth its cost in money and human self-respect, not to mention any other considerations.

Roosevelt, on one of his tours, had a cage built for himself, from which he could safely observe big game and take pictures as well as shoot.

The killing of this great old eagle last fall was regarded as a calamity and a crime by all northern Ohio. That hunter will never shoot another eagle.

Gradually the human race does grow more human, after all.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, March 18.—A reluctant sun thinned some of the fog this morning. And so we fared forth for a walk to Trafalgar Square along the Strand before breakfast. The curbs were as usual lined with those trembling, shell shocked war victims—selling matches, toys and other trifling gimcracks.

And at Charing Cross were the same tight bonneted Coster women hawking Scotch heather "a tuppence a bunch, lydy." The sodden news venders with their billboards fore and aft emblazoned in stud type the early morning news: "Death Mystery at Pott Shrigley."

The pigeons about the square were waiting for the morning feeders and the beggars were drifting out to their stands. At Whitehall the guards in their six feet high fur caps with straps were exhanging posts. London is always the same. It never changes.

Haymarket offers a kaleidoscopic view of London in the morning. It is a sort of Forty-second street, New York, as a thoroughfare for workers. Bank clerks in lemon gloves and carrying canes. Old boys in silk hats headed for eye-openers. Prim typists. A sprinkling of monocled dandies.

We put in at Oddenino's for breakfast. And failed as usual to get ice water. There is an exasperating and flinty stubbornness about granting this request in London. Servants express the horror of being asked for a stein of carbolic acid.

The taxi is not so cheap as in Paris, but it is much cheaper than in New York and the cabs excel either city. We drove through Regent and Threadneedle streets and along the Thames embankment and then out through Hyde Park.

I have an impression that London is more poverty stricken than ever. The streets are filled with unemployed. Some of them carrying banners telling of their plight in a fashion that must embarrass the crown.

While waiting for my wife in front of Simpson's for lunch I had an adventure. On the channel boat I had given my ankle a slight wrench and to protect it leaned rather heavily on a walking stick. I suppose I remained too long in one spot for an English bobbie came up. "Move sprightly," he ordered. I told him sprightliness was not in my line and gave him what I considered a nasty look. He asked to see my "pipers"—meaning my passport. It was in my trunk and I had visions of a ride in the wagon where you look out the little barred window like a caged circus bear. He reflected awhile and walked away. I hope he catches his chinstrap in a meat hook or something.

Then, again, I went to a theater ticket agency for seats to a music hall matinee. "Two good seats," I said. "You mean stalls?" he corrected and so long as they want to call them that I let it pass. He studied his chart and gave me two tickets. "Very good stalls," he said, passing them over. I paid the tariff, but was determined to have the last word. "Thanks for the seats," I said, departing merrily. London appears to have a grouch.

This evening I walked dwon through Houndsditch and watched the queer old characters who collect about the pubs there—cabmen, charwomen and the Alfs and 'Arrys. In one pub I sat next to a scene shifter at the Drury Lane. He told me that London was not what it used to be. We need, he said, another "King H'edward!" I suggested that the Prince of Wales was evincing the same flair for popularity. "But," he said, "he goes hitting it off for H'america and being talked about." The night life of London is somewhat like that of New York—supper clubs where liquor is sold in violation of the law. There is nothing interesting or new about it. I have a feeling of regret that I left Paris. Perhaps it's the fog.

HASKIN'S LETTER

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A New Dawes Plan.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—No legislative performance has drawn more attention than the behavior of General Charles G. Dawes, new vice president of the United States, on the occasion of his induction into office in the senate chamber on March 4. Two schools of thought have sprung up regarding the occurrence, one which condemns his speech and his actions and the other which condemns the formality of the senate which, it was claimed, the vice president shattered.

The presiding officer of the senate did three things to which many people have objected and which many have applauded. First, in his inaugural address, he bitterly attacked the rules of the body to which he had just come as presiding officer. Second, he departed from the custom of one hundred and fifty years in swearing in new senators. Third, he did not return to the chamber after the inaugural address of President Coolidge, but repaired to the White House with the presidential party, where he lunched and then reviewed the parade.

It is a tradition of the senate that newcomers shall be modest in bearing and speech. The august body sets great store by its dignity; indeed calls itself the greatest deliberative body in the world, which it probably is. The rule or custom has relaxed to some extent, but in earlier days it was considered bad taste for a new senator to address the senate under one or perhaps two years' service.

The first conspicuous breach of this tenet of senatorial etiquette was on the occasion of the election of Senator La Follette. At the very outset of his service, the Wisconsin senator proceeded to address the senate, speaking vehemently and condemning some of the conservative measures of the Republican party. About half the members present rose and deliberately stalked from the chamber. The new senator was not abashed, however. He could not help but notice the action of the senate, intended as a rebuke for him, so, interrupting the course of his speech, he remarked: "The senators who now are walking out of this chamber before long will be walking out to stay." By this he meant that times were changing to such an extent that too conservative senators would not be re-elected to the body and, in this, time proved him to be partially correct.

It was the same feeling in modified form which caused senators to be incensed at the scolding they received from the new vice president on the occasion of his very first utterance in the historic chamber.

Old Custom Violated.

For a century and a half the same custom has been followed in swearing in new senators. Their names are called in groups of four and they come forward, escorted by their colleagues, already members. Four take the oath and sign the roll. Then four more are called. The vice president scarcely had begun the ceremony of swearing in when he became impatient. With characteristic vehemence he shouted to the clerk: "Call the names of all the senators who are to take the oath."

Two dozen new senators therefore were herded down into the narrow space before the rostrum and sworn in together, thus breaking the 150-year-old custom. Further, the vice president neglected to have them sign the roll. He then abruptly recessed the senate and the body proceeded to the stand where the president was to deliver his address.

To the surprise and dismay of the experienced senators, after the address had been delivered, the new vice president rode down the avenue to the White House, having called it a day, as far as the senate was concerned. After consultation among themselves, several of the older senators had Senator Watson take the chair and preside over the remainder of the day's proceedings. The next day it was necessary, with the vice president in the chair, to adopt a special resolution validating the proceedings had in the general's absence. It was explained that General Dawes had been misinformed about the procedure, but this did not appease the stickers for form.

Now there are many persons firmly of the opinion that to put so much stress on formalism is un-American and unnecessary. They greatly admired General Dawes for cutting the senatorial red tape, expediting business, scolding the senate because of its rules and otherwise ignoring tradition. It was just another chapter in the list of incidents which have made the general famous as a man of action and commonsense.

Rites and forms seem to have a fixed place, however. The ceremonies of the American congress do not compare with those of older countries, for instance, the British parliament. There the parliament is opened by the king in robes. The lords, the commons and the functionaires enter with the utmost pomp and circumstance.

Address From the Throne.

The king delivers the address from the throne, making certain traditional statements to the lords and others to the commons; still others to both. Laws are suggested. It is a fixed form for the commons immediately after to propose measures seemingly in defiance of the king. This merely is a form followed to emphasize the independence of the parliament. Yet the form has been followed for centuries and doubtless will continue for generations.

A ceremony of special interest recently took place in the house of lords when former Prime Minister Asquith was raised to the peerage as Earl of Oxford and Asquith. It was in almost all respects the same as it was a thousand years ago, being based largely on the old Norman ceremony of robing a noble. The official papers were inscribed, not in English, but in Norman French and Latin—as they have been on such occasions for centuries. Black Rod, a herald, led the procession, followed by Garter, king-at-arms, the chief of the college of heralds. The lord great chamberlain followed in the robes of a marques. Then followed the new peer between his sponsors, Lord Balfour and Lord Beauhamp. All were in gorgeous robes. The letters patent were read and Lord Oxford declared to be an earl "by the king's sign manual."

Incidentally, it is interesting to note that the British parliament has five former prime ministers as members—three in the lords and two in the commons. The Earle of Oxford and of Balfour and of Roseberry are in the lords, while David Lloyd George and Ramsay McDonald sit in the commons. This is comparable to having five former presidents of the United States sitting in congress. But one president has ever returned to congress. John Quincy Adams, after quitting the White House, was elected to the house of representatives.

The reasons for ceremonies are deep seated. They are intended to put all persons on notice that an important public event is occurring. Inaugurations and coronations are staged elaborately for the same reason. In the past there have been occasions when men have usurped realms by secretly getting possession of the reins of power and when assemblies have met clandestinely and overthrown established orders. When new officials are inducted into office and legislative assemblies meet under circumstances of ritual and ostentation there is no doubt possible about what it all means.

This is the real reason for the objection which was raised to the informal conduct of Vice President Dawes.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF BIG CITIES

By CARL L. TURNER.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 18.—School children in Indiana will stand by President Coolidge—even to the extent of going without their lunch, if necessary.

Notwithstanding the natural appatite for food enjoyed by every healthy youngster—and Indiana youngsters are healthy—500 school children at Noblesville, Ind., voted to dispense with the noon lunch to hear the president's inaugural message over radio.

When Mrs. C. S. Meloy, principal, installed the radio receiving set, it did not occur to her that the ceremonies in Washington were to take place between 12 and 1 p. m., Central standard time. Not desiring to impose a hardship on her pupils, the principal put to a vote the matter of remaining in class to hear the speech.

The vote was unanimous.

While taxpayers may hold a grievance against the state senate for going on "strike" recently, with the legislative hamper overflowing, each member of the senate has a life-long friend in every Hoosier hound.

Friendship of the dogs was made steadfast when the senate passed a bill prohibiting the cutting of dogs' tails and the clipping of their ears.

However, the edict of the senate may result in the American Kennel club barring Indiana dogs from shows sponsored by that organization, it was reported.

Mrs. J. H. Donahue, vice president of the State Federation of Humane societies, said the matter of urging the kennel club to alter its rules to permit unclipped dogs to compete, is under consideration.

"If the American Kennel club would rule against such practice it would be effective throughout the country," the humane society officials declared. "But for one state to adopt such a rule would result in owners taking their dogs outside Indiana to have them clipped.

"Four years ago the kennel club ruled against clipping the ears of English bulldogs. As breeders want to compete in the club's shows, all would respect a ruling against cutting dogs' tails."

Indianapolis "flappers" and co-eds from Butler university would brush the dust from old Diogenes' famed lamp and go in quest of a "gentleman."

The girls say they care not who his haberdasher might be, but the winner of the "gentleman's" toga must prove his claim first and last by offering his seat in a crowded street car to some member of their sex, even though she be not beautiful nor shrinking under the weight of years.

Butler girls, aroused to indignation at the modern youth's willingness to sit complacently in a crowded car while his schoolgirl associates scramble for the dangling straps, appealed to local newspapers to aid in the unique search.

One Butler girl thought she had found the "gentleman" when a young man leaped to his feet, with all the gallantry of ancient knighthood, to tender her a seat. But later she learned that he was not an Indianapolis youth, and the quest was resumed.

Municipal Air Ports

The federal government has done admirable work in developing the air mail. Now cities and manufacturers are beginning to make real aviation progress, adapting their activities to those of the government.

A significant step in this direction has just been taken by Cleveland. It has acquired a municipal aviation field on the edge of the city, almost a square mile in extent, and expects soon to double that area. The government will start using the field immediately as an air mail station, on the busy New York-Chicago route. An important airplane manufacturer will move his plant alongside the new field. Other manufacturers are expected to do likewise, because of the exceptional advantages offered. The government may take one of its big air training schools there. A big airplane industry will probably grow up around that field, and in a few years it may become one of the great air ports of the world.

Meanwhile Henry Ford has started manufacturing airplanes in Detroit, developing a new type of plane and preparing for quantity production, using a training field of his own. Detroit has unusual landing facilities, though nothing yet equal to Cleveland's.

Kansas City is said to have been the real pioneer in the acquisition of a municipal landing field for airplanes, and expects naturally to become a leading continental air port.

This is a branch of enterprise sure to grow rapidly in importance from now on, and fortunate will be the cities establishing their fields and providing port and factory facilities early in the game.

Rooseveltian Adventure

Theodore and Kermit Roosevelt, true sons of Bwana Tumbo, are going on a sort of fairy hunting trip into interior Asia. They will follow part of the route of Marco Polo, the great Venetian traveler of the middle ages. It will take them through the Vale of Kashmir and on through jungle and foothills to the cloudland of the northern Himalaya slopes, toward China.

Their quest is for strange specimens of wild life. That is one of the few untraveled regions left for the exploration and conquest of modern man.

It will be a romantic trip, and a hard one, worthy of the Roosevelt name.

"Teddy," the hunter and naturalist, always had a strong hold on the hearts of his countrymen, and he may be remembered for his exploits in our own west and south, in East Africa and in the Amazon country, when his political record has grown dim. The elder Roosevelt would approve of this venture for his sons, and they fit into his hunting togs rather more easily than they fit into his political shoes.

Simple Wills

When Edward D. White, former chief justice of the supreme court, died a few years ago, his will was cited as an example of brevity and simplicity as well as legality. It avoided the involved terminology and complex division of the estate found in many wills.

Recently another example of a commendably brief will has been made public. A Californian has left a will disposing of $3,000,000 which he wrote on a bit of pasteboard the size of a postcard. He used about 100 words to divide his property among his nine heirs-at-law.

He set a good example in two respects: Preparing a will and making it simple and short. Too many persons postpone making wills because they imagine somehow it implies a morbid contemplation of early death. Some others make wills of such freakish content that they lose much of dignity and value.

It is good sense to make a will, and the person who has done so can then live to be 100 years old with a contented mind so far as the disposal of his property is concerned, particularly if the will is clearly and simply drawn.

The Aerie

For 50 years eaglets had been reared in a nest near Vermilion, Ohio. Last year a hunter killed Mr. Eagle. Mrs. Eagle soon thereafter went in search of another mate and brought him back to the old nest. A new family was well on the way when a gale swept the nest down. It was eight feet wide, 12 deep and weighed a ton. Two partly formed birds were found in the wreckage of broken shells. There were also bones of animals picked clean by young eaglets years and years ago.

Dr. F. H. Herrick, professor of biology at Western Reserve university, had made an observatory in a neighboring tree and had studied the birds closely for three years, making many photographs. This year he was prepared to take moving pictures. He hopes the pair will build a new aerie and raise a new brood not too far away.

This is the kind of study which means something. Putting forlorn specimens of the bird-o'-freedom in cages, making them do tricks entirely beneath their dignity, or leaving them in ill-kept zoos to be gazed upon in idle curiosity seems hardly worth its cost in money and human self-respect, not to mention any other considerations.

Roosevelt, on one of his tours, had a cage built for himself, from which he could safely observe big game and take pictures as well as shoot.

The killing of this great old eagle last fall was regarded as a calamity and a crime by all northern Ohio. That hunter will never shoot another eagle.

Gradually the human race does grow more human, after all.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LONDON, March 18.—A reluctant sun thinned some of the fog this morning. And so we fared forth for a walk to Trafalgar Square along the Strand before breakfast. The curbs were as usual lined with those trembling, shell shocked war victims—selling matches, toys and other trifling gimcracks.

And at Charing Cross were the same tight bonneted Coster women hawking Scotch heather "a tuppence a bunch, lydy." The sodden news venders with their billboards fore and aft emblazoned in stud type the early morning news: "Death Mystery at Pott Shrigley."

The pigeons about the square were waiting for the morning feeders and the beggars were drifting out to their stands. At Whitehall the guards in their six feet high fur caps with straps were exhanging posts. London is always the same. It never changes.

Haymarket offers a kaleidoscopic view of London in the morning. It is a sort of Forty-second street, New York, as a thoroughfare for workers. Bank clerks in lemon gloves and carrying canes. Old boys in silk hats headed for eye-openers. Prim typists. A sprinkling of monocled dandies.

We put in at Oddenino's for breakfast. And failed as usual to get ice water. There is an exasperating and flinty stubbornness about granting this request in London. Servants express the horror of being asked for a stein of carbolic acid.

The taxi is not so cheap as in Paris, but it is much cheaper than in New York and the cabs excel either city. We drove through Regent and Threadneedle streets and along the Thames embankment and then out through Hyde Park.

I have an impression that London is more poverty stricken than ever. The streets are filled with unemployed. Some of them carrying banners telling of their plight in a fashion that must embarrass the crown.

While waiting for my wife in front of Simpson's for lunch I had an adventure. On the channel boat I had given my ankle a slight wrench and to protect it leaned rather heavily on a walking stick. I suppose I remained too long in one spot for an English bobbie came up. "Move sprightly," he ordered. I told him sprightliness was not in my line and gave him what I considered a nasty look. He asked to see my "pipers"—meaning my passport. It was in my trunk and I had visions of a ride in the wagon where you look out the little barred window like a caged circus bear. He reflected awhile and walked away. I hope he catches his chinstrap in a meat hook or something.

Then, again, I went to a theater ticket agency for seats to a music hall matinee. "Two good seats," I said. "You mean stalls?" he corrected and so long as they want to call them that I let it pass. He studied his chart and gave me two tickets. "Very good stalls," he said, passing them over. I paid the tariff, but was determined to have the last word. "Thanks for the seats," I said, departing merrily. London appears to have a grouch.

This evening I walked dwon through Houndsditch and watched the queer old characters who collect about the pubs there—cabmen, charwomen and the Alfs and 'Arrys. In one pub I sat next to a scene shifter at the Drury Lane. He told me that London was not what it used to be. We need, he said, another "King H'edward!" I suggested that the Prince of Wales was evincing the same flair for popularity. "But," he said, "he goes hitting it off for H'america and being talked about." The night life of London is somewhat like that of New York—supper clubs where liquor is sold in violation of the law. There is nothing interesting or new about it. I have a feeling of regret that I left Paris. Perhaps it's the fog.

HASKIN'S LETTER

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A New Dawes Plan.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—No legislative performance has drawn more attention than the behavior of General Charles G. Dawes, new vice president of the United States, on the occasion of his induction into office in the senate chamber on March 4. Two schools of thought have sprung up regarding the occurrence, one which condemns his speech and his actions and the other which condemns the formality of the senate which, it was claimed, the vice president shattered.

The presiding officer of the senate did three things to which many people have objected and which many have applauded. First, in his inaugural address, he bitterly attacked the rules of the body to which he had just come as presiding officer. Second, he departed from the custom of one hundred and fifty years in swearing in new senators. Third, he did not return to the chamber after the inaugural address of President Coolidge, but repaired to the White House with the presidential party, where he lunched and then reviewed the parade.

It is a tradition of the senate that newcomers shall be modest in bearing and speech. The august body sets great store by its dignity; indeed calls itself the greatest deliberative body in the world, which it probably is. The rule or custom has relaxed to some extent, but in earlier days it was considered bad taste for a new senator to address the senate under one or perhaps two years' service.

The first conspicuous breach of this tenet of senatorial etiquette was on the occasion of the election of Senator La Follette. At the very outset of his service, the Wisconsin senator proceeded to address the senate, speaking vehemently and condemning some of the conservative measures of the Republican party. About half the members present rose and deliberately stalked from the chamber. The new senator was not abashed, however. He could not help but notice the action of the senate, intended as a rebuke for him, so, interrupting the course of his speech, he remarked: "The senators who now are walking out of this chamber before long will be walking out to stay." By this he meant that times were changing to such an extent that too conservative senators would not be re-elected to the body and, in this, time proved him to be partially correct.

It was the same feeling in modified form which caused senators to be incensed at the scolding they received from the new vice president on the occasion of his very first utterance in the historic chamber.

Old Custom Violated.

For a century and a half the same custom has been followed in swearing in new senators. Their names are called in groups of four and they come forward, escorted by their colleagues, already members. Four take the oath and sign the roll. Then four more are called. The vice president scarcely had begun the ceremony of swearing in when he became impatient. With characteristic vehemence he shouted to the clerk: "Call the names of all the senators who are to take the oath."

Two dozen new senators therefore were herded down into the narrow space before the rostrum and sworn in together, thus breaking the 150-year-old custom. Further, the vice president neglected to have them sign the roll. He then abruptly recessed the senate and the body proceeded to the stand where the president was to deliver his address.

To the surprise and dismay of the experienced senators, after the address had been delivered, the new vice president rode down the avenue to the White House, having called it a day, as far as the senate was concerned. After consultation among themselves, several of the older senators had Senator Watson take the chair and preside over the remainder of the day's proceedings. The next day it was necessary, with the vice president in the chair, to adopt a special resolution validating the proceedings had in the general's absence. It was explained that General Dawes had been misinformed about the procedure, but this did not appease the stickers for form.

Now there are many persons firmly of the opinion that to put so much stress on formalism is un-American and unnecessary. They greatly admired General Dawes for cutting the senatorial red tape, expediting business, scolding the senate because of its rules and otherwise ignoring tradition. It was just another chapter in the list of incidents which have made the general famous as a man of action and commonsense.

Rites and forms seem to have a fixed place, however. The ceremonies of the American congress do not compare with those of older countries, for instance, the British parliament. There the parliament is opened by the king in robes. The lords, the commons and the functionaires enter with the utmost pomp and circumstance.

Address From the Throne.

The king delivers the address from the throne, making certain traditional statements to the lords and others to the commons; still others to both. Laws are suggested. It is a fixed form for the commons immediately after to propose measures seemingly in defiance of the king. This merely is a form followed to emphasize the independence of the parliament. Yet the form has been followed for centuries and doubtless will continue for generations.

GOVERNOR MAY VETO GAS TAX

Passage of Brown Bill is Expected Late Today.

COLUMBUS, Mar. 18—Passage of the hard fought Brown gasoline tax bill is expected to be completed by the legislature today, when the house is scheduled to concur in the compromise on the measure recommended by the joint conference committee. The measure has passed the senate. The bill levies a two-cent tax on gasoline, cuts auto tag fees to $4, $6 and $10 and will raise $10,000,000.

Governor Donahey's attitude on the bill is expected to determine whether the new gasoline tax will become a reality at once, or whether supporters will be forced to pass it over an executive veto and then face a test in a referendum at the polls. The governor's attitude on the measure is unknown.

When the bill was first presented he told legislative leaders he favored the measure if all the proceeds could be turned into the state highway fund and the state could take over all road maintenance. This radical change in the state policy was not agreeable to legislative leaders. It was reported today the governor might sign the measure because of the 50 per cent. cut in auto tag fees, but general opinion among legislators indicated they believed the governor would again wield his veto axe when the measure reached him.

Other Measures Pending

The Buchanan-Bible bill will get its third airing before a legislative committee tonight, when the senate schools committee is scheduled to consider the measure. The same line up of supporters and opponents of the bill are scheduled to attend.

Fate of the measure is believed problematical. Supporters probably will be able to force a report by the committee recommending passage. If so there are sufficient votes on the floor to pass the bill, which already had passed the house.

Other measures scheduled for second reading and reference in the senate after passage by the house include:

By Representative Liles, Huron, regulating the kind and weight of vehicles permitted to travel over intercounty and main market roads; by Sullivan, Union, providing for reimbursement of county and independent fair organizations for money spent in junior club work; by Hays, Belmont, permitting admission of children under 12 to the state tuberculosis sanitarium, Mt. Vernon; by Wise, Summit, providing for policing of state parks and resorts, and eliminating provisions which would have permitted card deputies.

Among other measures scheduled for second reading and reference in the senate is the bill of Senator Cummins, Lorain, providing for a police court for Ashland.

If Food Causes Stomach Trouble

If Bloating, Gassiness, Heartburn, Sour Stomach or Such Distresses Follow Meals be Sure to Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A good appetite for the savory dishes, come what may, or as they say, "from soup to nuts," is one of life's chief enjoyments. Then, on the other hand, stomach distress afterward is one of life's chief disappointments. To enjoy eating and feel perfectly safe one should follow meals with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They aid digestion, they stop sour fermentation, they take up the sour risings and gassiness, they sweeten the stomach by giving it the alkaline effect and they also stimulate secretions in the stomach and intestines.

Thus, whether you eat pork and beans, sausage and buckwheat cakes, mince pie and cheese, or the foods that most people complain of making the stomach uneasy and sour, you experience that happy state of enjoyable, solid comfort.

gine as short lived as an ice cream cone.

Mussolini, as was surmised, is suffering from ulcers in the duodenum, the short intestine, into which the stomach opens. That can be cured if the walls of the intestines have not been eaten through. Ten days' fasting and a good course of saline cathartics will discourage and clear out the alambia bacilli. A half-pint of sour milk, soured with the Metchnikoff baccillus, plus careful living, will do the work and keep things right.

The hemorrhages in Mussolini's case are the dangerous sign. A disease like his killed Napoleon at St. Helena. But in Napoleon's case depression and despair did half the work. Mussolini has many interesting things to live for, and probably will live.

Faimen are charged with murdering one William Nelson McClintock.

CHICAGO, Mar. 18—Through the alchemy of legal procedure, true bills, voted by the Cook county grand jury charging William Darling Shepherd and "Dr." Charles C. Faiman with murder in connection with the death of William Nelson McClintock, last blood heir to the McClintock millions, were to become formal indictments today.

This was the plan of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. Automatically Shepherd and Faiman become legal prisoners, which hitherto they have not been, and automatically Shepherd's writ of habeas corpus becomes useless, for Crowe has declared he will oppose all efforts to admit the prisoners to bail.

The State's next step will be preparation for what Crowe predicts will be one of the most sensational criminal trials in recent history—A trial which he believes will eclipse the battle for the lives of Nathan L. Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, slayers of Robert Franks.

Discover New Evidence.

Excepting for the action of the grand jury in voting true bills late yesterday, the most important development in the case in the last few hours was admittedly the discovery of evidence tending to corroborate the confession of Dr. Faiman that he supplied Shepherd with death-dealing typhoid bacilli from cultures at his National University of Science.

This partial corroboration came from Robert White, a former aid of Faiman's at his university. White was located early today and brought to the state's attorney's office. He singled Shepherd out from several other men and positively identified him as the man who, on one occasion at least, had visited Faiman's school.

"He appeared so interested," White said, "that I took him on a little tour of inspection. After a time he left, saying he would be back later."

And to this accusation, Shepherd shot out his only term of denial—"liar."

Witness Tells Story.

White, in consequence of the importance of his testimony, will be held under guard by State's Attorney Crowe.

Before he was confronted with Shepherd he was closely questioned by the assistant prosecutors. He said he was 28 years old and that he lived at 6043 University avenue. He declared that he had seen a student at the Faiman institution and that he worked for Faiman in part payment of his tuition fees.

"I remember a man who visited the school in October of 1923," he told his questioneers. "I was the only person in the office, others having gone to lunch. This man I speak of came in and asked to see the registrar. I told him the registrar was out but that he could see President Faiman if he would wait. He did so, and during the time that passed he asked many questions about the school and its laboratory equipment."

Letter is Found.

In addition to the identification and corroboration of White's statements, there was further substantiation of Faiman's confession in the form of a letter to Dwight G. Wallace, 22 West Monroe street, an architect.

This letter made an appointment between Faiman and Wallace at which plans for a new college and medical school were discussed. Marginal notes indicated that Faiman expected to invest approximately $150,000 and that capital of $100,000 was needed. According to the Faiman confession, he was to receive $100,000 from Shepherd when the latter received the $1,000,000 McClintock estate in return for "help" in eliminating Billy.

An attempt to gather up the loose reins of the case and bring out corroborative evidence will be started today immediately after the formal indictments are returned. It is not expected the case will go to trial for at least two months.

First Niles Riot Trial Ends; Greco Is Found Guilty

WARREN, O., Mar. 18—Peter Greco, first of the more than 100 indicted for offenses growing out of the Klan and anti-Klan rioting at Niles November 1, today was found guilty of carrying concealed deadly weapons. The jury deliberated 32 minutes, the first ballot standing 11 to 1 for conviction.

The defense immediately filed a motion for a new trial, and Judge J. S. Thomas reserved sentence.

Under Ohio laws, Greco, alleged to have been a leader in the Knights of the Flaming Circle, anti-Klan organization, may be sentenced to not less than one year or more than three years in the Ohio penitentiary, and fined $500.

Louis Corro, another alleged member of the anti-Klan organization, was immediately ordered into the box and his trial started.

A bitter attack upon Mayor Harvey Kistler, of Niles, featured the closing address of O. E. Diser, chief defense counsel. Diser declared that Kistler was "responsible for the rioting," and asserted that during the rioting the mayor was not at his post of duty but was "at Klan field swearing in special policemen."

"The mayor," he added, "along with several other Trumbull county officials, and not this defendant, should be the ones before you in this court."

Attorney General, On Way to Capital, Faces Many Problems

WASHINGTON, Mar. 18—When John Garibaldi Sargent, the new attorney-general, steps into the department of justice tomorrow, he will confront an array of complex issues and problems such as few of his predecessors have faced at the outset of their administrations.

The new attorney-general is described by his few intimates in Washington as a rugged country lawyer with a record of "quiet industry." His assistants at the department admitted today that the mountainous stack of work at the department would require all his ruggedness and yankee ingenuity.

The attorney-general was due to arrive in Washington this afternoon for his first conference with Mr. Coolidge. He was to go direct to the White House, where he will be a guest for several days.

Daniels does not believe the country is in a terrible condition. Admitting that the tendency is to blame the current administration always for economic ills, he pointed out that every citizen should help to make the country what he wants it to be.

In his travels in recent weeks, he has found places where prosperity is abounding; other places suffering from depression. Conditions, he said, are not extraordinary.

Court Bill

fices of five justices of the peace in Liverpool township would automatically be abolished with the establishment of the court.

Despite the fact that Governor Donahey last Saturday, vetoed the Ashtabula municipal court measure, friends of the bill hope that he will sign the East Liverpool proposal. Governor Donahey, it is said, is opposed to the establishment of municipal courts because of the lack of a uniform system governing their operation.

The governor has 10 days in which to sign or veto the measure. Should he fail to act within that time, it becomes a law without his signature.

The Guilford park bill provides for the purchase of approximately 500 acres of land in the vicinity of the old Guildford dam, about six miles north of Lisbon, for a state park. The bill carries with it an appropriation of $32,000 for the land and also an appropriation of $15,300 with which to close up the opening in the canal embankment, which was made when the canal was drained many years ago.

Governor Donahey has pledged his support of the bill and will sign it, according to members of the Columbiana County Fish and Game Protective association, sponsors of the measure.

Sentence Is Suspended.

A suspended sentence of $100 and costs and 10 days in jail was meted out yesterday by Justice P. V. Mackall, to J. Russell on a charge of contributing toward the delinquency of his minor children.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Mar. 18—With the uncertainty over the St. Paul railroad reorganization removed and a considerable volume of short lines to be covered, the market appeared ready for a rally today and prices of industrial and railroad stocks displayed a firm tone in the early trading.

First prices for many of the market leaders like American Can, Allis Chalmers in the industrials, Willys Overland preferred in the Motors and Union Pacific and Norfolk and Western in the rails, were up to 1 3½ points in the initial sales.

The financial district received with complacency the formal announcement of the decsion of the St. Paul railroad directors to readjust the financial structure of the road, the anthat has been hanging over the markets for about two months. The junior bonds fared worse in the selling than the stocks, the 1925 maturities of the bonds losing about 4 points additional while the common and preferred stocks actually gained fractionally in the early trading.

Confidence also returned to the main list of railroad stocks which were in retreat in the first two sessions of the week. Union Pacific, Rock Island, Norfolk and Western, Atchison and other leaders in the railroad list were in good demand at a point or more higher.

Under the leadership of the Pan-Americans, oil stocks made a much better showing than during yesterday' break.

The Motor stocks recovered, with Hudson and Willys Overland preferred in the lead and Studebaker and General Motors advancing in good form. The so-called Durant stocks, Cast Iron Pipe, Independent Oil and Gas, American Safety Razor and Universal Pipe sold up from 2 to 10 points. Copper and Sugar stocks were dull, Equipment stocks strong.

Call money renewed at 3½ per cent.

Will Punish Parents Who Neglect Children In Mountain State

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March.—The sharp teeth of the law are going to sink deeply into the pocketbook of parents responsible for the delinquency of their children.

And these teeth are sufficiently sharp to amputate cleanly $500 from the bankroll of a parent adjudged guilty.

Judge Morgan Owen has become indignant over the many cases of child delinquency caused by parents and has started a campaign to bring it to an end.

"In 99 cases out of each hundred coming before me the fault of the child rests entirely with the parents," he declared.

YOUR HEALTH

Erysipelas Is Not Catching But Needs Quick Relief

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York

THERE are a lot of mean diseases. No matter what you have you wish you had something else. When you get erysipelas, you certainly are sorry it isn't almost any other ailment.

The most common form of this disease attacks the face and head. It used to be regarded as a "catching disease." It is known now to be due to infection with a particular germ. If you can escape the germ you won't get erysipelas.

Like most of the so-called infectious diseases the attacks begins with a chill and vomiting. Then the fever comes on, increasing quickly to 103 to 104 and even 105 degrees.

A red spot appears somewhere on the skin. This patch surrounds the place where the infecting germ entered, or it may come at some place where the skin and mucous membrane join. One common place is at the corner of the mouth. Another is the corner of the eye.

No matter where it begins the patch of redness quickly spreads. The remarkable thing is that the signs of the spot are always hard and raised up above the level of the adjoining and as yet uninvolved skin. There is a sharp border line.

The swelling is very great and very hard. The face and head appear terribly swollen. The eyes may be closed in consequence.

The surface may be shiny red and smooth or there may be blisters on the skin. The surface is painful to the touch. On pressure there may be pitting of the surface and slow return of the skin on release of the pressure.

In a few days the redness and swelling begin to decrease and gradually fade away. There will be scaling of the surface and gradual return to normal appearance.

There are many applications for relief of the local symptoms. Ichthyal either in a watery solution or an ointment is a common remedy. The water solution is usually 20-50 per cent the ointment 20-40 per cent. It is painted on the affected surface.

For the intense itching so common to erysipelas, hyposulphite of soda may be used. One tablespoonful of the hyposulphite to one ounce of water is the proportion. This may be applied on gauze, being sure always to keep the dressings well saturated.

In every case of erysipelas the general health must be built up. Fresh air and sunshine in the sickroom will do much to help the patient to complete recovery.

guard against any panic or disorder.

The rescue work was gotten well in hand by Chief Lambie, and efforts to reach the imprisoned miners were proceeding smoothly and with all possible rapidity.

The shaft is 303 feet deep and the workings cover many miles under the hills.

The mine has been working on an open shop basis since last October.

Throughout the night while rescue efforts were being made, scores of women and children crowded around the mouth of the mine awaiting word from the entombed miners. State police and county officers endeavored fruitlessly to force the hysterical women back.

"There'll be another explosion," the officers yelled.

Red Cross Aids.

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 18—Rescue car No. 3 of the United States Bureau of Mines, stationed here, left Pittsburgh early today for mine 41 of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation at Barrackville, three miles West of Fairmont, W. Va., where 34 men are entombed.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 19—The Fairmont chapter of the American Red Cross was authorized by National relief work for today to use such funds as it has in emergency relief work for the disaster stricken miners at Fairmont, W. Va., and to call upon the National organization for further assistence if needed.

The autnorization also stated the chapter's two red cross nurses and secretary should be called to immediate duty if necessary.

GOVERNOR MAY VETO GAS TAX

Passage of Brown Bill is Expected Late Today.

COLUMBUS, Mar. 18—Passage of the hard fought Brown gasoline tax bill is expected to be completed by the legislature today, when the house is scheduled to concur in the compromise on the measure recommended by the joint conference committee. The measure has passed the senate. The bill levies a two-cent tax on gasoline, cuts auto tag fees to $4, $5 and $10 and will raise $10,000,000.

Governor Donahey's attitude on the bill is expected to determine whether the new gasoline tax will become a reality at once, or whether supporters will be forced to pass it over an executive veto and then face a test in a referendum at the polls. The governor's attitude on the measure is unknown.

When the bill was first presented he told legislative leaders he favored the measure if all the proceeds could be turned into the state highway fund and the state could take over all road maintenance. This radical change in the state policy was not agreeable to legislative leaders. It was reported today the governor might sign the measure because of the 50 per cent. cut in auto tag fees, but general opinion among legislators indicated they believed the governor would again wield his veto axe when the measure reached him.

Other Measures Pending

The Buchanan-Bible bill will get its third airing before a legislative committee tonight, when the senate schools committee is scheduled to consider the measure. The same line up of supporters and opponents of the bill are scheduled to attend.

Fate of the measure is believed problematical. Supporters probably will be able to force a report by the committee recommending passage. If so there are sufficient votes on the floor to pass the bill, which already had passed the house.

Other measures scheduled for second reading and reference in the senate after passage by the house include:

By Representative Liles, Huron, regulating the kind and weight of vehicles permitted to travel over inter county and main market roads; by Sullivan, Union, providing for reimbursement of county and independent fair organizations for money spent in junior club work; by Hays, Belmont, permitting admission of children under 12 to the state tuberculosis sanitarium, Mt. Vernon; by Wise, Summit, providing for policing of state parks and resorts, and eliminating provisions which would have permitted card deputies.

Among other measures scheduled for second reading and reference in the senate is the bill of Senator Cummins, Lorain, providing for a police court for Ashland.

If Food Causes Stomach Trouble

If Bloating, Gassiness, Heartburn, Sour Stomach or Such Distresses Follow Meals be Sure to Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A good appetite for the savory dishes, come what may, or as they say "from soup to nuts" is one of life's chief enjoyments. Then, on the other hand, stomach distress afterward is one of life's chief disappointments. To enjoy eating and feel perfectly safe one should follow meals with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They aid digestion, they stop sour fermentation, they take up the sour risings and gassiness, they sweeten the stomach by giving it the alkaline effect and they also stimulate secretions in the stomach and intestines.

Thus, whether you eat pork and beans, sausage and buckwheat cakes, mince pie and cheese, or the foods that most people complain of making the stomach uneasy and sour, you experience that happy state of enjoyable, solid comfort.

Get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at the drug store. Then eat heartily of all the good things of the table. It is surely the best road to continued good health.

Mussolini, as was surmised, is suffering from ulcers in the duodenum, the short intestine, into which the stomach opens. That can be cured if the walls of the intestines have not been eaten through. Ten days' fasting and a good course of saline cathartics will discourage and clear out the alambia bacilli. A half-pint of sour milk, soured with the Metchnikoff bacillus, plus careful living, will do the work and keep things right.

The hemorrhages in Mussolini's case are the dangerous sign. A disease like his killed Napoleon at St. Helena. But in Napoleon's case depression and despair did half the work. Mussolini has many interesting things to live for, and probably will live.

Faimen are charged with murdering one William Nelson McClintock.

CHICAGO, Mar. 18—Through the alchemy of legal procedure, true bills, voted by the Cook county grand jury charging William Darling Shepherd and "Dr." Charles C. Faiman with murder in connection with the death of William Nelson McClintock, last blood heir to the McClintock millions, were to become formal indictments today.

This was the plan of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe. Automatically Shepherd and Faiman become legal prisoners, which hitherto they have not been, and automatically Shepherd's writ of habeas corpus becomes useless, for Crowe has declared he will oppose all efforts to admit the prisoners to bail.

The State's next step will be preparation for what Crowe predicts will be one of the most sensational criminal trials in recent history—A trial which he believes will eclipse the battle for the lives of Nathan L. Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, slayers of Robert Franks.

Discover New Evidence.

Excepting for the action of the grand jury in voting true bills late yesterday, the most important development in the case in the last few hours was admittedly the discovery of evidence tending to corroborate the confession of Dr. Faiman that he supplied Shepherd with death-dealing typhoid bacilli from cultures at his National University of Science.

This partial corroboration came from Robert White, a former aid of Faiman's at his university. White was located early today and brought to the state's attorney's office. He singled Shepherd out from several other men and positively identified him as the man who, on one occasion at least, had visited Faiman's school.

"He appeared so interested," White said, "that I took him on a little tour of inspection. After a time he left, saying he would be back later."

And to this accusation, Shepherd shot out his only term of denial—"liar."

Witness Tells Story.

White, in consequence of the importance of his testimony, will be held under guard by State's Attorney Crowe.

Before he was confronted with Shepherd he was closely questioned by the assistant prosecutors. He said he was 28 years old and that he lived at 6046 University avenue. He declared that he had seen a student at the Faiman institution and that he worked for Faiman in part payment of his tuition fees.

"I remember a man who visited the school in October of 1923," he told his questioneers. "I was the only person in the office, others having gone to lunch. This man I speak of came in and asked to see the registrar. I told him the registrar was out but that he could see President Faiman if he would wait. He did so, and during the time that passed he asked many questions about the school and its laboratory equipment."

Letter is Found.

In addition to the identification and corroboration of White's statements, there was further substantiation of Faiman's confession in the form of a letter to Dwight G. Wallace, 22 West Monroe street, an architect.

This letter made an appointment between Faiman and Wallace at which plans for a new college and medical school were discussed. Marginal notes indicated that Faiman expected to invest approximately $150,000 and that capital of $100,000 was needed. According to the Faiman confession, he was to receive $100,000 from Shepherd when the latter received the $1,000,000 McClintock estate in return for "help" in eliminating Billy.

An attempt to gather up the loose reins of the case and bring out corroborative evidence will be started today immediately after the formal indictments are returned. It is not expected the case will go to trial for at least two months.

First Niles Riot Trial Ends; Greco Is Found Guilty

WARREN, O., Mar. 18—Peter Greco, first of the more than 100 indicted for offenses growing out of the Klan and anti-Klan rioting at Niles November 1, today was found guilty of carrying concealed deadly weapons. The jury deliberated 32 minutes, the first ballot standing 11 to 1 for conviction.

The defense immediately filed a motion for a new trial, and Judge J. S. Thomas reserved sentence.

Under Ohio laws, Greco, alleged to have been a leader in the Knights of the Flaming Circle, anti-Klan organization, may be sentenced to not less than one year or more than three years in the Ohio penitentiary, and fined $500.

Louis Corro, another alleged member of the anti-Klan organization, was immediately ordered into the box and his trial started.

A bitter attack upon Mayor Harvey Kistler, of Niles, featured the closing address of O. E. Diser, chief defense counsel. Diser declared that Kistler was "responsible for the rioting," and asserted that during the rioting the mayor was not at his post of duty but was "at Klan field swearing in special policemen."

"The mayor," he added, "along with several other Trumbull county officials, and not this defendant, should be the ones before you in this court."

Attorney General, On Way to Capital, Faces Many Problems

WASHINGTON, Mar. 18—When John Garibaldi Sargent, the new attorney-general, steps into the department of justice tomorrow, he will confront an array of complex issues and problems such as few of his predecessors have faced at the outset of their administrations.

The new attorney-general is described by his few intimates in Washington as a rugged country lawyer with a record of "quiet industry." His assistants at the department admitted today that the mountainous stack of work at the department would require all his ruggedness and yankee ingenuity.

The attorney-general was due to arrive in Washington this afternoon for his first conference with Mr. Coolidge. He was to go direct to the White House, where he will be a guest for several days.

Court Bill

fices of five justices of the peace in Liverpool township would automatically be abolished with the establishment of the court.

Despite the fact that Governor Donahey last Saturday, vetoed the Ashtabula municipal court measure, friends of the bill hope that he will sign the East Liverpool proposal. Governor Donahey, it is said, is opposed to the establishment of municipal courts because of the lack of a uniform system governing their operation.

The governor has 10 days in which to sign or veto the measure. Should he fail to act within that time, it becomes a law without his signature.

The Guilford park bill provides for the purchase of approximately 500 acres of land in the vicinity of the old Guildford dam, about six miles north of Lisbon, for a state park. The bill carries with it an appropriation of $32,000 for the land and also an appropriation of $15,300 with which to close up the opening in the canal embankment, which was made when the canal was drained many years ago.

Governor Donahey has pledged his support of the bill and will sign it, according to members of the Columbiana County Fish and Game Protective association, sponsors of the measure.

Sentence Is Suspended.

A suspended sentence of $100 and costs and 10 days in jail was meted out yesterday by Justice P. V. Mackall, to J. Russell on a charge of contributing toward the delinquency of his minor children.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Mar. 18—With the uncertainty over the St. Paul railroad reorganization removed and a considerable volume of short lines to be covered, the market appeared ready for a rally today and prices of industrial and railroad stocks displayed a firm tone in the early trading.

First prices for many of the market leaders like American Can, Allis Chalmers in the industrials, Willys Overland preferred in the Motors and Union Pacific and Norfolk and Western in the rails, were up to 1¾ points in the initial sales.

The financial district received with complacency the formal announcement of the decsion of the St. Paul railroad directors to readjust the financial structure of the road, the anthat has been hanging over the markets for about two months. The junior bonds fared worse in the selling than the stocks, the 1925 maturities of the bonds losing about 4 points additional while the common and preferred stocks actually gained fractionally in the early trading.

Confidence also returned to the main list of railroad stocks which were in retreat in the first two sessions of the week. Union Pacific, Rock Island, Norfolk and Western, Atchison and other leaders in the railroad list were in good demand at a point or more higher.

Under the leadership of the Pan-Americans, oil stocks made a much better showing than during yesterday' break.

The Motor stocks recovered, with Hudson and Willys Overland preferred in the lead and Studebaker and General Motors advancing in good form. The so-called Durant stocks, Cast Iron Pipe, Independent Oil and Gas, American Safety Razor and Universal Pipe sold up from 2 to 10 points. Copper and Sugar stocks were dull. Equipment stocks strong.

The most common form of this disease attacks the face and head. It used to be regarded as a "catching disease." It is known now to be due to infection with a particular germ. If you can escape the germ you won't get erysipelas.

Like most of the so-called infectious diseases the attacks begins with a chill and vomiting. Then the fever comes on, increasing quickly to 103 to 104 and even 105 degrees.

A red spot appears somewhere on the skin. This patch surrounds the place where the infecting germ entered, or it may come at some place where the skin and mucous membrane join. One common place is at the corner of the mouth. Another is the corner of the eye.

No matter where it begins the patch of redness quickly spreads. The remarkable thing is that the signs of the spot are always hard and raised up above the level of the adjoining and as yet uninvolved skin. There is a sharp border line.

The swelling is very great and very hard. The face and head appear terribly swollen. The eyes may be closed in consequence.

The surface may be shiny red and smooth or there may be blisters on the skin. The surface is painful to the touch. On pressure there may be pitting of the surface and slow return of the skin on release of the pressure.

In a few days the redness and swelling begin to decrease and gradually fade away. There will be scaling of the surface and gradual return to normal appearance.

There are many applications for relief of the local symptoms. Ichthyol either in a watery solution or an ointment is a common remedy. The water solution is usually 20-50 per cent, the ointment 20-40 per cent. It is painted on the affected surface.

For the intense itching so common in erysipelas hyposulphite of soda may be used. One tablespoonful of the hyposulphite to one ounce of water is the proportion. This may be applied on gauze, being sure always to keep the dressings well saturated.

In every case of erysipelas the general health must be built up. Fresh air and sunshine in the sickroom will do much to help the patient to complete recovery.

The rescue work was gotten well in hand by Chief Lambie, and efforts to reach the imprisoned miners were proceeding smoothly and with all possible rapidity.

The shaft is 303 feet deep and the workings cover many miles under the hills.

The mine has been working on an open shop basis since last October.

Throughout the night while rescue efforts were being made, scores of women and children crowded around the mouth of the mine awaiting word from the entombed miners. State police and county officers endeavored fruitlessly to force the hysterical women back.

"There'll be another explosion," the officers yelled.

IF KIDNEYS BOTHER TRY DOSE OF SALTS

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with litha, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Four Damage Suits Filed Here; Total of $40,000 Sought

Four actions, wherein a total of $40,000 damages has been asked, have been filed in common pleas court, three suits being filed by the law firm of Metzgar & McCarty, of Salem, where $20,000 is the amount of damages sought, and another cause was filed by Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, wherein $20,000 damages is sought.

Katie Katz, of Wellsville, boarded a car of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company in the Diamond, East Liverpool, at 4 o'clock the afternoon of September 25, last year, to go to Wellsville, the petition against the traction company reads. At Lisbon and Second street, Wellsville, as she was alghting from the car, the car started suddenly and she was thrown violently to the street, injuring her, she declares, in such a manner that she was not able to leave her home until March 12.

Michael Medla, through his counsel, Metzgar & McCarty, of Salem, has sued the city of Salem for $10,000 damages and $100 medical bill. Medla claims he was injured by slipping on the ice on the sidewalk at North Howard and Roosevelt avenue, Salem, at 10 o'clock the night of January 10, 1925. The ice was caused by water, he alleges, dripping from an awning extending out over the sidewalk from the Tomlinson grocery. Medla says he fractured the bones of his right arm, that he spent $100 in medical fees, and that the city showed negligence in permitting the awning to be in the position it was.

J. Brooke Allen and Ruth E. Allen, through the same counsel, have sued the city of Salem for $5,000 damages. The action is another of the "sewer suits," as these actions have been classified. Allen owns a farm in section 26, Perry township, and the petition claims that the Salem sewer has damaged his property.

A similar action and also for $5,000 damages has been filed by the same counsel in behalf of Norman Butler, who owns a farm in section 7, Green township, Mahoning county.

Two Cars Wrecked.

A touring car driven by O. H. Kerr of Youngstown was wrecked and knocked over in the field near East Palestine on the Cox highway shortly after midnight and a car driven by Elmer Hall, also of Youngstown was also wrecked at the same point as a result of a collision between the two cars.

Kerr was taken before Justice of the Peace O. H. Butts at East Palestine and charged with driving a car while intoxicated. He entered a plea of not guilty and posted bond for a future hearing.

To File Tax Returns.

Oil and gas companies operating in this county will file their county tax returns as soon as they receive their March "run" tickets. These reports will be filed early in April, according to Deputy County Auditor Randall Hamilton.

Listing day for the return of personal taxes has been set for Monday, April 13.

Reports from incorporated companies have about all been filed.

License Record Broken.

More than 2,800 dog licenses have been issued in this county so far this year, the record being far ahead of that for the corresponding period during 1924. Fear of having charges filed against them for non-payment of the dog license tax is said to be the reason why the demand for the tags is so heavy at this time.

Marriage Licenses.

Marriage license has been granted Eunice A. Dorff and Americus Graham. Mr. Graham is a farmer and resides in West Virginia, while his bride has been employed as a pottery worker in East Liverpool.

A marriage license has been issued to Harry Jackson and Ella Bailey, of East Liverpool. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bailey.

POEMS THAT LIVE

Recessional.

God of our fathers, known of old,—
Lord of our far-flung battle line,—
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine,—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies,
The captains and the kings depart:
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,—
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

Far-called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headland sinks the fire.
Lo! all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Ninevah and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, sapre us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

If drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not thee in awe
Such boasting as the Gentiles use
Or lesser breeds without the law,—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All vialiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on thy people, Lord!

A Romance of the Spanish Main

CAPTAIN BLOOD

by RAFAEL SABATINI

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitagraph picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, is sent to the Barbadoes as a slave under orders of King James. There at the behest of Arabella Bishop, niece of the military commander, Colonel Bishop buys him. A Spanish galleon, under Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez, captures the city. Blood saves Mary Traill and Arabella. He leads his fellow rebels-convict on board the Cinco Llagas and captures the ship and Don Diego. Don Diego betrays him and navigates the ship to Hispaniola, where his brother's ship is in port. Captain Blood binds Don Diego to the mouth of a cannon and offers the Don's son, Esteban, the alternative of seeing his father die, or to tell his uncle that all is well on board the Cinco Llagas. The boy accepts and they visit the galleon, where the youth makes peace with his uncle. They return to the Cinco Llagas and young Esteban learns that Blood had tricked him; his father was dead when the body was bound to the cannon. Blood sails for Tortuga, the rendezvous of buccaneers on the Spanish Main.

CHAPTER XIII

TORTUGA

At daybreak Don Esteban and his followers were put off in a boat. Two days later, the Cinco Llagas sailed into the rock-bound bay of Cayona, which nature seemed to have designed for the stronghold of those who had appropriated it.

It was Blood's original intention to make his way to France or Holland. But in the long weeks of waiting at Tortuga for a ship to convey him to one or the other of these countries, his resources dwindled, and finally vanished. Also, there was a good deal to oppress Peter Blood. There was the thought of Arabella Bishop. He was maddened by the tormenting lure of the unattainable. He desired Arabella, yet knew her beyond his reach irrevocably and for all time. He was, when all is said, an escaped slave, an outlaw in his own land and a homeless outcast in any other. There remained the sea, which is free to all, and particularly alluring to those who feel themselves at war with humanity. And temptations proceeded not only from adventurous buccaneering acquaintances in the taverns of that evil haven of Tortuga, but even from M. d'Ogeron, the governor of the island, who levied as his harbor dues a percentage of one-tenth of all spoils brought into the bay, and who profited further by commissions upon money which he was desired to convert into bills of exchange upon France.

Moreover, to a man, those who had escaped with Peter Blood from the Barbados plantations, and who, consequently, like himself, knew not wither to turn, were all resolved upon joining the great Brotherhood of the Coast, as those rovers called themselves. And they united theirs to the other voices that were persuading Blood, demanding that he should continue now in the leadership which he had enjoyed since they had left Barbados, and swearing to follow him loyally whithersoever he should lead them.

If he resisted so long, it was the thought of Arabella Bishop that restrained him. And so, although he might entertain no delusive hope of ever winning her for his own, of ever seeing her again, yet the memory of her was to abide in his soul as a bitter-sweet, purifying influence.

The resolve being taken, he went actively to work. Ogeron, most accommodating of governors, advanced him money for the proper equipment of his ship, the Cinco Llagas, which he renamed the Arabella. To the score of followers he already possessed he added three-score more, picking his men with caution and discrimination (and he was an exceptional judge of men) from amongst the adventurers of Tortuga. With them all he entered into the articles usual among the Brethren of the Coast, under which each man was to be paid by a share in the prizes captured.

Towards the end of December, when the hurricane season had blown itself out, he put to sea in his well-found, well-manned ship, and before he returned in the following May from a protracted and adventurous cruise the fame of Captain Peter Blood had run like ripples before the breeze across the face of the Caribbean Sea.

One day, as he sat with Hagthorpe and Wolverstone over a pipe and a bottle of rum in the stifling reek of tar and stale tobacco of a waterside tavern, he was accosted by a splendid ruffian in a gold laced coat of dark blue satin, with a crimson sash, a foot wide, about the waist.

"C'est vous qu'on appelle Le Sang?" the fellow hailed him.

"My name," he said, "is Peter Blood. The Spaniards know me by Don Pedro Sangre, and a Frenchman may call me Le Sang if he pleases."

"Good! "My name," he informed the three men, two of whom at least were eyeing him askance, "it is Levasseur. You may have heard of me."

They had, indeed. He commanded a privateer of twenty guns that had dropped anchor in the bay a week ago, manned by a crew mainly composed of French boucanhunters from Northern Hispaniola, men who had good cause to hate the Spaniard with an intensity exceeding that of the English. Levasseur had brought them back to Tortuga from an indifferently successful cruise. A roaring, quarrelsome, hard-drinking, hard-gaming scoundrel, his reputation as a buccaneer stood high among the wild Brethren of the Coast.

It was current gossip that even Mademoiselle d'Ogeron, the governor's daughter, had been caught in the snare of his wild attractiveness, and that Levasseur had gone the length of audacity of asking her hand in marriage of her father. M. d'Ogeron had shown him the door.

This was the man who now thrust himself upon Captain Blood with a proposal of association, offering him not only his sword, but his ship and the men who sailed in her.

Because he disliked the man, Captain Blood would not commit himself at once. But, because he liked the proposal, he consented to consider it. Being afterwards pressed by both Hagthorpe and Wolverstone, who did not share his own personal dislike of the Frenchman, the end of the matter was that within a week articles were drawn up between Levasseur and Blood, and signed by them, and, as was usual, by the chosen representatives of their followers. These articles contained the common provisions that, should the two vessels separate, a strict account must afterwards be rendered of all prizes severally taken, whilst the vessel taking a prize should retain three-fifths of its value, surrendering two fifths to its associate.

That night Levasseur slept on board his ship, which, with characteristic flamboyance, he had named La Foudre, and there on the following day he received a visit from Captain Blood, whom he greeted half mockingly as his admiral. Levasseur entertained his admiral to dinner, and jointly they drank success to the expedition, so copiously on the part of Levasseur that when the time came to separate he was as nearly drunk as it seemed possible for him to be and yet retain his understanding. Captain Blood was a little heavy-hearted. I have said that he was a judge of men, and his judgment of Levasseur filled him with misgivings, which were growing heavier, in a measure, as the hour of departure approached.

CHAPTER XIV

LEVASSEUR'S HEROICS

It would be somewhere about ten o'clock on the following morning, a full hour before the time appointed for sailing, when a canoe brought up alongside La Foudre and a half-caste Indian stepped out of her and went up the ladder. He was the bearer of a folded scrap of paper for Captain Levasseur. Its contents may be roughly translated thus:

"My well-beloved: I am in the Dutch brig Jongvrouw, which is about to sail. Resolved to separate us forever, my cruel father is sending me to Europe in my brother's charge. I implore you, come to my rescue. Deliver me, my well-beloved hero! Your desolated Madelon, who loves you."

The well-beloved hero was moved to the soul of him by that passionate appeal. His scowling glance swept the bay for the Dutch brig, which he knew had been due to sail for Amsterdam with a cargo of hides and tobacco. He roared out the question in his mind.

Four Damage Suits Filed Here; Total of $40,000 Sought

Four actions, wherein a total of $40,000 damages has been asked, have been filed in common pleas court, three suits being filed by the law firm of Metzgar & McCarty, of Salem, where $20,000 is the amount of damages sought, and another cause was filed by Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of Wellsville, wherein $20,000 damages is sought.

Katie Katz, of Wellsville, boarded a car of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company in the Diamond, East Liverpool, at 4 o'clock the afternoon of September 25, last year, to go to Wellsville, the petition against the traction company reads. At Lisbon and Second street, Wellsville, as she was alighting from the car, the car started suddenly and she was thrown violently to the street, injuring her, she declares, in such a manner that she was not able to leave her home until March 12.

Michael Media, through his counsel, Metzgar & McCarty, of Salem, has sued the city of Salem for $10,000 damages and $100 medical bill. Media claims he was injured by slipping on the ice on the sidewalk at North Howard and Roosevelt avenue, Salem, at 10 o'clock the night of January 10, 1925. The ice was caused by water, he alleges, dripping from an awning extending out over the sidewalk from the Tomlinson grocery. Media says he fractured the bones of his right arm, that he spent $100 in medical fees, and that the city showed negligence in permitting the awning to be in the position it was.

J. Brooke Allen and Ruth E. Allen, through the same counsel, have sued the city of Salem for $5,000 damages. The action is another of the "sewer suits," as these actions have been classified. Allen owns a farm in section 26, Perry township, and the petition claims that the Salem sewer has damaged his property.

A similar action and also for $5,000 damages has been filed by the same counsel in behalf of Norman Butler, who owns a farm in section 7, Green township, Mahoning county.

Two Cars Wrecked.

A touring car driven by O. H. Kerr of Youngstown was wrecked and knocked over in the field near East Palestine on the Cox highway shortly after midnight and a car driven by Elmer Hall, also of Youngstown was also wrecked at the same point as a result of a collision between the two cars.

Kerr was taken before Justice of the Peace O. H. Butts at East Palestine and charged with driving a car while intoxicated. He entered a plea of not guilty and posted bond for a future hearing.

To File Tax Returns.

Oil and gas companies operating in this county will file their county tax returns as soon as they receive their March "run" tickets. These reports will be filed early in April, according to Deputy County Auditor Randall Hamilton.

Listing day for the return of personal taxes has been set for Monday, April 13.

Reports from incorporated companies have about all been filed.

License Record Broken.

More than 2,800 dog licenses have been issued in this county so far this year, the record being far ahead of that for the corresponding period during 1924. Fear of having charges filed against them for non-payment of the dog license tax is said to be the reason why the demand for the tags is so heavy at this time.

Marriage Licenses.

Marriage license has been granted Eunice A. Dorff and Americus Graham. Mr. Graham is a farmer and resides in West Virginia, while his bride has been employed as a pottery worker in East Liverpool.

A marriage license has been issued to Harry Jackson and Ella Bailey, of East Liverpool. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bailey.

POEMS THAT LIVE

Recessional.

God of our fathers, known of old,—
Lord of our far-flung battle line,—
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine,—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies,
The captains and the kings depart:
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

Far-called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headland sinks the fire.
Lo! all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Ninevah and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

If drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not thee in awe
Such boasting as the Gentiles use
Or lesser breeds without the law,—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget,—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not thee to guard,
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on thy people, Lord!

A Romance of the Spanish Main

CAPTAIN BLOOD

by RAFAEL SABATINI

Copyrighted, 1922, by Rafael Sabatini.

"CAPTAIN BLOOD," a Vitagraph picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Blood, a young Irish physician, is sent to the Barbadoes as a slave under orders of King James. There at the behest of Arabella Bishop, niece of the military commander, Colonel Bishop buys him. A Spanish galleon, under Don Diego de Espinosa y Valdez, captures the city. Blood saves Mary Traill and Arabella. He leads his fellow rebels-convict on board the Cinco Llagas and captures the ship and Don Diego. Don Diego betrays him and navigates the ship to Hispaniola, where his brother's ship is in port. Captain Blood binds Don Diego to the mouth of a cannon and offers the Don's son, Esteban, the alternative of seeing his father die, or to tell his uncle that all is well on board the Cinco Llagas. The boy accepts and they visit the galleon, where the youth makes peace with his uncle. They return to the Cinco Llagas and young Esteban learns that Blood had tricked him; his father was dead when the body was bound to the cannon. Blood sails for Tortuga, the rendezvous of buccaneers on the Spanish Main.

CHAPTER XIII

TORTUGA

At daybreak Don Esteban and his followers were put off in a boat. Two days later, the Cinco Llagas sailed into the rock-bound bay of Cayona, which nature seemed to have designed for the stronghold of those who had appropriated it.

It was Blood's original intention to make his way to France or Holland. But in the long weeks of waiting at Tortuga for a ship to convey him to one or the other of these countries, his resources dwindled, and finally vanished. Also, there was a good deal to oppress Peter Blood. There was the thought of Arabella Bishop. He was maddened by the tormenting lure of the unattainable. He desired Arabella, yet knew her beyond his reach irrevocably and for all time. He was, when all is said, an escaped slave, an outlaw in his own land and a homeless outcast in any other. There remained the sea, which is free to all, and particularly alluring to those who feel themselves at war with humanity. And temptations proceeded not only from adventurous buccaneering acquaintances in the taverns of that evil haven of Tortuga, but even from M. d'Ogeron, the governor of the island, who levied as his harbor dues a percentage of one-tenth of all spoils brought into the bay, and who profited further by commissions upon money which he was desired to convert into bills of exchange upon France.

Moreover, to a man, those who had escaped with Peter Blood from the Barbados plantations, and who, consequently, like himself, knew not wither to turn, were all resolved upon joining the great Brotherhood of the Coast, as those rovers called themselves. And they united theirs to the other voices that were persuading Blood, demanding that he should continue now in the leadership which he had enjoyed since they had left Barbados, and swearing to follow him loyally whithersoever he should lead them.

If he resisted so long, it was the thought of Arabella Bishop that restrained him. And so, although he might entertain no delusive hope of ever winning her for his own, of ever seeing her again, yet the memory of her was to abide in his soul as a bitter-sweet, purifying influence.

The resolve being taken, he went actively to work. Ogeron, most accommodating of governors, advanced him money for the proper equipment of his ship, the Cinco Llagas, which he renamed the Arabella. To the score of followers he already possessed he added three-score more, picking his men with caution and discrimination (and he was an exceptional judge of men) from amongst the adventurers of Tortuga. With them all he entered into the articles usual among the Brethren of the Coast, under which each man was to be paid by a share in the prizes captured.

Towards the end of December, when the hurricane season had blown itself out, he put to sea in his well-found, well-manned ship, and before he returned in the following May from a protracted and adventurous cruise the fame of Captain Peter Blood had run like ripples before the breeze across the face of the Caribbean Sea.

One day, as he sat with Hagthorpe and Wolverstone over a pipe and a bottle of rum in the stifling reek of tar and stale tobacco of a waterside tavern, he was accosted by a splendid ruffian in a gold-laced coat of dark blue satin, with a crimson sash, a foot wide, about the waist.

"C'est vous qu'on appelle Le Sang?" the fellow hailed him.

"My name," he said, "is Peter Blood. The Spaniards know me by Don Pedro Sangre, and a Frenchman may call me Le Sang if he pleases."

"Good! "My name," he informed the three men, two of whom at least were eyeing him askance, "it is Levasseur. You may have heard of me."

They had, indeed. He commanded a privateer of twenty guns that had dropped anchor in the bay a week ago, manned by a crew mainly composed of French boucan-hunters from Northern Hispaniola, men who had good cause to hate the Spaniard with an intensity exceeding that of the English. Levasseur had brought them back to Tortuga from an indifferently successful cruise. A roaring, quarrelsome, hard-drinking, hard-gaming scoundrel, his reputation as a buccaneer stood high among the wild Brethren of the Coast.

It was current gossip that even Mademoiselle d'Ogeron, the governor's daughter, had been caught in the snare of his wild attractiveness, and that Levasseur had gone the length of audacity of asking her hand in marriage of her father. M. d'Ogeron had shown him the door.

This was the man who now thrust himself upon Captain Blood with a proposal of association, offering him not only his sword, but his ship and the men who sailed in her.

Because he disliked the man, Captain Blood would not commit himself at once. But, because he liked the proposal, he consented to consider it. Being afterwards pressed by both Hagthorpe and Wolverstone, who did not share his own personal dislike of the Frenchman, the end of the matter was that within a week articles were drawn up between Levasseur and Blood, and signed by them, and, as was usual, by the chosen representatives of their followers. These articles contained the common provisions that, should the two vessels separate, a strict account must afterwards be rendered of all prizes severally taken, whilst the vessel taking a prize should retain three-fifths of its value, surrendering two fifths to its associate.

That night Levasseur slept on board his ship, which, with characteristic flamboyance, he had named La Foudre, and there on the following day he received a visit from Captain Blood, whom he greeted half mockingly as his admiral. Levasseur entertained his admiral to dinner, and jointly they drank success to the expedition, so copiously on the part of Levasseur that when the time came to separate he was as nearly drunk as it seemed possible for him to be and yet retain his understanding. Captain Blood was a little heavy-hearted. I have said that he was a judge of men, and his judgment of Levasseur filled him with misgivings, which were growing heavier, in a measure, as the hour of departure approached.

CHAPTER XIV

LEVASSEUR'S HEROICS

It would be somewhere about ten o'clock on the following morning, a full hour before the time appointed for sailing, when a canoe brought up alongside La Foudre and a half-caste Indian stepped out of her and went up the ladder. He was the bearer of a folded scrap of paper for Captain Levasseur. Its contents may be roughly translated thus:

"My well-beloved: I am in the Dutch brig Jongvrouw, which is about to sail. Resolved to separate us forever, my cruel father is sending me to Europe in my brother's charge. I implore you, come to my rescue. Deliver me, my well-beloved hero! Your desolated Madelon, who loves you."

The well-beloved hero was moved to the soul of him by that passionate appeal. His scowling glance swept the bay for the Dutch brig, which he knew had been due to sail for Amsterdam with a cargo of hides and tobacco. He roared out the question in his mind.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, does the work without blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Young Woman Suffered With Catarrh. Had to Go to a Hospital for Treatment

World's Tonic Brings Great Relief in Few Weeks.

"When they took me to a hospital I despaired of ever seeing a well day again. For a long time I had suffered from catarrh of the stomach and head and fell off from 137 to 105 pounds. I was so weak that I could not dress myself let alone do anything about the house. I just ached all over. My stomach was so weak and my digestion so poor I had to live on the lightest of food.

"I suffered all the time with my head and nose stopped up, had dizzy spells and felt so run down I did not care whether I lived or died. Even my eyes pained me and the pains would extend to the back of my head. I often had choking sensations in my throat and smothering spells. I could not sleep enough to do any good owing to being choked up with so much mucus, and was so nervous that the slightest noise would cause a nervous chill.

"In this condition I went to the hospital. After a long rest and treatment daily for catarrh, I was barely able to get back home. One day a neighbor called and begged me to try World's Tonic. After talking it over that night with the family, they decided that I should start the use of World's Tonic the following day. They purchased three bottles and by the time I had finished the second one I was up and around the house and began to regain my strength. I have used five bottles and I think that my health is as good as in my girlhood days.

"One of my friends called recently and remarked what a wonderful change in a few weeks. I have no signs of catarrh now, my color is good, I can eat anything I want to in the way of solid foods and vegetables and everything tastes so good. Those nervous spells have entirely left me and the mucus has quit coming in my head and throat so now at night I sleep as sound as a baby. I was on the brink of despair and almost a physical wreck from this catarrh but am now a new woman with new hopes, new life and energy, and I owe it all to World's Tonic."

This is the remarkable story told in a recent letter to the World's Medicine Company office. Many women in East Liverpool and vicinity are having the same experience as Mrs. Sullivan, Richmond, Ind., and just dragging themselves about the house suffering with the worst form of catarrh. All they need is World's Tonic, which will give them quick and permanent relief.

Sold at Carnahan's, also Brannan's Wellsville, and all other reliable druggists.

The Week of Weeks for the Feminine World is Here! What Shall We Wear? Here's the Answer Sent from Fashion Centers.

"Those were the good old days," sounds doubtful at times. You'd have to forget the spring clothes to really mean it. That is, if you're feminine. Who'd want a big "crinoline" when they can look girlish and slim in a tube-line cocoa crepe, for instance that swirls out surprisingly in godets? Who'd want a tight-fitting jacket when they can wrap a black ottoman coat about them--one with a fluffy fox band at the bottom,—or trip jauntily out in a "Prince-of-Wales" coat and a felt hat with a creased crown? And think of the gay chiffon scarfs —the flowers worn on everything this year—the trim little shoes with pert ties. Anyway—Spring, 1925, is here! And it's going to be thrilling. If you're going to be a colorful part of it—drop in this week, and begin planning your wardrobe.

NEW SPRING COATS AND DRESSES

13 to 19 Years For Juniors and Misses 13 to 19 Years

DRESSES Cunningly Modeled of Flat Crepes, Flannels, New Prints, for Sport and Street Wear. Priced $15.00 to $45.00.

COATS of Polaires, Velours, Silks, Flannels, the Popular Spring Styles in New Colors, $15 and up. (Second Floor)

The Coats

They've marched in with four new ideas, if you please. You hardly know which to choose. First, there's the jaunty "Prince-of-Wales" for the business woman and college girl. It's double breasted with trim little mannish lapels and patch pockets. Second, there's the ottoman silk coat—this is the "dressy" one. Ottoman is a heavy ribbed silk. Fur trims several of the models. Third, there's the model with the front rippling and flaring from the waist, often banded with fur. And fourth, there's the tube-line model that puffs out at the bottom into a lovely band of fur.

Priced at $25 to $100

The Frocks

The kind—and wise—designers have at last considered the active American woman. The frocks are still tube-like, buc they have ingenious little line—but they have ingenious little tricks of giving fullness at the bottom. They use godets, swirling, circular flares, and the sport models use "kick pleats" — they're large box-pleats used usually in front. You can hardly picture how young—how alluring every single model is! Fine pin tucks, cream Venice lace, fine pleats, and big bright French flowers perched on the shoulders are the favored trimmings. Printed silks, kasha, and flat crepe are most used.

Priced at $10 to $95

Style Notes

The Scarf and Flower

New York sent us this smart gesture. Drape a soft, beautiful shaded chiffon about your neck, let it hang to the hem of your frock, and catch it with a flower. It's immensely becoming. Scarfs $2.95 to $5.00. Flowers 50c to $1.

The New Silks

They've adopted the lovely bright colors of the rainbow and they're truly Springlike. Faille, printed crepes, printed Georgettes, crepe de chines, flat crepes.

$1.95 to $3.95

Main Floor.

The Ensembles

"Off again, on again." That's the fate of these ensembles. They're so smart when worn—and they're so adaptable to many occasions—afternoon teas, street wear, traveling, luncheons. Then there are hosts of variations. Slim coats of charmeen have frocks of bright silks, or of matching silks. In either case the same silk lines the coat. Then stunning kasha models use lustrous satins for the frock and trimming on the coat. Bands of contrasting color put on with rich embroidery, bands of fur or collars, enrich all of the models. Both light and dark colors are correct.

Priced at $19 to $98

Smart Hats

Wouldn't you like to buy your hat on Fifth Avenue? Well the trip isn't a bit necessary. Our buyer has just returned with stunning hats. TODAY'S RECIPES.

Cornmeal Pancakes—One cup cornmeal scalded with one cup boiling water, let cool. One cup white flour, two eggs, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar, enough sweet milk to make batter. A good syrup to serve with these pancakes is made of one cup brown sugar to two-thirds cup granulated sugar and one-half cup water. Cook until it begins to thread.

Creole Chicken—Cut chicken in pieces for serving, sprinkle with salt and pepper melt half a cup of butter, add one medium sized onion finely chopped and saute chicken in this until golden brown. Remove chicken. Add four tablespoons of flour, two cups of chicken stock, two cups of tomato stew, one red pepper chopped fine, one-half cup of celery and salt and pepper to taste. Replace chicken in sauce and simmer until tender. Pour all into a dish and garnish with cooked macaroni and parsley.

Chile Con Carne—Cut two young chickens in serving pieces. Season with salt and pepper and saute in butter. Remove seeds and veins from eight red peppers and cook in boiling water until soft, mash and rub through a seive. Or use canned pimentos in place of red peppers. Add one finely chopped onion, two cloves and garlic chopped, one teaspoon of salt, the chicken, cover with boiling water and cook until tender.

Orange Pie—One fourth cup butter, three-fourths cup sugar, juice of one orange and half the grated rind, juice of one-half lemon, three egg yolks, one egg white, one tablespoon cornstarch, one cup boiling water. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, the orange and lemon, cornstarch, the beaten yolks of the eggs and the white of one egg, boiling water. Bake in one crust. When partly cooled cover with the meringue made of the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs to which six tablespoons of powdered sugar have been added gradually. Brown in a slow oven, 300 degrees Fahrenheit.

Baked Ham With Spinach—Clean and pick over spinach carefully and rinse well in four changes of cold water. Drain off all the water except that which clings to the leaves, place in a roasting pan. Cut it a little to make less bulky, and place on top of the spinach a slice of ham about two inches thick. Bake in medium oven for two hours. Baked potatoes are nice with this dish as they can be placed in the oven about 45 minutes before the ham and spinach are done.

Stuffed Peppers—Clean and boil pepers for 10 minutes. Remove from water and stuff with a mixture of cooked rice, tomatoes and a little onion. Put a slice of bacon across the top of each pepper, which gives it a good flavor, and bake in oven for 45 minutes.

Cabbage Salad—One pint shredded cabage, two dozen marsh-mallows (cut in pieces,) four slices of pineapple, three-quarters cup pecan nuts.

Dressing: One egg (well beaten,) one teaspoon flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, one-quarter cup vinegar, one-half cup sweet milk.

After removing the above from the fire, add butter size of an egg and, one teaspoon of sugar. Just before serving add one gill of whipped cream to this dressing, and mix the cabbage, marshmallow, pineapple and nuts with it. This is delicious. Serves four or five.

Date Whip—Dissolve a package of flavored gelatin in a pint of boiling water and when slightly thick beat to the consistency of whipped cream. Add one cup of date pulp and beat in mold. This is good with or without whipped cream.

SUGGESTIONS.

A hot water bottle should be filled about three-quarters full, never to capacity, when used for warming a bed. When used to relieve pain, one-half full is plenty, as it will then give a soothing effect without proving too heavy for comfort.

Don't hang starched clothes in a strong wind as the wind will blow out the starch.

Use the egg slicer to slice boiled beets. The slices will be more uniform and the task will be shorter.

IDEAS FOR THE NEEDLE-WOMAN.

A pretty way of joining bands of net in a boudoir cap is to use a half-inch width of satin and sew it vertically like little bars between. Another flattering fashion is to make the cap of net or lace and border it with flower petals of silk about the size of a half dollar, to that the color frames the face.

A sofa pillow that is both practical and attractive is made as follows: A round pillow about twice the depth or thickness of the usual one is banded around the middle with a width of material. Then the top and the bottom of the pillow are covered to match, but finished with a shirred frill where the middle strip joins them. The material used may be a soft gray and mulberry or blue patterned terry cloth.

A little vinegar in the rinse water with faded colored clothes will help to revive the colors.

Brown shoes that are too light in color may be darkened by rubbing with a solution of milk and ammonia. Then polish with a soft, dry cloth.

Salt mixed with bicarbonate of soda will remove all stains on china cups caused by tea and coffee.

In repairing baskets or pots of basketry paint used for indoor work is best. Two coats and sometimes also a coat of shellac are used.

Saucepans, baking tins and other cooking utensils should be filled with clean water as soon as their contents have been removed. This little precaution saves many minutes of the housewife's time when she comes to clean them.

Two thousand more vessels entered Rotterdam last year than in 1923.

UNIFORM AUTO PLATES URGED BY WASHINGTON

Commerce Department Suggests Move in Pedestrian's Behalf.

STUDY PROBLEM

No Part of Car Given Less Attention Than Tag.

WASHINGTON, March — No part of the motor car is given less attention or more abuse than the license plate, its location and its illumination.

This statement is from Ray M. Hudson, chief of the Simplified Practice Bureau of the Department of Commerce, following an intensive study of license plates and their importance as a safety factor.

With a view toward improvement of conditions, the findings of the department have been submitted to all motor vehicle administrators, police chiefs, traffic and other authorities, as well as motor clubs, automobile manufacturers and organizations interested in highway safety. The report points out the need of standards for plate punching, mountings, size of plates, size of numerals, standards for material, standard codes of numbering, location on the motor car, illumination and co-ordination of color selection.

Standard Plates.

"The usefulness of the standard license plate in triffic control and regulation can be greatly enhanced by study and the co-operative action of all concerned," Hudson said. "It is obvious that as the importance of the license number is accentuated or emphasized, it will have a definite effect on many would-be reckless drivers. When it becomes easier to get the number, and there is less possibility of error, many a chance-taker will drive more sanely."

Standardization of license plates helps the car builder to provide a standard location for them, standard method of mounting and a standard method of adequately illuminating them, according to Hudson. It was pointed out that the traffic officer is aided in his work, making his inspection easier, more accurate and positive.

"The motorist gains to the extent to which such uniformity makes motoring safer for him," Hudson continued. "For the pedestrian it means he can make surer mental note of the reckless driver who almost 'got him.' Increasing the emphasis on easy identification of offenders would make it possible for the careful motorist to adopt the etiquette of the sea—where captains do not hesitate to report to the proper authorities those who wilfully or otherwise violate the rules.

Size of Plates.

"License plates, it was pointed out, range in dimensions from eight to 20 inches long and from four to six inches wide, with punchings which in but two-thirds of the states fit the slots provided. They offer no uniformity in the size of number, the spacing of digits nor the position and location of state initials, nor of the year of issue."

As to color co-ordination, it was advocated that combinations must be chosen with regard to those of neighboring states. Hudson said that if the color combinations continue to play such an important part in car identification, traffic officers must have eye-tests for color values.

"War-time experience in camouflage demonstrated that visibility of certain colors is so uncertain as to bar them for choice for tags," he continued. "Scientific selection methods and assignment of color distribution to the various states in a manner calculated to keep like or similar combinations relatively far apart would make the plate a more significant means of identification than it is today."

TODAY'S RECIPES.

Cornmeal Pancakes—One cup cornmeal scalded with one cup boiling water, let cool. One cup white flour, two eggs, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar, enough sweet milk to make batter. A good syrup to serve with these pancakes is made of one cup brown sugar to two-thirds cup granulated sugar and one-half cup water. Cook until it begins to thread.

Creole Chicken—Cut chicken in pieces for serving, sprinkle with salt and pepper melt half a cup of butter, add one medium sized onion finely chopped and saute chicken in this until golden brown. Remove chicken. Add four tablespoons of flour, two cups of chicken stock, two cups of tomato stew, one red pepper chopped fine, one-half cup of celery and salt and pepper to taste. Replace chicken in sauce and simmer until tender. Pour all into a dish and garnish with cooked macaroni and parsley.

Chile Con Carne—Cut two young chickens in serving pieces. Season with salt and pepper and saute in butter. Remove seeds and veins from eight red peppers and cook in boiling water until soft, mash and rub through a seive. Or use canned pimentos in place of red peppers. Add one finely chopped onion, two cloves and garlic chopped, one teaspoon of salt, the chicken, cover with boiling water and cook until tender.

Orange Pie—One-fourth cup butter, three-fourths cup sugar, juice of one orange and half the grated rind, juice of one-half lemon, three egg yolks, one egg white, one tablespoon cornstarch, one cup boiling water. Cream the butter, add the sugar gradually, the orange and lemon, cornstarch, the beaten yolks of the eggs and the white of one egg, boiling water. Bake in one crust. When partly cooled cover with the meringue made of the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs to which six tablespoons of powdered sugar have been added gradually. Brown in a slow oven, 300 degrees Fahrenheit.

Baked Ham With Spinach—Clean and pick over spinach carefully and rinse well in four changes of cold water. Drain off all the water except that which clings to the leaves, place in a roasting pan. Cut it a little to make less bulky, and place on top of the spinach a slice of ham about two inches thick. Bake in medium oven for two hours. Baked potatoes are nice with this dish as they can be placed in the oven about 45 minutes before the ham and spinach are done.

Stuffed Peppers—Clean and boil pepers for 10 minutes. Remove from water and stuff with a mixture of cooked rice, tomatoes and a little onion. Put a slice of bacon across the top of each pepper, which gives it a good flavor, and bake in oven for 45 minutes.

Cabbage Salad—One pint shredded cabage, two dozen marsh-mallows (cut in pieces,) four slices of pineapple, three-quarters cup pecan nuts.

Dressing: One egg (well beaten,) one teaspoon flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, one-quarter cup vinegar, one-half cup sweet milk.

After removing the above from the fire, add butter size of an egg and, one teaspoon of sugar. Just before serving add one gill of whipped cream to this dressing, and mix the cabbage, marshmallow, pineapple and nuts with it. This is delicious. Serves four or five.

Date Whip—Dissolve a package of flavored gelatin in a pint of boiling water and when slightly thick beat to the consistency of whipped cream. Add one cup of date pulp and beat in mold. This is good with or without whipped cream.

SUGGESTIONS.

A hot water bottle should be filled about three-quarters full, never to capacity, when used for warming a bed. When used to relieve pain, one-half full is plenty, as it will then give a soothing effect without proving too heavy for comfort.

Don't hang starched clothes in a strong wind as the wind will blow out the starch.

Use the egg slicer to slice boiled beets. The slices will be more uniform and the task will be shorter.

IDEAS FOR THE NEEDLE-WOMAN.

A pretty way of joining bands of net in a boudoir cap is to use a half-inch width of satin and sew it vertically like little bars between. Another flattering fashion is to make the cap of net or lace and border it with flower petals of silk about the size of a half dollar, so that the color frames the face.

A sofa pillow that is both practical and attractive is made as follows: A round pillow about twice the depth or thickness of the usual one is banded around the middle with a width of material. Then the top and the bottom of the pillow are covered to match, but finished with a shirred frill where the middle strip joins them. The material used may be a soft gray and mulberry or blue patterned terry cloth.

A little vinegar in the rinse water with faded colored clothes will help to revive the colors.

Brown shoes that are too light in color may be darkened by rubbing with a solution of milk and ammonia. Then polish with a soft, dry cloth.

Salt mixed with bicarbonate of soda will remove all stains on china cups caused by tea and coffee.

In repairing baskets or pots of basketry paint used for indoor work is best. Two coats and sometimes also a coat of shellac are used.

Saucepans, baking tins and other cooking utensils should be filled with clean water as soon as their contents have been removed. This little precaution saves many minutes of the housewife's time when she comes to clean them.

Two thousand more vessels entered Rotterdam last year than in 1923.

UNIFORM AUTO PLATES URGED BY WASHINGTON

Commerce Department Suggests Move in Pedestrian's Behalf.

STUDY PROBLEM

No Part of Car Given Less Attention Than Tag.

WASHINGTON, March — No part of the motor car is given less attention or more abuse than the license plate, its location and its illumination.

This statement is from Ray M. Hudson, chief of the Simplified Practice Bureau of the Department of Commerce, following an intensive study of license plates and their importance as a safety factor.

With a view toward improvement of conditions, the findings of the department have been submitted to all motor vehicle administrators, police chiefs, traffic and other authorities, as well as motor clubs, automobile manufacturers and organizations interested in highway safety. The report points out the need of standards for plate punching, mountings, size of plates, size of numerals, standards for material, standard codes of numbering, location on the motor car, illumination and co-ordination of color selection.

Standard Plates.

"The usefulness of the standard license plate in traffic control and regulation can be greatly enhanced by study and the co-operative action of all concerned," Hudson said. "It is obvious that as the importance of the license number is accentuated or emphasized, it will have a definite effect on many would-be reckless drivers. When it becomes easier to get the number, and there is less possibility of error, many a chance-taker will drive more sanely."

Standardization of license plates helps the car builder to provide a standard location for them, standard method of mounting and a standard method of adequately illuminating them, according to Hudson. It was pointed out that the traffic officer is aided in his work, making his inspection easier, more accurate and positive.

"The motorist gains to the extent to which such uniformity makes motoring safer for him," Hudson continued. "For the pedestrian it means he can make surer mental note of the reckless driver who almost 'got him.' Increasing the emphasis on easy identification of offenders would make it possible for the careful motorist to adopt the etiquette of the sea—where captains do not hesitate to report to the proper authorities those who willfully or otherwise violate the rules.

Size of Plates.

"License plates, it was pointed out, range in dimensions from eight to 20 inches long and from four to six inches wide, with punchings which in but two-thirds of the states fit the slots provided. They offer no uniformity in the size of number, the spacing of digits nor the position and location of state initials, nor of the year of issue."

As to color co-ordination, it was advocated that combinations must be chosen with regard to those of neighboring states. Hudson said that if the color combinations continue to play such an important part in car identification, traffic officers must have eye-tests for color values.

"War-time experience in camouflage demonstrated that visibility of certain colors is so uncertain as to bar them for choice for tags," he continued. "Scientific selection methods and assignment of color distribution to the various states in a manner calculated to keep like or similar combinations relatively far apart would make the plate a more significant means of identification than it is today."

ROGERS WINNER AT FOLLANSBEE

Elected Mayor Over Dr. O. J. Stevenson in Close Figl.t.

Thomas H. Rogers was elected mayor of Follansbee yesterday over Dr. O. J. Stevenson in one of the most hotly contested elections in the history of the city. A total of 1246 votes were cast, the largest ever recorded in a municipal election. Rogers was elected by a vote of 767 to 479, and carried every candidate on the ticket with him. Te victorious ticket was backed by the anti-klan forces while the opposition had the support of the klan.

R. L. Ramsey was re-elected city attorney, no opposition, with a vote of 1097, R. L. Bollinger was returned victor over O. G. Bryte, Jr., 683 to 508. Chief of Police Lee Chambers was returned to office for the third time when he triumphed over Elmer Bell with a vote of 739 to 507. The race for city collector and treasurer resulted in a defeat for the only woman candidate on the ticket. Mrs. Elsie Lewis was defeated for the post by Delmar Jenkins, for six years, city clerk, by a vote of 787 to 437.

Thomas Reese was elected councilman for the first city ward over Ellison Waugh, 116 to 62. Edward J. Nolte was defeated in the race for councilman from the Second ward. The vote was overwhelming in favor of Charles H. Manion, 298 to 75. Jack Mathieson was elected from the Third ward over Robert Cash, 393 to 274.

When the result became known the victors staged a large celebration during which a huge cross was burned on a hilltop overlooking the town. At a given signal bombs and rockets were exploded from all quarters on the hillside and a long street parade with a band at its head, filed through the streets of the downtown section. No untoward incidents were reported to the police.

What is said to be the first chapter of the Knights of the Flaming Circle to be established in West Virginia was formed in the course of the election jollification. A delegation of the organization from Steubenville, came to Follansbee for the initiation of members and the installation of the local charter. Leaders say that 600 men were taken into the organization.

Missionary Meeting.

Members of the Women's Missionary society of the Nazarene church met last evening in the church. The subject was "Africa." Social hour followed the session.

Bible Class Meeting.

Ladies Bible class of the First Presbyterian church will meet at 7:30 tomorrow evening with Mrs. H. G. Mercer at her home in Columbia avenue. Mrs. Small will be associate hostess.

MARSH TO PRESIDE IN UPPER HOUSE

Senator Harvey Marsh was elected president pro tem of the state senate today by a vote of 15 to 14 following party lines and the puzzle which has kept the upper branch of the legislature unsettled since the beginning of the second session last week was brought to an end. Senator R. F. Kidd was the Democratic nominee in the election held after the Senate had voted 15 to 8 to amend its rules pro tem.

When the rules committee proposal to amend Senate rules and provide for election of a president pro tem came up for consideration, Senator Johnson, Democrat, asked whether a majority or a two-thirds vote was necessary to change the rule, and Acting President Marsh ruled that only a majority vote was necessary.

The vote on the rule was then taken, six of the Democratic senators remaining silent in their seats when their names were called, thus showing a record vote of 15 to 8 in favor of the new rule, replacing one that provided for designation by the president of a presiding officer to act in his place for not more than three days.

WELLSBURG MAN IS BEING HELD

Lewis is under sentence of 16 years in the state penitentiary at Moundsville on a charge of highway robbery. He was one of four men who escaped from the Brooke county jail two weeks ago, but with another prisoner was recaptured.

Permanent roads are a good investment —not an expense
Why America Must Have More Paved Highways
Almost every section of the United States is confronted by a traffic problem.
Month by month this problem is becoming more and more serious.
Hundred of cars pass a given point every hour on many of our state and county roads. Down-town city streets are jammed with traffic.
Think, too, how narrow many of our roads are, and how comparatively few paved highways there are in proportion to the steadily increasing number of cars.
If the motor vehicle is to continue giving the economic service of which it is capable, we must have more Concrete highways and widen those near large centers of population.
Every citizen should discuss highway needs of his community with his local authorities.
Your highway officials will do their part if given your support.
Why postpone meeting this pressing need?
An early start means early relief.

ROGERS WINNER AT FOLLANSBEE

Elected Mayor Over Dr. O. J. Stevenson in Close Figl.t.

Thomas H. Rogers was elected mayor of Follansbee yesterday over Dr. O. J. Stevenson in one of the most hotly contested elections in the history of the city. A total of 1246 votes were cast, the largest ever recorded in a municipal election. Rogers was elected by a vote of 767 to 479, and carried every candidate on the ticket with him. Te victorious ticket was backed by the anti-klan forces while the opposition had the support of the klan.

R. L. Ramsey was re-elected city attorney, no opposition, with a vote of 1097. R. L. Bollinger was returned victor over O. G. Bryte, Jr., 683 to 508. Chief of Police Lee Chambers was returned to office for the third time when he triumphed over Elmer Bell with a vote of 739 to 507. The race for city collector and treasurer resulted in a defeat for the only woman candidate on the ticket. Mrs. Elsie Lewis was defeated for the post by Delmar Jenkins, for six years, city clerk, by a vote of 787 to 437.

Thomas Reese was elected councilman for the first city ward over Ellison Waugh, 116 to 62. Edward J. Nolte was defeated in the race for councilman from the Second ward. The vote was overwhelming in favor of Charles H. Manion, 298 to 75. Jack Mathieson was elected from the Third ward over Robert Cash, 393 to 274.

When the result became known the victors staged a large celebration during which a huge cross was burned on a hilltop overlooking the town. At a given signal bombs and rockets were exploded from all quarters on the hillside and a long street parade with a band at its head, filed through the streets of the downtown section. No untoward incidents were reported to the police.

What is said to be the first chapter of the Knights of the Flaming Circle to be established in West Virginia was formed in the course of the election jollification. A delegation of the organization from Steubenville, came to Follansbee for the initiation of members and the installation of the local charter. Leaders say that 600 men were taken into the organization.

MARSH TO PRESIDE IN UPPER HOUSE

Senator Harvey Marsh was elected president pro tem of the state senate today by a vote of 15 to 14 following party lines and the puzzle which has kept the upper branch of the legislature unsettled since the beginning of the second session last week was brought to an end. Senator R. F. Kidd was the Democratic nominee in the election held after the Senate had voted 15 to 8 to amend its rules pro tem.

When the rules committee proposal to amend Senate rules and provide for election of a president pro tem came up for consideration, Senator Johnson, Democrat, asked whether a majority or a two-thirds vote was necessary to change the rule, and Acting President Marsh ruled that only a majority vote was necessary.

The vote on the rule was then taken, six of the Democratic senators remaining silent in their seats when their names were called, thus showing a record vote of 15 to 8 in favor of the new rule, replacing one that provided for designation by the president of a presiding officer to act in his place for not more than three days.

WELLSBURG MAN IS BEING HELD

George "Texas" Lewis, negro, of Wellsburg, is being held at the Ohio county jail for Brooke county officials pending his return there to appear in court as a witness in a hold-up case in which the negro is said also to be involved. Lewis is under sentence of 16 years in the state penitentiary at Moundsville on a charge of highway robbery. He was one of four men who escaped from the Brooke county jail two weeks ago, but with another prisoner was recaptured.

LIKENS HERSELF AS BACK FROM THE DEAD

Remarkable Recovery of Elm Grove, W. Va., Housewife, Almost Paralyzed From Kidney-Bladder Troubles; Thanks Ka-di-ok.

MRS. FRANCIS COOK,
Elm Grove, W. Va.

"I am like one back from the dead," was the statement made by Mrs. Francis Cook, of Elm Grove, W. Va., to the Ka-di-ok representative, when asked as to her experience with Ka-di-ok.

Mrs. Cook suffered terribly from kidney and bladder trouble. She could not arise in bed without assistance, and only with great pain. She had doctored and tried almost everything brought to her attention, without securing relief. She saw Ka-di-ok advertised and highly recommended, and after taking four bottles made the above statement, adding that she received relief from the first dose of Ka-di-ok; that she was like the one read about in the Bible, "Ka-di-ok said to me take up thy bed and walk," and I did."

Her misery and pains have left her, she is no longer troubled with nervousness and headaches, is gaining some weight, eats and sleeps well, and gets up in the mornings full of strength and energy for the entire day. She says she is really glad to tell folks about Ka-di-ok, and what it did for her.

There is no reason in the world why people should suffer from such ailments as described above, when Ka-di-ok is within reach of all. In hundreds of cases, relief is felt right from the start, and its effects are lasting. No harmful habit-forming drugs, but a medicine of the greatest purity and action. Get a bottle today.

Ka-di-ok is sold and recommended in East Liverpool by Mathews Cut Rate Medicine Store, 129 W. 6th street.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing The Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. This offer applies strictly to information. The Bureau can not give advice on legal, medical and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. Are the round-the-world flyers married? F. H.

A. None of the round-the-world flyers is married. Lieut. Henry Ogden is on leave at his home in Mississippi and Lieut. Leigh Wade is lecturing under War department orders.

Q. Was the purchasing power of the farmers' dollar as great in 1924 as in 1920? W. H. S.

A. In 1924, it was but 83 cents, while in 1920, it was 85 cents. In 1921, it was 69 cents; 1922, 74 cents; and 1923 79 cents.

Q. Please throw some light on this. I have a radio and when my neighbor two miles distant talks to anyone over the telephone we can hear him over our radio. R. A. D.

A. The Loomis Radio College says that telephone wires appear to be acting as "aerials" in many locations. Frequently when we take up our telephone to communicate with some one over the line, we can hear the code being transmitted from Arlington, and sometimes broadcast music. Evidently the length and position of the wire is such that it responds to the audio frequency of the waves. In your case, the process seems to be reversed. Radio is all so new that there is room for plenty of research to be done, and no doubt several important discoveries concerning such things will be made during the next few years.

Q. Are Persian cats more delicate than ordinary cats? R. B.

A. A veterinarian says that mongrels are perhaps the healthiest cats. Persian cats are considered the healthiest breed of large cats, but careful attention must be given to their feeding and management.

Q. Is talc a sure sign that mineral ore is near? W. H. D.

A. This talc is not true commercial talc; it is a sort of residue or deposit that forms in metal mines in the course of time as the result of erosion. It is a fine silt. It is not an absolute indication of the presence of mineral in commercial deposits although miners generally like to find it as it is usually associated with metals. There is no definite rule as to how far ore is found after this deposit.

Q. What is the population of Florida? W. P. D.

A. The 1920 census gives 968,470. It is claimed that the population is increasing in leaps and bounds.

Q. What is a tyrannosaurus? R. C. E.

A. It is an extinct tyrant lizard which, when erect, stood 18 feet high. It was one of the most formidable of all the huge dinosaurs whose remains are found in the Cretaceous rocks of the western United States.

Q. What is meant by a kilocycle? J. W. R.

A. It means 1,000 cycles a second.

Q. Did the Chippewa Indians of Minnesota get a payment from the Government this winter? F. J. D. M.

A. They received $50 per capita.

Q. What is "fool's gold?" F. D. M.

A. The material commonly called "fool's gold" is iron pyrite, a combination of sulphur and iron in almost equal parts, which is used in making sulphuric acid. Iron pyrite can be distinguished from gold by the odor of sulphur which it gives off upon application of heat.

Q. In 1625, were the servants of the Virginia planters black or white? R. K.

A. White servitude was common at that time, and there were in Virginia 464 white servants and only 22 negroes. From about 1680 the black slave population increased rapidly. By 1750, half the population of this State were slaves.

Q. Is there any way to make common cabinet glue ispervious to water? A. C. B.

A. In order to render glue insoluble in water, even hot water, it is only necessary, when dissolving the glue for use, to add a little potassium bichromate to the water and to expose the glued part to the light. The proportion of potassium bichromate will vary with circumstances, but for most purposes about 1-50 of the amount of glue used will suffice.

Extensions of railways in Uruguay this year will cost nearly $60,000,000.

PLAYLOTS CUT TOLL OF DEATH TO CHILDREN

Bureau Declares Movement Reduces Street Accidents.

SUBMITS REPORTS

Fewer Casualties When Children are Kept Off Highways.

NEW YORK—The toll of deaths and injuries to children in street accidents is reduced by playgrounds in many cities, according to the annual report of the Playground and Recreation association of America, which has just been made public.

In Duluth the Safety committee of the Chamber of Commerce placed markers at points on a map of the city where accidents had occurred. The committee was struck by the appearance of several practically spotless areas. Shortly afterward the chairman of the committee was passing a playground, and he stopped to watch the children at play. An idea came to him. He called the committee together, and they marked playground locations on the map. All the spotless areas proved to be territory immediately surrounding the playgrounds.

Albion, Michigan, in reviewing its work for the previous Summer season, when four playgrounds were conducted afternoons and evenings for eight weeks, reported only one serious injury to a child on the city streets.

In Massachusetts October has for several years been the most dangerous month in motor-vehicle accidents to children, due in agreat measure, according to Lewis E. McBrayne, General Manager of the Massachusetts Safety Council, to the fact that Summer playgrounds have been closed, and children have no place to play except on the streets.

There were no drowning accidents to children in Nashua, N. H., in the Winter of 1924, a record never before equaled in that community. This was attributed to the provision of safe skating areas by the Recreation commission. The skating rinks were lighted until 10 p. m. every night.

The National Safety council and Secretary Herbert Hoover's committee on Safety have presented the cooperation of the Playground and Recreation association of America in promoting the safety movement. The Automobile Chamber of Commerce of America recommends playgrounds as safety zones, according to the association. In its campaign for health and good citizenship through play, the Playground and Recreation association has been working for nineteen years. During this period the number of cities having public recreation grounds has increased from forty-one to more than 680. Last year the association's field workers gave service to more than 300 cities, it reports. The Correspondence bureau answered 19,000 requests for information and help Visitors from China, Japan, England, Russia, Canada and Mexico called at the New York headquarters for advice and information on recreational matters. The organization has a special bureau on vacations for employes, a bureau of community music, educational dramatics, publications and personel. Sixteen thousand members belong to the association.

OHIO— Famous for Its Colleges

ONE cannot travel far in Ohio without glimpsing a college. In fact an English writer was not far from right when in speaking of the Buckeye State, he said, "It's impossible to get out of ear shot of a college yell."

In Ohio's 37 institutions of higher education there are more than 30,000 students. These schools range from little colleges to great universities and afford the young people of the state the opportunity of obtaining a thorough education without leaving its borders.

The ever increasing number of students in Buckeye colleges gives evidence that not only is our population growing but that our standards of living are rising. In keeping pace with this growth and advancement The Ohio Bell Telephone Company will spend $71,000,000 in the next five years in extensions and betterment of service to meet the growing demand.

American League Winners Have Yanks to Beat, Says Mack

By DAMON RUNYON.
Copyright, 1925, International Feature Service, Inc.

JACK DEMPSEY thinks Tom Gibbons can whip Harry Wills. Jack Kearns thinks Wills can beat Gibbons. Kearns argues that Wills is too big and strong for Gibbons.

These opinions developed the other evening during a discussion of the probability of a match between "The Brown Panther of New Orleans" and the man from St. Paul.

"Gibbons is a good boxer, and at his best against big men," Dempsey said to this writer. "He will get in close to Wills and cut him down with body punches. I wouldn't be surprised if Gibbons knocked Wills out."

But Jack Kearns said, laconically:

"It will be another case of a good big man against a good little man, that's all."

Mickey Walker, welterweight champion of the world says Dempsey is the best second he ever had in his corner. Dempsey was Walker's chief second against Bert Colima, the Mexican.

"He is amazingly cool," Walker told the writer. "I looked at him a number of times while I was fighting and he never moved a muscle. But his eyes were a study. They were savage looking, as if he were fighting himself.

"Between the rounds he only said to me, 'you're doing O. K. Keep hitting him in the Darby Kelly.'"

For the information of the unsophisticated reader the writer will explain that "Darby Kelly" is Australian slang.

Dempsey and other coast boxers use this Australian lingo a great deal in their conversation. The key to the jargon is in rhyme. That is to say, the slang term rhymes with the word it covers, as for instance:

Darby Kelly, that's the belly.

The writer the other day heard a young man say to another:

"I'm going to have a bowl of chalk with the pot and pan."

What do you suppose he meant?

Let us see—

Bowl of chalk, that's a talk.

Pot and pan, that's a man.

Thus he meant he was going to have a talk with the man.

You say there's no sense to it. There's not much sense to any slang, until it is a matter of common usage.

Much of the Australian slang is frequently heard, and generally understood by those who understand ANY slang whatever, such as "twist and twirl" meaning girl, "storm and strife," meaning wife.

Here are a few other bits of the Australian argot not as well known:

Joe Goss, that's the boss.
Cat and mouse, that's a house.
Mumbley pegs, that's the legs.
Lean and fat, that's your hat.
Jim Skinner, that's your dinner.
Joe Blake, that's a steak.
Fields of wheat, that's a street.
Shovel and broom, that's a room.
Simple Simon, that's a diamond.

After all it's a long way around to express a word.

You might not believe it possible but the heavyweight champion of the world appeared in a ring without even being introduced to the crowd.

That was the night he seconded Walker. No one paid any attention to him in the hubbub over the fighters. Bobby Barrett, of Philadelphia, Jimmy Duffy, of Oakland, otherwise Hymie Gold, and Dode Bercot, of Portland, all welterweights, were presented. Dempsey was scarcely noticed.

He has become almost commonplace in Los Angeles. The pugilistic public ed. Dempsey was scarcely noticed.

Columbiana Loses Entire Court Squad

Coach Chas. McKain Not Certain of Returning.

COLUMBIANA, March 18.—Columbiana high school basketball hopes for the 1925-26 season will be dealt a crushing blow with the graduation this spring of the entire five first string players and practically all of the reserve men. Burkle, Crumbacher, Metz, and Brown, who started practically every game this year, are all seniors, as are Louthan, Ferrall, Nichols and Bell, substitutes. The only material left includes Dowd, Barr and Sitler.

Columbiana high made a determined bid for county laurels this season, but fell short, although the school put up a great fight all along the line.

Coach Charles McKain has been tendered several offers for next year, and as a result his return to Columbiana is considered uncertain.

The north countians rang the curtain down on their basketball activities Saturday night at Salem, losing two games to the Quakers who cinched the county title.

Columbiana won 16 out of 23 games, the hardest and longest schedule attempted by the school. They did not lose a game on their home court.

Their record:

Meet in Inaugural Tilt Tomorrow Afternoon, Pairings Announced by Director Boone.

Central school basketball teams will have the honor of cracking the ice in the city grade school court tournament which opens tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the high school gymnasium.

At the drawings yesterday afternoon in the office of Athletic Director O. V. Boone, the two fives of the Fourth street school drew the opening numbers and will go to the mat in the inaugural battle.

Two games are on the board for Thursday afternoon. Following the Central clash, Washington and Neville will tangle.

Teams of the lower bracket mix in the evening at 7 o'clock, with Sixth street and Lincoln opening hostilities. Then Maplewood and Pleasant Heights will take up the battle.

McKinley drew a bye in the upper bracket and Garfield was similarly situated in the lower.

On Friday afternoon the winner of the Washington-Neville battle will meet McKinley, and the victor in the Maplewood-Heights tilt will take on Garfield.

The results will leave four teams in the running, two in the upper and two in the lower bracket.

The winner in the Washington-Neville-McKinley trio will play the winner of the Central A-B game on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. And the winner in the Maplewood-Heights-Garfield three will take on the victorious team in the Sixth street-Lincoln meeting in the second game Saturday afternoon. At the conclusion of these games, two teams will remain, and they will clash in the final on Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

All games will be of six minute quarters and alternating halves. Harry Davies will referee the tournament.

Jersey City Bowler Individual Leader

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 18.—Harry Mahlenbroch of Jersey City was on top of a large field today in the individual event at the American Bowling congress under way here. He went into the lead last night by rolling 202, 256 and 245 for a total of 703 in the three sets he bowled.

To accomplish the task of overcoming the lead of Dominick Devito, the Chicago ace, who was on top with 702 pins the Jersey man had to strike out from the sixth frame in his last game, a feat he duly accomplished.

The other leaders still held their positions, not a single competitor breaking into the panel in two men events. Some good tallies were recorded nevertheless. An outstanding feature was the performance of Bernard Cole, a 19 year old Lakewood, Ohio boy. He shot 605 in the five-man event, 235 in his singles games and 635 in his doubles, his total for the all-events being 1847 which put him in a triple tie for third place in the all events division.

Potters Will Clash With Crockery City

Only one engagement is scheduled in the "Y" industrial indoor baseball league tonight.

The Potters are carded to clash with the Crockery City team.

Say Hoyt Plans to Be an Undertaker

ST. PETERSBURG, March 18—Although the gentleman in question has neither seen fit to deny nor affirm the tidings, a report that Waite Hoyt, Yankee pitcher, is studying to be an undertaker has gained considerable credence here. It is said that the blond young man spent the off season working as an apprentice to a Brooklyn embalmer and when his baseball days are over plans to branch out for himself as a licensed director of ceremonies for deceased citizens.

Incidentally, the chances are more than good that Hoyt will get much experience in his adopted profession as embalmer of deceased ball games this Summer.

Last Night's Fights

At Cleveland—Al Corbett won decision from Benny Gershe, twelve rounds. Al Zeimer, Cleveland, and Eddie O'Dowd, Columbus, Ohio, drew eight rounds. Tommy Hughes, Detroit, won from Lew Perfett, New York, eight rounds. Morris McMullen, Cleveland, won from Ernie Miller, Akron, six rounds.

AT DAYTON, Ohio—Frankie Bob, Dayton, won wide decision over Red McDonald, Toledo, ten rounds; (featherweights.)

O'Malley broke his hand in the fifth round. Delaney had all the five rounds when O'Malley was forced to quit.

Mountaineer Tennis Men to Name Leader

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Mar. 18.—Candidates for the West Virginia University varsity tennis squad will hold a meeting at Commencement hall tomorrow afternoon at five o'clock. Athletic department officials hope to have the racqueters start work next week and at tomorrow's meeting definite arrangements for the beginning of practice sessions will be made and a captain elected.

So far Director of Athletics H. A. Stansbury has been unable to secure a coach for the Mountaineer net squad. Captain Harlan L. Mumma, U. S. Army, who tutored the teams from 1920 to 1923, inclusive, is now stationed at Panama and Bill Steele one of the former West Point star's proteges, who took over the coaching reigns last spring, has graduated and is not located here at this time.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Toledoan Gets Chance.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., March 18.—Joe Giard, up from Toledo, will get his big opportunity tomorrow when the St. Louis Browns meet the Dodgers in the second exhibition encounter. Bob Lamotte, infielder, was on the casualty list with a touch of ptomaine poisoning today.

Rickey Watches Hurlers.

STOCKTON, Cal., March 18.—Frankhouse, Rhem, Hallahan, Paulson, Clough and Shields, of the hurling roster, occupied the attention today of Manager Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Sox Meet Shreveport.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 18.—The White Sox will take up with Shreveport again today. Manager Collins is much pleased with the form displayed by Red Faber, Robertson and Blankenship, all of whom have shown exceptional form in training.

Only Two Troubles.

AVALON, Cal., March 18.—Manager Killefer has two troubles today. One is the need of another twirler who could "bear down." The other is the need of some free style batters who could "bust" fences." With these Killefer said he would find the road to Pennantville an easy one.

Giants Blank Macks.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 18.—John McGraw couldn't help but show his appreciation today for another spring victory chalked up by his players. They defeated Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, five to nothing. Nehf, McQuillan and Barnes pitched for the Giants, while Rommel and Groves were on the mound for the Athletics. McGraw's men play Connie Mack's club at Fort Myers Thursday.

Corbett Wins From Gershe

CLEVELAND, March 18.—Benny Gershe, looking back to last night when he experienced his first setback in seventeen efforts, doubtless reflects that St. Patrick's Day is not the proper time to mixup with an Irish man. Whether it was the holiday, or what not, Corbett easily defeated the honors, having the best of the twelve rounds practically all the way. Only in the second did Gershe land a solid blow, and then he sent Corbett to his knees with a blow to the midriff upon which Corbett claimed a foul. Referee Hinkel disallowed the claim, however, and the fight went on, Corbett becoming better with every succeeding round.

Both men were under the required featherweight limit. Corbett weighed in at 125¾ pounds, and Gershe at 125.

Athletics' Leader Places 1925 Hopes In Young Shortstop

Intimates Success or Failure Rests With Galloway; "If he Delivers, we Ought to Land in Third at Least," Opines Connie.

By Davis J. Walsh.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 18.—Show Connie Elongated Mack a shortstop who can roam beyond the confines of a thumb tack and he will show you a ball club that will run one-two-three in the American league race this season. That, at least, was the purport of a few well chosen remarks from Cornelius today. He intimated rather strongly that success or failure for the Philadelphia Athletics of 1925 rested almost entirely with Clarence Galloway, regarded by some as the cream of American league shortstops two years ago.

Last season the cream turned a bit sour. The young man, in fact, fared so badly that many critics were pleased to look upon his earlier showing as a mere gesture with neither permanence nor definite meaning. Cornelius, of course, hopes for the best.

"Galloway looks good this spring," Mack declared today. "And I have come to regard this showing last year as one of those things that happen to all ball players. If he comes through I don't see how they can keep us out of third place at the very least. That is making what amounts to a prediction, and, as a rule, I avoid doing this. However, I'll say this much: The team that wins the pennant will have to beat the Yankees."

Perhaps Conie believes he has the club in question. He certainly thinks he has something highly gratifying. He usually has a harried look in his bleak, grey eye. Today he was as genial as a Rotarian on a vacation. He firly beamed on one and all and those close to the ball club allege that his glee is occasioned by the fact that he looks for Robert "Lefty" Groves, his new $100,000 pitcher, to add at least twenty victories to the total compiled by a staff that already was rated within the bounds of adequacy. Cornelius, to cover the purchase, has given Jack Dunn, of Baltimore, enough to keep the ball club meeting payments for the next fifteen years. If this bit of luxury should prove a flop, Cornelius will have plenty of time in which to thoroughly gnash the insicors. He, however, expects to masticate in moderation and grow old gracefully.

"Groves is one of the greatest lefthanders I have loked at in years," he said.

"He has terrific speed and what is unusual in a lefthander, great control. He will give me my first good pitching staff since the days of Bender, Plank and Coombs. The rest of the staff will be Rommel, Harris, Heimach, Grey, Meeker, Baumgartner and one or two others.

"Outside of Rommell my pitchers lacked steadiness in other years. I think experience has taught them to overcome this drawback."

Further reason for the Mackian air of satisfaction is said to emanate from the fact that he was tenderod the free and highly beneficial air to Ira Thomas, Danny Murphy and Harry Davis, his old board of strategy and has replied by appointing his son, Earl, as field captain. This is an innovation if nothing else. It furnished the first example in major league history of a non-playing field captain.

Jimmie Dykes has been given the regular position at third base for the first time in several years. He should make good. If he doesn't Sam Hallo will be ready to step in.

On the other side of Galloway will be Max Bishop, with Joe Hauser playing first base. Bob Hipps of Furman university, who may or may not escape the nickname of "Snakes," also is making gestures around first base, but "Bing" Miller is slated as Hauser's understudy, if any. Bing is the regular right fielder. The other two outfielders will be Simmons and Will Lamar with Frank Welch in reserve. Bill Bagwell, up again from Galveston, and Walter French, former West Point football player, are around and about, but going nowhere.

Sportsmen to Hold Meet

Members of the East Liverpool branch of the Columbiana County Fish and Game Protective association will hold their regular session tomorrow evening in the Fowler building.

Reports on membership and other business affairs of the organization will be up for consideration.

J. C. Miller, member of the local branch and secretary of the county organization, last night received from Representative Ralph W. Emmons a telegram which stated that the Guilford park bill had been approved by the house and has gone to the senate where it will be taken in charge by Senator Carpenter.

Having installed 700 twenty-ton freight cars, the Great Western Railway of England is trying, by offering reduced car-lot rates, to arouse interest of shippers in the use of what is to them unusually large carriers.

American League Winners Have Yanks to Beat, Says Mack

By DAMON RUNYON.

Copyright, 1925, International Feature Service, Inc.

JACK DEMPSEY thinks Tom Gibbons can whip Harry Wills. Jack Kearns thinks Wills can beat Gibbons. Kearns argues that Wills is too big and strong for Gibbons.

These opinions developed the other evening during a discussion of the probability of a match between "The Brown Panther of New Orleans" and the man from St. Paul.

"Gibbons is a good boxer, and at his best against big men," Dempsey said to this writer. "He will get in close to Wills and cut him down with body punches. I wouldn't be surprised if Gibbons knocked Wills out."

But Jack Kearns said, laconically:

"It will be another case of a good big man against a good little man, that's all."

Mickey Walker, welterweight champion of the world says Dempsey is the best second he ever had in his corner. Dempsey was Walker's chief second against Bert Colima, the Mexican.

"He is amazingly cool," Walker told the writer. "I looked at him a number of times while I was fighting and he never moved a muscle. But his eyes were a study. They were savage looking, as if he were fighting himself.

"Between the rounds he only said to me, 'you're doing O. K. Keep hitting him in the Darby Kelly.'"

For the information of the unsophisticated reader the writer will explain that "Darby Kelly" is Australian slang.

Dempsey and other coast boxers use this Australian lingo a great deal in their conversation. The key to the jargon is in rhyme. That is to say, the slang term rhymes with the word it covers, as for instance:

Darby Kelly, that's the belly.

The writer the other day heard a young man say to another:

"I'm going to have a bowl of chalk with the pot and pan."

What do you suppose he meant?

Let us see—

Bowl of chalk, that's a talk.

Pot and pan, that's a man.

Thus he meant he was going to have a talk with the man.

You say there's no sense to it. There's not much sense to any slang, until it is a matter of common usage.

Much of the Australian slang is frequently heard, and generally understood by those who understand ANY slang whatever, such as "twist and twirl" meaning girl, "storm and strife," meaning wife.

Here are a few other bits of the Australian argot not as well known:

Joe Goss, that's the boss.
Cat and mouse, that's a house.
Mumbley pegs, that's the legs.
Lean and fat, that's your hat.
Jim Skinner, that's your dinner.
Joe Blake, that's a steak.
Fields of wheat, that's a street.
Shovel and broom, that's a room.
Simple Simon, that's a diamond.

After all it's a long way around to express a word.

You might not believe it possible but the heavyweight champion of the world appeared in a ring without even being introduced to the crowd.

That was the night he seconded Walker. No one paid any attention to him in the hubbub over the fighters. Bobby Barrett, of Philadelphia, Jimmy Duffy, of Oakland, otherwise Hymie Gold, and Dode Bercot, of Portland, all welterweights, were presented. Dempsey was scarcely noticed.

He has become almost commonplace in Los Angeles. The pugilistic public

Columbiana Loses Entire Court Squad

Coach Chas. McKain Not Certain of Returning.

COLUMBIANA, March 18.—Columbiana high school basketball hopes for the 1925-26 season will be dealt a crushing blow with the graduation this spring of the entire five first string players and practically all of the reserve men. Burkle, Crumbacher, Metz, and Brown, who started practically every game this year, are all seniors, as are Louthan, Ferrall, Nichols and Bell, substitutes. The only material left includes Dowd, Barr and Sitler.

Columbiana high made a determined bid for county laurels this season, but fell short, although the school put up a great fight all along the line.

Coach Charles McKain has been tendered several offers for next year, and as a result his return to Columbiana is considered uncertain.

The north countians rang the curtain down on their basketball activities Saturday night at Salem, losing two games to the Quakers who cinched the county title.

Columbiana won 16 out of 23 games, the hardest and longest schedule attempted by the school. They did not lose a game on their home court.

Their record:

Meet in Inaugural Tilt Tomorrow Afternoon, Pairings Announced by Director Boone.

Central school basketball teams will have the honor of cracking the ice in the city grade school court tournament which opens tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the high school gymnasium.

At the drawings yesterday afternoon in the office of Athletic Director O. V. Boone, the two fives of the Fourth street school drew the opening numbers and will go to the mat in the inaugural battle.

Two games are on the board for Thursday afternoon. Following the Central clash, Washington and Neville will tangle.

Teams of the lower bracket mix in the evening at 7 o'clock, with Sixth street and Lincoln opening hostilities. Then Maplewood and Pleasant Heights will take up the battle.

McKinley drew a bye in the upper bracket and Garfield was similarly situated in the lower.

On Friday afternoon the winner of the Washington-Neville battle will meet McKinley, and the victor in the Maplewood-Heights tilt will take on Garfield.

The results will leave four teams in the running, two in the upper and two in the lower bracket.

The winner in the Washington-Neville-McKinley trio will play the winner of the Central A-B game on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. And the winner in the Maplewood-Heights-Garfield three will take on the victorious team in the Sixth street-Lincoln meeting in the second game Saturday afternoon. At the conclusion of these games, two teams will remain, and they will clash in the final on Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

All games will be of six minute quarters and alternating halves. Harry Davies will referee the tournament.

Athletics' Leader Places 1925 Hopes In Young Shortstop

Lutherans Defeat M. E.

Playing a brand of basketball that was too fast for their opponents, the Lutheran passers of the Sunday school circuit swamped the First Methodist Episcopal five last night on the high school court by the count of 50 to 17.

Only in the first quarter did the Methodists develop competent resistance. In this period they held their foes to a score of 9 to 6. The Lutherans opened their big guns in the second period and when the smoke had cleared away the count was 25 to 9. They scored 11 more points in the third period while the Methodists made two. The Lutherans sent in their reserves in the fourth quarter and they outscored the opposition. G. Woessner, Kimes, Schneidmiller and Kibble were the Lutheran luminaries. Karns, Nease and Wolfe were the best performers for the losers.

The Methodist Juniors easily won from the Lutheran Juniors in the preliminary, 46 to 11. The lineups:

sees him every day. There is no novelty to him here. You know "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country."

Dempsey is commencing to scent the resin dust again, no doubt of that.

He is in his gymnasium daily, looking after all the details, watching the different boxers without interest. He practically managed Walker for the Colima fight. This is twice he has acted as a second.

He went to San Diego to be behind Joe Benjamin. It was on that trip he got married. He has worked out in his gymnasium at least once, boxing with Tod Morgan, a classy young featherweight of the west coast.

Remember the writer's prediction, that Dempsey will fight again.

He is suffering just now from a curious psychology. He THINKS for the moment that he is never to fight again. For a time he got entirely away from the game, from its environments, its associations.

He didn't remain away long. Now he is back in the very thick of it. The tinsel of boxing gloves is constantly in his ears. He is again discussing other fighters, as he discussed Wills and Gibbons with the writer.

It may be months yet, but Dempsey will be back for more. THEY ALWAYS COME BACK FOR MORE.

GET THAT CAR OUT OF YOUR HEAD AND UNDER YOUR FEET!

You'll profit in time saved, in increased business and in social prestige—in fact, these days a man can't afford to be without a Maxwell

Lutherans Defeat M. E.

Playing a brand of basketball that was too fast for their opponents, the Lutheran passers of the Sunday school circuit swamped the First Methodist Episcopal five last night on the high school court by the count of 50 to 17.

Only in the first quarter did the Methodists develop competent resistance. In this period they held their foes to a score of 9 to 6. The Lutherans opened their big guns in the second period and when the smoke had cleared away the count was 25 to 9. They scored 11 more points in the third period while the Methodists made two. The Lutherans sent in their reserves in the fourth quarter and they outscored the opposition. G. Woessner, Kimes, Schneidmiller and Kibble were the Lutheran luminaries. Karns, Nease and Wolfe were the best performers for the losers.

The Methodist Juniors easily won from the Lutheran Juniors in the preliminary, 46 to 11. The lineups:

First M. E.		Lutherans.
Wolfe	F	Kimes
Nease	F	G. Woessner
Cunningham	C	Schneidmiller
Karns	C	R. Woessner
Pyles	G	Kibble

Substitutions — Dawson for R. Woessner, R. Woessner for Schneidmiller, Anthony for Kimes, Brozka for Cunningham, Cunningham for Nease.

Field goals—G. Woessner 8, Kimes 5, Schneidmiller 5, Anthony 3, Karns 4, Brozka, Nease, Wolfe.

Foul goals—G. Woessner 3, Schneidmiller 3, Kimes, Kibble, Pyles 2, Wolfe.

Referee, Davies; timer, Sayre; scorer, Kenney.

First M. P. Jrs.		Lutheran Jrs.
Burke	F	Greenwood
Bettridge	F	Barlow
Bailey	C	Woessner
Angus	G	Badgley
Wilson	G	Paczek

Substitution—Carter for Betteridge.

Field goals—Burke 11, Bettridge 5, Bailey 5, Barlow 2, Greenwood, Woessner.

sees him every day. There is no novelty to him here. You know "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country."

Dempsey is commencing to scent the resin dust again, no doubt of that. He is in his gymnasium daily, looking after all the details, watching the different boxers without interest. He practically managed Walker for the Colima fight. This is twice he has acted as a second.

He went to San Diego to be behind Joe Benjamin. It was on that trip he got married. He has worked out in his gymnasium at least once, boxing with Tod Morgan, a classy young featherweight of the west coast.

Remember the writer's prediction, that Dempsey will fight again.

He is suffering just now from a curious psychology. He THINKS for the moment that he is never to fight again. For a time he got entirely away from the game, from its environments, its associations.

He didn't remain away long. Now he is back in the very thick of it. The thud of boxing gloves is constantly in his ears. He is again discussing other fighters, as he discussed Wills and Gibbons with the writer.

It may be months yet, but Dempsey will be back for more. THEY ALWAYS COME BACK FOR MORE.

GET THAT CAR OUT OF YOUR HEAD AND UNDER YOUR FEET!

You'll profit in time saved, in increased business and in social prestige—in fact, these days a man can't afford to be without a Maxwell
